Gov't in Trap Over Deal Charges MLA

The provincial government is trapped in a worthless agreement to purchase the Casa Loma complex in Burnaby, and stands to lose at least $565,000 on the deal, Liberal MLA Allan Williams charged Thursday.

The agreement, Williams said in the legislature, is inoperative until Burnaby city council confirms in writing it has approved rezoning the complex and "yet the government has spent $565,000. It's now beyond the reach of the government and you can't get it back."

The government has admitted the Casa Loma owners were advanced $565,000 as down payment on the $3.5 million the government agreed to pay for the complex.

Technically, the money was handed over to Casa Loma Motels Ltd. outside the contract, Williams said.

Williams also said electricity and fire protection devices in the complex do not meet CMHC standards and the government would have to finance upgrading of the systems to get funding. CMHC is withholding $3.1 million in mortgage funds until certain problems are resolved.

Liberal leader David Anderson added the charge that the government was conspiring with Casa Loma owners on purchase arrangements 10 days before outstanding liens were settled on the development.

Anderson said the housing department applied for federal government financing Nov. 18, 10 days before liens with subcontractors on the project were settled Nov. 28.

Documents tabled in the house later by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson confirm in the Certificate of Title that the government applied for a mortgage on the property Nov. 18.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, however, accused the opposition of throwing political flack around the complex when all the government intends is to provide much-needed accommodation for senior citizens.

"If by May 31 we haven't got the rezoning we get all the money back, secured by the mortgage at 12 per cent interest."

"I don't think the crown will want to retire from this deal — we want the accommodation," said Macdonald, saying the only real matters of concern are charges the government affected settlement with lienholders.

The crown said we would purchase that thing free of liens," said Macdonald. "It was a condition of purchase."

The government couldn't have usurped the role of a judge, said the attorney-general, or it would have been in error.

The lienholders, he said,

Contract
Flouted
Policy—PC

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department ignored government policy when it awarded a federal contract to a U.S.-owned company that slightly underbid a Canadian firm, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) said Thursday.

He said in the Commons that Best Cleaners and Contractors Ltd. of Vancouver bid $715,000 for maintenance at Vancouver International Airport. That was $200,000 more than the successful $695,000 bid by Consolidated Maintenance Services Ltd., a Toronto company wholly-owned by Allied Maintenance Corp. of New York.

Reynolds said the difference was only three per cent. He had understood that the government would give such contracts to Canadian companies even if they were underbid up to 10 per cent.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said that while he is as concerned as Reynolds about the layoffs he was not aware of any policy that Canadian firms would get contracts even if their bid was high.

But supply minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, when pressed by Reynolds, said the policy does exist.

New Leads in Search For Moonlight Killer

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The grisly mystery of the disappearance of a number of young women from the western United States and B.C. within the past year may have moved closer to solution today.

Washington State police report they have now been able to identify five of seven women whose remains have been discovered at two sites within 10 miles of each other, and they are now looking for a man who calls himself "Ted."

The break is of significant interest to RCMP in B.C. who have been investigating the possibility six unsolved murders of women in the province over the past five years may be linked to a series of as many as 22 killings in California, Oregon and Washington over the same period of time.

There is speculation all the murders might have been committed by the same individual, an itinerant male variously described as a schizophrenic maniac, a trophy hunter or moonlight killer.

The basis for the investigation is a comprehensive report on unsolved female homicides in California released last month by the state's department of justice.

Undertaken by the division of law enforcement, organized crime and criminal intelligence branch based in Sacramento, the study analyses 103 unsolved murders in the state since December, 1969, and concludes 13 or 14 of them might be the work of one man.

The study also suggests seven women in Washington and one in Oregon who mysteriously disappeared in 1974 may have fallen victim to the same killer.

Police have found the remains of seven women at two sites in the Seattle area within 10 miles of each other. Five of the victims have been identified.

Four bodies were found in the Mt. Taylor area near North Bend, Wash., the other three in a wooded area near Issaquah.

Two of the victims found in the latter site had apparently helped a young man known only as "Ted" put a sailboat atop his car the day they disappeared.

The California report doesn't tie in any of the B.C. murders but RCMP chief superintendent Mark Marcus feels there are sufficient striking parallels to warrant a thorough examination.

As in the case of the California victims, he says, the B.C. dead were all or nearly all under 30, naked when found and with all or most of their clothing missing.

Some had been sexually molested and some had not; some had been bound with rope and some not. The same is true in the California murders.

There are other similarities too, he points out. The majority were found near water, their bodies deposited over road embankments in rural and semi-rural areas, parks and vacant lots. Nearly all had been murdered elsewhere.

Most of the victims were known to hitch-hike and several were hitch-hiking near their homes when last seen.

The California victims all disappeared from Friday to Sunday, invariably during darkness hours, and in every case but two at or near the time of a full moon. The other two went missing within two days of a new moon.

The same applies in the B.C. killings with four of the six identified victims being murdered within a week of a full moon, two on a Friday, one on a Saturday, the fourth on a Tuesday (the lone exception).

The first of the B.C. murders was that of Gloria Moody, a 27-year-old Indian woman who bled to death after being raped and mutilated on a lonely road near Williams Lake Oct. 26, 1969.

The first murder in the California series occurred on Dec. 10, 1969. There was one killing in the state in 1970 (March) and one in 1971 (August). In 1972 there were four — two in February (the same day), one in March and one in November. In 1973 there were five — one in May, one in June and three in July. The year 1974 saw only one, on Sept. 25.

The California study notes the missing females in Washington and Oregon disappeared between January and July, 1974, a period, it adds ominously, in which there was no activity reported in California.

Similarly, there was no reported activity in California the dates of the B.C. murders — Colleen MacMillan, 16, of Lac La Hache who died Aug. 9, 1974, Pamela Darlington, 17, who died Oct. 1, 1974.

PSAC Talks Resume As Strikes Continue

Times News Service

Talks are to resume today in the dispute between striking federal labor and trades workers and the Treasury Board, a board spokesman said today in Ottawa.

The spokesman said discussions would begin shortly before noon Victoria time but would not elaborate on their nature.

Selective strikes by the 18,600 federal employees have hit various parts of the country since Feb. 17. The board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), which represents the workers, have not held discussions since Feb. 21.

In Vancouver, mail service was slowly grinding to a halt today as federal employees maintained their picket line at the vehicle entrances to the main downtown post office and mail truck drivers refused to cross the PSAC line.

Mail sorting by inside workers of the Canadian Postal Workers Union is continuing, and letter carriers are on their walks in the immediate downtown area and some surrounding residential and business areas.

In Victoria, PSAC workers at the Ministry of Transport marine services base and the Ogden Point grain elevator were off the job today.

Rotating strikes are expected to be stepped up in the Victoria area Saturday in a show of support for the union contract demands, regional PSAC representative Tom Dalzell said.

TOUGHER CRACKDOWN EYED FOR SPEEDERS

The provincial government is investigating more stringent controls for the five per cent of B.C. motorists who insist on speeding, Highway Minister Graham Lea said today.

RCMP radar checks made on the province's highways since speed limits were lowered show a small percentage of drivers who insist on blatantly breaking the speed limits of B.C., Lea said.

"This small percentage is putting the lives of others in danger and we're looking at more stringent controls," said the highways minister during the budget debate in the legislature.

They're Prisoners of Love

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) —

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will be getting a rather unusual letter soon.

Robin Shaw, 19, and Darlene Thomas, 20, prisoners at the Prince George co-educational jail, said Thursday they will write Allmand in Ottawa seeking permission to be married.

They were recently denied permission to marry by the provincial attorney-general's department.

Both say they don't want to wait until their release from jail to take the vows.

Their relationship has already got them in hot water with the jail's administration when they were caught in November contravening regulations of segregation while they were supposed to be on a recreation period.

The romance began last June when Thomas was transferred here from the lower mainland regional correction centre in Burnaby, where she was serving a 15-month sentence for forgery. She is scheduled to be released May 28.

Shaw was convicted of a parole violation and is up for release in August.

If the marriage took place while both were in prison, it would be a first in Canada. The jail here is the only correctional institution in the country where men and women are housed under the same roof.

U.S. Bids For Turkish Opium

WASHINGTON (WP)

Faced with a critically short opium supply, American makers of pain-killing drugs with federal approval are bidding for the opium Turkey once more is producing despite U.S. protests.

A Federal Opium Policy Task Force is also considering allowing cultivation of opium poppies in the U.S., a special assistant to the director of the Office of Management and Budget disclosed yesterday.

Although the government has made no official change in its opposition to Turkish opium production, federal officials agreed Tuesday that increased imports from Turkey are urgently needed to make the codeine and morphine a growing number of American patients are using.

Times News Services

TEL AVIV — Searchers today found the bodies of five foreign tourists in the rubble of a hotel shattered in an Arab guerrilla assault that Israeli leaders termed an attempt to sabotage the Kissinger peace mission and an attack on Egypt as well.

This raised the death toll in the boldest Palestinian strike of its kind to 18, including seven of the eight guerrillas who attacked the city's beachfront from the sea.

Security forces were holding a 150-ton sailboat and its six-man crew that military sources said dropped off the guerrillas' rubber dinghies for the raid.

A naval officer from one of the Israeli navy missile boats that captured it said the sailboat came from Lebanon. It was taken to the port of Haifa and its crew was under questioning.

Meanwhile, Defence Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday night Egypt was as much a target of the guerrilla attack as was Israel.

Israelis enraged over the raid, meanwhile, waited today for their armed forces to wreak vengeance on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

But there was speculation the counterattack would be delayed until after U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's visit in search of a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

"They will be punished."

Tourists Added To Raid Toll

Premier Yitzhak Rabin said after the attack. Strikes at guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon have followed every previous such Palestinian attack into Israel.

Palestinian leaders in Beirut ordered a maximum alert at the 15 refugee camps in Lebanon and the main office of the Palestine Liberation Organization was evacuated as a precautionary measure.

Israeli military intelligence chief Shlomo Gazit said the guerrillas had tried to mislead the Israelis into thinking Egypt was involved by scrawling "Kissinger's efforts will fail" and "The Egyptian Army Seaman" on one of the rafts used in the raid.

The one surviving guerrilla, also told authorities the commandos came from Egypt, but officials said he was lying.

540,000 More Jobless in U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Nearly 540,000 U.S. workers lost their jobs in February but the unemployment rate held steady at 8.2 per cent last month because a similar number of people entirely dropped out of the labor force, the labor department said today.

The number of jobs supported by the troubled economy dropped to 84 million, back to the level of May, 1973.

Employment has dropped 2.4 million since September, 1974, a figure which the bureau of labor statistics described as "the largest five-month cutback recorded in the post-war period."

Meanwhile, the government's weighted average of all wholesale prices declined another 0.8 per cent in February, the third month in a row that it has fallen, and a further sign that inflation is giving way to the recession.

It is not giving way completely, however.

As in each of the two preceding months, falling farm prices drove the over-all

Illness Deports Fijian

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hari Charan Singh, 27, a former Fijian policeman who has lived and worked in British Columbia for five years, Monday was ordered deported because he had suffered a nervous breakdown.

The order, made under an immigration act section dealing with insanity, revokes a 1973 directive that Singh be granted landed immigrant status. The order was made here this week by the immigration appeal board.

Singh is currently employed as a carpenter and the hearing was told that he is a hard worker. He once held two jobs — working as a janitor and on a dairy farm — at one time.

The order could split Singh's family. The immigration appeal board says the order does not apply to Singh's wife, nor his two children — one born in Fiji and one born in Canada.

Singh, who became ill about nine months after he was admitted to Canada, said he doesn't know what steps he will take, but said his wife and children will remain in Canada.

"I don't have any money," he said. "Some friends have promised to help."

Singh entered Canada as a visitor Jan. 4, 1970 and applied for landed immigrant status. His application was turned down and he was ordered deported Sept. 23, 1970 because he was unable to meet the necessary assessment units, such as marriage to a Canadian citizen.

He appealed his case and the immigration appeal board quashed the deportation order and directed on Aug. 24, 1973, that he be granted landed immigrant status.

The immigration department subsequently learned that Singh had entered River View Hospital for treatment of a psychotic illness and Singh received a letter Sept. 24, 1974, from A. A. Kirney of Ottawa on behalf of Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

The letter advised that the minister was seeking to have Singh's 1973 appeal re-opened on grounds of previous insanity.

A hearing of the immigration appeal board resulted in the ruling Monday that the Sept. 23, 1970 deportation order against Singh be executed as soon as practicable.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Andras said the minister cannot intervene in the decision of the immigration appeal board but that the matter would be brought to the minister's attention. He added that Singh would have to leave the country.

The spokesman said Singh's only hope of remaining in Canada would be under a special permit issued by the minister, however, Singh would have to be outside the country to make such an application.

Douglas Carter, executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said the case suggests that people can come to Canada provided they don't get sick.

It seems unfair to discriminate on grounds of an emotional disorder," Carter said. "The legislation seems to enforce the stigma that mental illness is somehow shameful."

Million $ Award Millstone ... Pittance

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A million-dollar damage award today may seem a pittance tomorrow in the light of economic uncertainties, Victoria lawyer said Thursday.

Lawyer Herbert Matthews was commenting on the $1.1 million B.C. Supreme Court award Wednesday to a Courtenay girl crippled in a motorcycle accident in 1972.

"I am glad to see our courts taking a realistic view of inflation in these cases," Matthews said.

"These young people have a fair lifespan — probably 70 or 75 — and when you start equating that against our future economy, really the amount is not large. Maybe in 15 years that may look small."

A person faced with a massive judgment far exceeding his insurance coverage remains liable for payment for 21 years. His assets may be seized and his wages garnished.

The judgment may be just but nonetheless an awesomely heavy millstone on his neck. Matthews suggested the government should "pick up the tab on these large judgments, disregarding the limiting factor on the policy."

This idea is in line with the 35-year-old practice in the United Kingdom, where any British citizen using the highways is covered for the highest liability.

A jury deliberated more than six hours Wednesday before awarding $1.1 million to Corinne Rhonda Lissell, 18, who was permanently paralyzed in both legs and an arm after suffering spinal damage in the accident. She had been passenger on a motorcycle being driven by a friend on the highway to Comox when it collided with a car turning into a driveway.

The judgment was against-motorcyclist Randy David Cox, 35, per cent at fault, and car driver Henry Paul, assessed 5 per cent of the blame. Both are workers in the forest industry.

How much public liability insurance the two carried at the time was not disclosed to the court, but the legal minimum required was $50,000 for each vehicle owner.

"All the hapless girl is going to get is the insurance limit," Matthews said.

The legal profession has recognized for some time the

Police Seeking Suspect In Moonlight Killings

13, of North Kamloops killed Nov. 6-7, 1973; Gale Weys, 19, of Clearwater who met her death on Oct. 19, 1973 and the Moody women's death in Oct. 1969.

(RCMP have been unable to determine who the other two B.C. victims are, let alone establish when they might have died. One was found slain in half in two plastic bags near Valemont last May; the other, badly decomposed, was discovered on a remote logging road 19 miles northeast of Penticton last April 26.)

The American victim was typically white female age 12 to 24, small to medium stature, long hair parted in the middle, pierced ears, and dressed in casual street clothing, the report states.

The Canadian victim, says Marcus, differs in at least one respect — a larger build. The California report describes the suspect as male, probably caucasian, under 50 years of age, likely between 17 and 25, and physically strong with strength enough to hurl his victims to their final resting places (none of the woman had apparently been dragged).

It suggests further the suspect is familiar with witchcraft or the occult because a witchcraft symbol had been found on the edge of a roadway above the location where one of the victims was found.

The symbol, consisting of two rectangles one larger than the other made of twigs and connected by a single stick, was said to mean "to carry the spirits away."

(However, Victoria occultist Jean Kozocari disagrees with this interpretation. She says the symbol has been borrowed from gypsy sorcery and is directional information to a burial ground.)

The report describes the killer as a "cunning loner," careful not to leave any evidence at the discovery sites. For example, it states, the suspect would park his car on a roadway and not on the shoulder thus eliminating any possibility of obtaining tire impressions.

It says the suspect is knowledgeable in the art of knot-tying, and a collector of his victims' clothing.

It also suggests the killer works in a job that allows him to travel about freely and unsupervised, such as a long-haul truck driver, travelling salesman or construction worker.

The B.C. suspect is similar in some ways. Marcus says the killer is "certainly" a loner, extremely cunning, and probably an itinerant.

"The fact rewards have been offered and never claimed would seem to point to that."

The suspect is also a "trophy hunter," collecting articles of his victims' clothing, Marcus says.

The problem finding the murderer remains truly horrifying as exemplified by the profile of the B.C. killer as prepared by a Vancouver psychiatrist.

He suggested the murderer is an impotent male, probably schizophrenic.

"And," says Marcus, "there are 5,000 people in the Fraser Valley alone who could fit that description."

A PRACTICE TRAIN for rookie engineers crashed into this bus full of commuters and schoolchildren at a railway crossing in Munich today, killing 12 persons. A railroad spokesman said a guard opened a safety gate immediately after an express train passed, and the other train coming from the opposite direction on a second track caught the bus right in the middle.

adequacy of minimum liability coverage requirements in B.C.

Victoria Bar Association president Alan Cox said it was a "shocking thing" that minimum mandatory coverage is so low and that the limit deserved to be raised when the government introduced its compulsory auto insurance plan.

The B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association pressed for an increase to $100,000 minimum coverage last year.

The proposal was made early in the summer to Transport Minister Robert Strachan, who is responsible for Insurance Corp. of B.C., and to Attorney-General Alex Macdonald in the fall.

Strachan said Thursday the government is considering raising the minimum to $100,000, but could not logically go beyond that.

In British Columbia minimum coverage is a fraud on the public, said Victoria lawyer Robert Monaghan.

With awards in the range of $1 million, payment becomes academic — almost ridiculous — in view of insurance coverage, he added.

Insurance agent John Crago said $1 million maximum liability can be bought under ICBC for $9 above the cost of basic $50,000 coverage. For those with existing policies extension to higher coverage takes only a visit to the agent with payment of the extra fee on the spot, he said.

The average higher limit now a day is about $200,000-$300,000, Crago said, compared with $100,000 many had been carrying before.

"But it's the old story. People say 'it couldn't happen to me. What damage can I do with my Volkswagen?'"

"They don't realize they could run over somebody in a crosswalk and it doesn't matter whether it's a Volkswagen or a Buick."

"They go past an accident and see the broken glass. They don't ride in the ambulance to the hospital. They don't see the blood and the rest of it," Crago said.

While the ICBC insurance rate book only goes up to $1 million liability, additional limits may be purchased and there are many drivers whose cars are covered beyond $1 million, the agent said.

Monaghan said premiums should be paid for coverage according to the amount of damage awards, which could be calculated actuarially.

Heather Brown of ICBC's sales department in Victoria said she had several inquiries this morning from people concerned about inadequate liability coverage.

"People are definitely aware that judgements are increasing" and most these days buy at least $200,000 coverage, she said.

Bob Cumberbirch, of Cumberbirch Agencies, said he expects to get calls: "This sort of thing shakes people up a bit." But so far generally there was light reaction from the public.

Some agents said $300,000-$500,000 coverage is becoming common in Victoria and some advise clients to get at least $500,000 coverage. Professional people are advised to get $1 million.

The main impact of the selective strikes has been felt in Western grain movements which have been stalled largely because of walkouts by grain weighers and other workers at Vancouver and Thunder Bay.

The Canadian Wheat Board said Thursday that congestion in elevators in the northern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan has approached the critical stage and could become critical in other areas of the Prairies as well.

The congestion, plus the continuing labor disputes that have halted all export grain shipments and left 22,000 boxes full of grain sitting idle at ports, might force the board to cancel some quotas.

The quota system is based on the flow of grain in and out of elevators.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damages of $75,000 were awarded to the estate of Edward Glen Smith, of Duncan, who was killed in a traffic accident last year. Smith's wife received $5,000 for injuries she suffered as well as $70,000 for her and her children under the Families Compensation Act.

NO TROOPS—FORD

Times News Services WASHINGTON — President Ford said Thursday night that U.S. troops will not become re-involved in the Indochina war and made his strongest appeal to date for quick military and economic aid to help Cambodia to survive.

In a televised news conference Ford said that the issue is not whether the U.S. becomes involved again in the fighting.

"We have ended our involvement," he said, "All American forces have come home. They will not go back."

But he said there is no hope of a negotiated settlement in Cambodia "unless" the Congress quickly provides the necessary means for Cambodia to survive.

Ford said $222 million in aid may prevent a Communist takeover in Cambodia and perhaps allow negotiations. If Congress refuses, Americans would feel "a deep sense of shame" over the bloodbath that would come with the insurgent troops.

Ford gave the Cambodian regime headed by Marshal

Lon Nol a 50-50 chance of survival even with the aid. He said the money might allow Phnom Penh to last until summer when the rainy season would make it easier to transport supplies. If the insurgents cannot win by then, talks might follow.

the weather

Fine sunny weather will continue over most of B.C. today except for the odd snowflurry over southeastern B.C. mainly in the mountains. As a disturbance off the Pacific coast moves gradually northeastward, increasing cloudiness will cross northern coastal regions by tonight and spread over the remainder of the B.C. coast and eastward across the southern interior on Saturday. Over the central and northern interior skies will remain mostly sunny today and Saturday.

U.S. Cancer War a '$600M Sham'

Times News Services
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The $600 million cancer program in the United States is a total sham, mixed in politics, says Nobel Prize-winning biologist James Watson.

Despite millions of dollars being spent on development of cancer treatment centres, the result may be only a facade with little increase in understanding cancer or knowing how to treat it, he said.

Watson has recently completed a two-year stint as an adviser to the U.S. government's National Cancer Institute, described the experience as "disillusioning — political logrolling more than fighting a war."

Earlier, in a speech dedicating a new cancer research institute at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he said the government's plan to fight cancer has largely been to provide massive increase of funds for existing clinical institutions, without consideration for setting priorities or new long-range basic research.

"The American public is being sold a nasty bill of goods about cancer. While they're being told about cancer cures, the cure rate has improved only about one per cent," he said.

"The grim cancer statistics are about as bad as ever. Today, the press releases coming out of the National Cancer Institute have all the honesty of the Pentagon's."

About $90 million of last year's funds were spent on 17 comprehensive clinical and research centres established across the country, a program that Watson said is largely a "facade."

The anti-cancer program was established quickly in the 17 centres, most of which do not have qualified personnel to staff the research part of the program, he claimed.

Watson charged that the centres were founded largely because doctors lobbying for funds in Washington are promising results in the war against cancer in about 10 years.

He and some other scientists have predicted 25 to 50 years as more realistic.

Glacier Can't Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 8,600-ton U.S. Coast Guard cutter Glacier, stuck in 25-foot thick Antarctic ice, will become an ice-encrusted ghost ship until November unless it can break through 12 miles of ice to open water.

The ship, which carries a crew of 211, including eight civilian scientists and three naval sea cadets, got trapped in the dense Antarctic ice Wednesday while steaming to rescue another stranded ship.

Coast Guard officials said that Glacier, the guard's largest icebreaker, might have to spend the entire winter right where it is.

The Antarctic winter won't be over until November because seasons are reversed in the southern hemisphere and "the ice will get thicker and thicker and thicker," a spokesman said.

He said the crew "are in no danger" because the ship is built to be squeezed upward as the ice thickens, and has heat, lights and several months of supplies.

SOME SERVANTS 'OVERPAID'

OTTAWA (CP) — Some federal civil servants are overpaid, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said Thursday in seeking approval for an extra $10 million to help bankroll government salaries.

Chretien also said that because of "rampant inflation" the government seriously underestimated the cost of wage settlements for many of the 240,000 unionized civil servants who negotiated new contracts with the government over the last year.

He refused to tell the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee which groups within the federal bureaucracy are overpaid but said some succeeded through binding arbitration in winning "more than they deserve."

He said the government is considering ways of consolidating the 80 collective bargaining units dealing with the government into a smaller number to reduce the number of strikes. He specifically mentioned the several small unions involved in grain shipments whose recent strikes and refusals to cross picket lines have disrupted grain exports.

He said the idea of consolidation may also be considered for the unions involved in airport operations and maintenance.

Chretien was "annoyed" with the recent rash of work stoppages in grain transportation and handling and said the government would prefer "one big strike every once in a while" to a whole series of strikes by smaller unions.

CREW BEATEN

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Crew members aboard a United States tuna boat held by Ecuador were beaten, kicked and prodded with bayonets in a wild half-hour melee, the American Tunaboat Association reports.

At least one man and possibly two are badly hurt, the association said.

The boat also was reported to have been ransacked and the crew members' belongings stolen.

August Felando, ATA general manager, identified the boat as the Los Angeles-based Neptune, being held in the Ecuadorian port of Salinas.

Felando said he learned of the incident by radio from Neptune captain John Burich. There was no official confirmation of the incident.

LESS ENERGY FOR MORE $

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite a sharp rise in value terms, Canada's real exports of energy products declined by 15 per cent during 1974 from a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

Measured in terms of British Thermal Units (BTU), exports dropped to 3,361 trillion units from 4,300 trillion in 1973.

In dollar terms, exports rose sharply to $5.1 billion from $2.6 billion in 1973. But this was due entirely to higher prices for crude petroleum and other energy products.

The price per barrel of crude oil sent to the United States rose to $11.86 at year-end from $4.27 a year earlier. Included in these average prices was the export tax, which was up to $5.20 from $1.90.

Court Freezes Answer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada has ordered the ship Answer held in custody of a marshal until ownership of the vessel has been settled.

An order handed down today by Justice A. M. Walsh said the ship should be held by the marshal in Sept Ties or any other port within the court's jurisdiction to which it might be moved.

He also said the marshal has the authority to hire people to look after guard duties and to maintain the ship while the court decides who owns it.

Mr. Justice Walsh also ordered Vitral Compania Naviera S. A., of Panama to make a deposit of $20,000 with the court to cover the costs of maintaining the ship and delivering it to Quebec if Paul Emile Caron, Louisville, Que., turns out to be the owner.

Logging Backed

PORT McNEILL — Mount Waddington regional directors are supporting two major timber companies which want controlled logging on Vancouver Island's last unharvested watershed.

The regional board's support came at a public hearing held — the first of four on the future use of the Tsitika-Schoen watershed.

Closed to timber harvesting two years ago pending study of its potential, the 310,000-acre area extends from the Island's east coast at the mouth of the Tsitika River to a point close to Gold River.

Results of that study are the basis of the hearings.

The companies asking for permission to carry out controlled logging are MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Canadian Forest Products Ltd., and representatives from each presented their cases to a special regional board meeting this week.

Both companies made proposals for long-range timber harvesting there that would provide recreational space while producing timber, and adhere to provincial government regulations to ease environmental impact.

LAKE WATER RALLY SET

A public meeting has been called for Monday, at 7:30 p.m. at the Roman Catholic Church Hall, 738 Goldstream Avenue, to discuss water pollution in Florence Lake.

Lake residents were advised Thursday by regional medical health officer Dr. A. F. Arnell to hold water from the lake.

Analysis of tap water from a house on the west side of the lake revealed a high degree of pollution, but the lake water was still safe for swimming, he said.

He claimed it is impossible to pinpoint the source of pollution and suggested as a solution the extension of the Victoria water supply to the west side of the lake.

"We are in the situation where we say 'lake with habitation on it has some pollution and should not be used as a water supply,'" he said.

Alan Chalmers, vice-president of the Florence Lake Involvement Association, claimed the pollution problem started when a mobile home park was established in the area.

"We were told the sewage disposal fields of the park would be monitored continuously," he said. "As far as I'm concerned this has not been done."

Bill Thomas, senior officer in the B.C. Pollution Control Branch, said the branch is responsible for checking only one of five disposal fields. The four others are under the jurisdiction of the regional health board.

"We inspected the field operating under a BCCPC permit and found it was working properly," he said.

He said the fecal coliform count on the north end of the lake was high.

Sommet Rouge... a robust blend aged in the cask.

Carefully aged in oaken casks deep in the vaults of the winery, Sommet Rouge is a robust blend of rare French Hybrid grapes, carefully nurtured in the sun-drenched Okanagan Valley, and specially imported premium Californian grapes.

The result...a dry red wine of superior taste and bouquet to grace even the most elaborate table. Sommet Rouge. The Canadian wine with an imported taste.

How Many People?

The British Columbia vital statistics report for 1972, the most recent year available, was published last week. Among its pages and pages of statistics on the births, deaths, marriages and divorces which took place that year is the one which probably will be of most interest — the population of the province increased by three per cent to 2.25 million. Safely assuming the same rate of increase in the two years since, B.C. now has almost 2.4 million people.

The fact that our population is increasing at about twice the national rate — three per cent a year means the population will double in just 23 years — has only recently been cause for concern, even alarm. Until now, more people meant a bigger market, greater demand, more jobs — an ever-expanding economy.

In fact, B.C. absorbed bigger population increases in the mid-1960s (both in actual numbers and percentages) than are occurring now, with few apparent ill effects, although that was a period of prosperous boomtime. Nowadays, with the economy in a simultaneous inflation-recession, people are starting to ask questions about how big a population B.C. should have.

Vancouver mayor Art Phillips urged a much tougher immigration policy. "Canada doesn't need more people," he said. According to him, 45 per cent of new arrivals in his city come directly from outside Canada.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson in January said Ottawa should "channel" immigrants away from population centres like Vancouver, or else provide special cash aid to help B.C. house newcomers.

Human Resources Minister Norman Levi, who proudly unveiled Mincome 2½ years ago and said he didn't care how many elderly non-British Columbians, even foreigners, flocked to the province to take advantage of the guaranteed $200 a month income, last April was forced to institute a five-year residency requirement.

The message apparently hasn't filtered through to all provincial government departments. The travel industry department still sends out to prospective residents and tourists copies of a pamphlet entitled: "Beautiful B.C., the ideal place to live, play and prosper."

It describes the province thus: "Blessed with the bounties of nature and the favors of the elements, B.C. has become one of the world's great new areas of industrial opportunities and recreational enjoyment." The Okanagan is mentioned in a glowing word-picture as the province's "cornucopia ... overflowing valleys of plenty ..."

Contrast that with the warning from land commission chairman William Lane that, as those glowing words were published, the province was losing 15,000 acres of good farmland a year, in a province where only three per cent of the total land is cultivable.

More examples of this governmental schizophrenia — Premier Dave Barrett eagerly seeks out new industries, a steel mill, an oil refinery, automobile assembly plants, boxcar factories, bus-building firms. He wants to diversify the province's present single-track economy based on exports of raw natural resources, a worthy goal perhaps. But all these will draw even more people to the province.

In this year of heightened concern over immigration and population growth, it would be a very good time for the provincial government to sit down and formulate its own policy on how many people there should be in B.C. and how it is going to prepare for them.

Pensioner Power

A stunningly simple but diabolical idea for coping with runaway inflation and all the annoying strikes and lockouts that presently dot the Canadian economy like smallpox has been proposed by a Toronto senior citizen. In a letter to the editor of an eastern newspaper, Mr. D. Turnbull wants to know what he can do to protest the labor-management malaise that has so many marching picket lines nowadays.

"With living expenses going up all the time, I'm finding it increasingly difficult to make ends meet. I note, however, that others around me are getting fat increases in earnings by striking or threatening to strike. I, too, would like to get on the bandwagon and stick somebody for more money.

"I'm still able-bodied enough to walk a picket line, or carry a placard ... I have plenty of time to attend protest meetings, bargaining sessions or study sessions (whatever they are). And I'm not so old that I can't learn to work to rule (whatever that means)."

The possibilities are considerable, especially in a city like Victoria, supposedly Canada's retirement capital with twice the national average of people over 65. What if even a few of the senior citizens turfed out of their activity centre because of the current CUPE contretemps decided to organize?

Exchanged their bingo cards for picket signs, so to speak, and marched into the mayor's office and union headquarters and staged a sit-in? Or demanded their Mincome cheques in pennies until Human Resources Minister Norman Levi agreed to a cost of living increase?

Perhaps it's time that Canada's senior citizens, who grew up in an era when children were told to mind their manners and be polite, got tough. There's red, black and student power — why not pensioner power?

NORMAN GIDNEY

Needed—More Candor in Gov't

A year and a half ago, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald gave some free advice to his cabinet colleagues. He said they should "bare their souls a little more" when asked questions in the legislature by opposition members. "I think we've got to be careful to give the whole truth to answers to questions, and not spare too much. It's good parliamentary tactics to give an opposition MLA the answer to question B when he's asked question A. But in time it creates some bad feelings, and I think we should bare our souls a little more than we've been doing — all of us as ministers."

The advice was given a few days after an uproar in the legislature over charges by a Socond MLA that Transport and Communications Minister Robert Strachan had lied when he told the house he had not commissioned a management study by B.C. Ferries. An all-party committee of MLAs ruled — by a strictly partisan 6-4 vote — that there was no evidence he had deliberately lied. The minority on the committee said that at the very least he had misled the legislature.

Credibility Questioned

One would have thought the whole messy business would have been an object lesson to the government.

But a few months later, the famous chicken and egg war blew up in the legislature with Liberals this time accusing Premier Dave Barrett of lying. Sworn affidavits were introduced in which egg marketing board officials claimed Barrett told them he would "kick the crap" out of them if they didn't lower egg board fines against a northern producer.

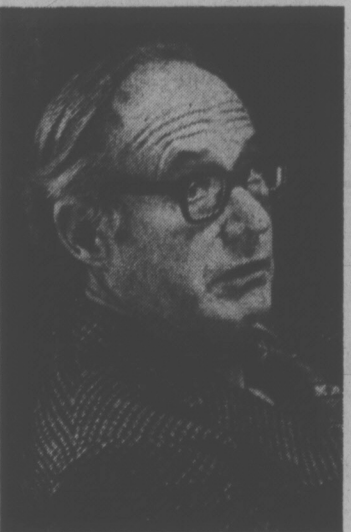

The premier steadfastly denied ordering anything to be done, but a supreme court judge decided in a subsequent court case brought by the egg board against the egg producer in question that the premier did interfere, although he had no legal authority to do so.

Now two other cabinet ministers, Lands and Forests Minister Robert Williams and Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, find themselves in the soup over essentially the same issue. Their credibility has been impugned.

Williams has been accused of misleading the legislature concerning a stack of secret or confidential memoranda on Columbia River project cost reallocation — specifically when he first saw the memoranda.

Nicolson was charged with misleading the house over two different figures he gave for the cost of the Casa Loma housing project in Burnaby, and concerning other details. First he said the cost was $3.2 million, then admitted that a figure of $3.5 million leaked later to the press was correct, explaining the discrepancy was due to building alterations, administration costs and interest charges.

... free advice to cabinet

The foregoing is not to suggest there is some organized conspiracy among B.C. cabinet ministers to deceive the opposition in the legislature and the public at large. It merely serves to illustrate the trap some politicians have fallen into.

They're in the business of politics, which to a large extent consists of maintaining power by confusing and discrediting their opponents, throwing dust in their eyes, keeping them off balance.

Some cabinet ministers apparently consider giving straight answers to straight questions posed by opposition MLAs or the press a near-treasonous betrayal of party. Almost as bad is admitting you don't know.

(This seems to be the reason Nicolson got all tangled up.

After 10 days of fumbling and giving apparently contradictory statements on the Casa Loma controversy, he finally admitted earlier this week that he had to confess he didn't fully understand the complexities of mortgage financing. Why didn't he say so much earlier? He might have come off as a trifle thick-headed for a minister of housing, but it would have saved him a lot of grief later on.)

The specifics of the examples above are all fairly esoteric. Who cares when a minister actually took possession of a batch of memoranda? What does it matter whether or not a minister actually did personally initiate a management study or not?

What is important is the principle that what a cabinet minister says can be taken at face value, that the minister is speaking the truth so far as he knows, that the minister is not deliberately misleading fellow legislators.

Grave Charge

In other parliaments, ministers have been forced to resign, not because of their personal peccadilloes or bungled policies, but because they deliberately lied to their peers.

Accusing a minister of deliberately lying is a very grave matter. The legislature is a pretty wild place at times and the charge of lying has been lately applied fairly freely by opposition members. Some of the charges have little foundation, but equally others wouldn't have been made without some justification.

It's an exceedingly fine distinction, whether someone "deliberately" lied or misled, or was only "confused" in his own mind as to the questions asked, or was playing a political game of obfuscation. Some members of the B.C. cabinet walk closer to the dividing line than others.

But it should be remembered that credibility is the most important asset of any democratically-elected government. If the public does not believe its elected leaders, no government can govern for long. It's time the attorney-general dusted off his remarks and delivered them again.

Reduce Spending

The rash of strikes now being suffered, which is likely to get worse, is the symptom of a disease, the disease called galloping inflation.

During the economic depression of the 1930s, governments for the first time adopted the idea of stimulating the economy by deficit financing, that is spending more than taxation brought in. The intention was to create a surplus when the economy recovered to balance the budget over a period of years.

However, during the last 25 years a surplus has been created for two or three years only so that now it is the regular practice to have budget deficits of one billion dollars as the Canadian government now proposes. This means, particularly in an economy hardly growing, that a billion paper dollars have to be created out of nothing, throwing fuel in the fires of inflation.

The government in Ottawa well knows this but like all governments in the so-called democratic world they also know that to start reducing the budget deficit year by year, a process called deflation, would cause some hardships, causing them to be rejected by the voters; hence the continued inflation and strikes which will become serious social unrest.

It is up to the voters to stop passing the buck, blaming the government and start demanding reductions in spending. — H. S. Thullier, 2424 Beach Drive.

Ethics of Strikes

Following my letter critical of CUPE's ethics and the harm I believe they have done to the labor movement, I had occasion to talk with Frank Preston, a CUPE leader and negotiator. At my invitation he presented himself and CUPE's position from the pulpit of our church last Sunday. His warmth and intelligence came across well. He responded to all questions put to him, accepted without rancor the statements of those critical of CUPE.

I think we gained some useful information from Mr. Preston, particularly as regards CUPE's interpretations and feeling responses to the municipalities' actions. We also received first hand information on the CUPE proposals for settlement.

Both Mr. Preston and myself are in agreement that no job in government ought to be at an income level little better than poverty, and that more levelling off of all incomes ought to occur, but there was little agreement as to how best to accomplish this.

Basic to my first letter were the ethical implications of a generalized strike by public employees against the public. These were not answered.

Quite aside from the possibility that the strike as an effective union tool may have totally outlived its usefulness, there remains the possibility that it could at least have selectively applied in the present situation in such a manner as to have pointed up union needs, eliciting community support and sympathy, while not punishing those totally at the mercy of municipalities and unions.

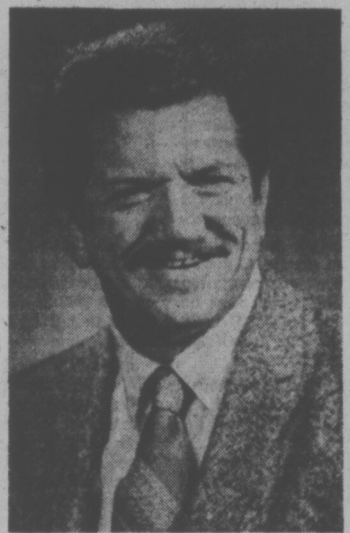

In my judgment there can be no justifying a strike which closes the venerable disease clinic when we are faced with an epidemic of V.D., or closing the family planning clinic in the face of a population explosion, or closing garbage disposal in the face of an increasingly polluted environment, or closing our schools and depriving our children of their rights and needs to a quality education, or displacing senior citizens' activities, cerebral palsy clinics, mental health centres, etc. etc.

In the absence of an atmosphere of genuine good will in which negotiations can be successfully concluded, such generalized strikes — and lockouts — of essential public services must be denied. Specific strikes of very limited duration and against circumscribed objectives alone can be tolerated. In our present atmosphere of adversary proceedings, compulsory arbitration and binding settlement must be affected. Any government that fails to move in the direction of protecting the community while at the same time working to achieve equity for the labor movement, does not serve the people. Such government, whether socialist, liberal or conservative, should be replaced.

I mean my criticism of CUPE and the other trade unions to be friendly and constructive, but firm in ethical considerations.

In that same spirit I say to the municipalities: there is no possible excuse for the long delay between the time CUPE presented a proposal and it was rejected. I do not criticize the rejection of what I consider to be an ill-advised and totally unrealistic proposal by CUPE, but I find the municipalities' lame excuse for the delay to be merely punitive. Nor can there be any excusing of the gratuitous insult to CUPE which Mayor Peter Polten's holiday in Hawaii at this time constitutes.

... strikes should be limited

That is to say, there can be no excusing unless we take the extraordinary step of terminating all power plays by both sides, restoring all essential services, lifting the lockout and going at negotiations every day with equity as the goal. Openness of information to the people should also be integral to the negotiations, as should an understanding by the people that no settlement can please everyone. But if equity be our goal and good will our medium, we shall have won a great victory for human-kind. — Rev. Richard J. Norsworthy, Minister, Unitarian Church, Victoria.

For Public Safety

I am alarmed about the stories in the newspaper reporting the case of the 13-year-old boy who murdered a store employee in Vancouver and in turn received only a suspended sentence from the court. What alarms me particularly is that a boy who is obviously mentally ill or in some way does not recognize the norms of our society is now permitted to walk the streets to repeat his crime. For all I know, I or someone I love could be the next victim. I feel it is the first duty of our system of justice to protect members of society from individuals such as this. Their age or mitigating circumstances are in the first case irrelevant.

Do not misunderstand my alarm as a cry for revenge, or an eye-for-an-eye retribution. I simply want to be safe. — F. F. Ernst, 305 Moss Street.

Open Schools

Where is the justice of this ridiculous CUPE strike?

Some schools are open only one hour per day for children to gather homework to turn in for the following day. For this, teachers are being paid a full month's salary — and mothers are sitting with the children trying to help them with their studies.

During regular school days, when teachers have problems with the children, the teacher contacts the parent suggesting they are not babysitters. Well, parents are not teachers and they are not being paid as such!

Most mothers work. Single mothers have to work! They simply don't have the time to sit every night for two hours doing what the teachers are paid to do.

Now the children aren't even allowed to use the school washrooms as there are no janitors! Mothers are now coping with washing clothes that ordinarily could be worn the next day, because of unnecessary "accidents." More work for mother! This isn't the fault of the child. When you have to go you have to go! Have you ever seen a child who has to go to the washroom and isn't allowed? This is painful and embarrassing. This has happened to a number of children.

I think something should be done to have the schools re-opened. Return to the normal school hours. The children shouldn't suffer. Their education shouldn't suffer.

On days such as we've had lately, the thermometer reaches a comfortable 68 degrees. This is by no means cold! Most children are dressed warmly. Open up the washrooms! Have a monitor on duty, if necessary, to ensure the washrooms aren't abused.

But let the children return to school!!! — An irate, furious, single parent.

Racism and Sexism

I have just read Jack Scott's column — a "send-up" on bank's apparent policy to court women customers by means of puerile flattery and infantile and demeaning gimmicks. A longtime reader of Jack Scott, I have differed with some, but enjoyed many of his columns. His writing is usually perceptive, fair, compassionate ... and funny.

This column was none of those. His usually skillful pen slipped. He failed to lampoon banks, and succeeded only in shafting women. For the sake of the other "out-groups" in our WASP male-centred society, I hope it does not herald a series on specialized banks.

One with decor and staff tricked out in feathers and beads, with signs plugging wampum at nine per cent for native Indian people; or watermelon pink banks with minstrel-show tellers all rolling their eyes and shuffling, for black people. Or banks with monthly statements issued in fortune cookies for Chinese Canadians ... or — enough! I'm sure you get the point. Racism and sexism are equally offensive and unjust. — Alice Ages, 553 New Royal Avenue.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of March 7, 1915

The big auditorium of the Dominion theatre was crowded when Reverend J. B. Wicker preached on the topic: "Can the teachings of Jesus be practised by the business world of today?" "He took his text from Timothy: 'But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts which drown men in perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil.' He said business was not the adulteration of foods, the principle of adulteration on the label of a bottle of medicine which should be but was not inside. It was not the fraudulent promotion of such enterprises as the Dominion Trust company, the sale of shoddy boots to the army or the private citizen, it was not to be found in the sweat shops and departmental stores which ground out the very life of the employees.

Ottawa Asks Questions When Answers Needed

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — The trouble with the Trudeau government is that it is much better at describing problems than prescribing solutions. The prime minister and his colleagues are forever telling us what is wrong with Canada—and then asking what we want them to do about it.

If this were clearly part of the process of participatory democracy in which government provides information, invites discussion and responds with legislation, it would be acceptable.

Controversy and confrontation are a necessary part of politics, but if they are to be constructive rather than destructive, they should give rise to consensus, even if it is only temporary, on which action can be based.

But when government is always talking about problems and seldom about solutions, one is tempted to become cynical. Perhaps all the discussion is merely a substitute for action. Or possibly, too much research and debate leads only to confusion and milky compromise which satisfies no one.

● Welfare minister Marc Lalonde has carefully described the failure of the welfare state to bring social justice to Canada. Despite social security payments and the progressive income tax, the rich have been getting richer faster than the poor have been improving their position.

So where do we go from the welfare state? To a massive guaranteed income program? To guaranteed employment with high minimum wage levels? To compulsory profit sharing in industry? To radical reform of the tax system?

Lalonde says it is really up to us. He is trying to discover what kind of income redistribution "would be consistent with the community's values."

● Tabling his Green Paper, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said decisions about immigration policy are critical to the fabric of the Canadian community, and went on: "The Canada of tomorrow will be shaped by the decisions Canadians make about the direction immigration policies should follow."

Decisions which Canadians are going to make: You and me, not those fellows in Ottawa.

● Finance Minister John Turner, in his fall budget, went to the root cause of inflation when he said: "The sum total of all the claims on the nation's resources—however justified they may seem to be—clearly exceeds what is in fact available to be shared."

The problem, he continued, is "to find a better way of reconciling the competing interests of the various groups which make up our society."

Turner has subsequently held private talks with business, labor and other groups, apparently asking what they think the solution may be. What do business and labor think the government ought to do about inflation? What ideas do consumers have about a better way to reconcile their interests with those of others in the community?

● Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, for his part, tells us we have a problem with law and order in our society. "Violence is coming to our land," he said recently in Montreal. "Not the kind of confrontation we knew in the Sixties, but a more pervasive, less organized, less collective, individual violence."

If he is talking about crime, we've known about that for years. What we don't know is what the prime minister intends to do about it.

Is "willing to go along with what is probably the opinion of the majority of Canadians," favoring the restoration of capital punishment and the imposition of longer and tougher jail sentences?

Or does he think it wiser to "decriminalize" society by removing from the statute books, for example, laws which utterly fail to prevent people from taking drugs, gambling and frequenting prostitutes and ensure only that the revenues go to organized crime?

Of course, Trudeau may not have been thinking only about crime, but also about those other disturbing trends which are said to indicate a breakdown of society—vandalism, terrorism, political and industrial extremism.

But if it is true that Canadians have lost confidence in the sense of values and beliefs which in the past constrained private behavior and sanctioned public authority, it is the prime minister's job, above all, to seek to articulate a new set of values and to support it with law.

Wringing of hands is not a substitute.

● Finally, we have Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who explains that in order to conserve energy in the long-term, we have to change the entire basis of our economy and, indeed, our social system.

"We will be devising and testing mechanisms that can bring about a phased transition from a society based, as we are today, on production and consumption to one based more on services, from an economy obsessed with quantity to one that places a premium on quality; from a society founded on competition to one based more on sharing and compassion," he says.

If the words are more than mere rhetoric, Macdonald is saying that the government has at last recognized the need to start to plan for a post-industrial society. That would be exciting if it were not for the depressing record of problems described and then ignored.

Industry could pay through salvage funds.

A Way to Clean Up Runaway Logs

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

As everybody who goes boating along the B.C. coast already knows, our waterways are clogged with drifting logs. Even as far north as Grenville Channel, skippers of big fishing boats refuse to travel at night for fear of having their hulls bashed in.

As for the smaller boats, you literally take your life in your hands if you dare to travel in the dark. In the daytime, you have to stay at the wheel all the time, keeping your eyes peeled lest you hear a sudden sickening crunch.

There is a Catch-22 involved in all this which explains the problem. It is not that the logs are left drifting because nobody wants them or because they are without value. Quite the reverse. They are worth plenty.

Under the present arrangement, anyone who salvages logs has to turn over roughly 50 per cent of the take to an outfit called Gulf Log Salvvage, a virtual monopoly set up by the forest industry. All salvaged logs have to be sold through Gulf Log, which means that the salvors themselves return half their profit to the forest companies.

According to Bill Smith, spokesman for a group called North West Log Salvors Association, the forest industry's share alone amounts to "quite a few million dollars a year."

Now the interesting part of all this is that if your boat happens to be damaged by a floating log and you think that maybe you would like to sue somebody, good luck. Even if there is a company's name stamped on the log, you are not going to get very far.

Upon inquiring whether the log that wrecked your boat still belongs to the company in question, you will find yourself on an endless merry-go-round. It is almost impossible to pin them down.

"Oh, we sold that log ages ago," is the usual reply. And if you go to whomever the log was supposed to have been sold, they in turn will say they sold it, too. The buck passes swiftly.

Yet, if you pick up a log with the same company stamp on it, somebody will be on your back immediately, accusing you of theft. When it comes to damages relating to their own floating debris, the forest companies just don't want to know. But when it comes to profits derived from that same debris, they want to know immediately.

The North West Log Salvors Association has an interesting proposal. So far, they have collected 10,000 signatures on a petition asking both the provincial and federal governments to change the current ridiculous situation.

Their idea, according to Bill Smith, is to ask that the money collected by the forest industry be used to pay for the clean-up of our waterways and beaches. The gist of the proposal is for the governments to say to the forest industry, "You guys made this mess. So you guys pay for cleaning it up."

If the millions of bucks now collected by Gulf Log Salvage on behalf of the forestry companies were channeled into clean-up operations, the coastal waters would quickly be cleared, and the Catch-22 that presently prevents log salvors from doing a real clean-up job would be untagged.

It is the best proposal along these lines I have heard yet. It ought to be implemented.

TEST OF WILLS SHAKES CATHOLICISM

By KENNETH BRIGGS
New York Times

Less than two months after Pope Paul VI formally declared 1975 a "holy year" whose theme is reconciliation, the Vatican has again attacked one of the church's most powerful critics in a manner not likely to encourage dialogue between the hierarchy and some of Roman Catholicism's more nonconformist elements.

Essentially repeating previous charges, the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith recently reprimanded the Swiss theologian and priest, the Rev. Dr. Hans Kung, for views considered contrary to Catholic doctrine. Though harsh in its rejection of some of Father Kung's ideas—particularly those that deny papal infallibility—the congregation's declaration stopped short of punitive action, except to admonish him not to teach his perspective.

A statement made simultaneously by the Conference of

POPE PAUL VI challenged

German Bishops added to the ambivalence. It explicitly refrained from asking Father Kung to recant and tacitly approved of continued examination of basic theological issues such as he has explored.

The theologian, known as a provocative reformer, teaches at Tubingen University, West Germany. He has touched perhaps the most sensitive issue in the church, the nature and exercise of institutional authority. By rejecting the doctrine that the Pope cannot make mistakes on matters of "faith and morals," arguing that ecclesiastical authorities should be subject to more democratic checks and balances, and insisting that any baptized Christian can perform the most sacred functions of holy communion, Father Kung has raised the most potentially threatening questions of power that could confront the Vatican.

The fact that the church did not respond more strongly to Father Kung is a reflection of both the times and the theologian's personality. Whether or not such a defence against dissent is prudent during a year when the Pope has appealed for healing, the case has become largely a test of will.

Rome was further hamstrung by the character and reputation of the world-renowned theologian. He is one of the few Catholic thinkers who have gained a wide following in and out of the church and the Vatican became reluctant to make a martyr of him.

Father Kung's latest book

"On Being a Christian," published last fall, ranks second on the West German best-seller lists. Many churchmen who cannot accept Father Kung's views but nevertheless see him as a valued spokesman on many subjects of faith feel distaste at creating unnecessary hostility to a priest of such stature.

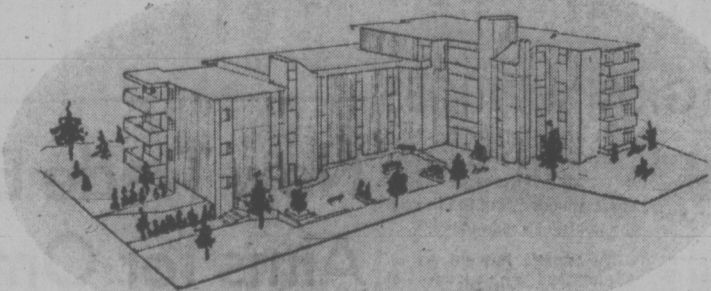

The Kung affair provides one test of how far the church will go to foster the spirit of openness and individuality engendered by the internal reforms of the last decade. Vatican II was founded on tolerance and goodwill, but recently the church has, understandably perhaps, experienced a climate of consolidation. Under persistent pressure to accommodate to challenges from within and without, Roman Catholicism has undergone severe strains and uncertainties. An attack on the teaching legitimacy of the church's highest office appeals for a response, under these circumstances.

By not taking a harder line, however, the Vatican left the impression with some that it had hedged too much. "If they are going to get back into the anathema business," said one priest, in jest, "then they shouldn't do it half-way."

Vietnam as Disneyland

The administration has sent a group of Congressmen to Vietnam to discover that American policy there is sound.

It is a routine that was developed in the early Johnson period. Whenever, as now, Congress threatens to balk at financing our various wars out there the administration transports a group of them to Vietnam to admire our policy successes on the scene and bring back a rosy report.

The group never saw the Asian Vietnam, of course. Nobody very important has been allowed there since 1967.

In that year the government realized that the whole thing might collapse at any moment, and naturally it did not want to lose a lot of Congressmen who had been sent there to see how splendidly the policy was succeeding.

The National Security Council decided it would be safer to demonstrate our Vietnam successes in a less troubled setting. It called in the creators of Disneyland and had them build a brand new Vietnam on the outskirts of Rockville, Md.

This is where Congressmen signed on for administration tours go when their plane leaves Washington. They fly to New York, spend two days in one of the Kennedy Airport holding patterns, and then land at Rockville where briefings begin immediately.

The man who plays President Thieu at the Rockville Vietnam is a retired actor named Slim Sensenbaugh, and I asked him recently what sort of policy successes he would show the visiting Congressmen.

"It'll be a little different from the old days when we used to get Bob McNamara and Gen. Max Taylor up here in Rockville," Sensenbaugh explained. "In those days we gave them a simple rosy-outlook briefing. All they wanted was enough to be able to go back and say there was light at the end of the tunnel if we just had the patience to spend a few billion more dollars."

Nowadays the situation is different. There is no hope that Congress will send billions to Vietnam this year. Prof. Kissinger will be happy if he can get just a few hundred millions.

"For this kind of thing," Sensenbaugh said, "we'll show them evidence that the other side is determined to humiliate the United States by crushing us, but that we can hang on if Congress will come across with a trifling three or four hundred million."

I asked to see some of the Rockville Vietnam's devices for persuading Congressmen, and Sensenbaugh took me to a large well-lit room full of writers.

"These writers are mostly old fiction writers from dead magazines—'Collier's,' the 'Saturday Evening Post,' 'Life,'" Sensenbaugh said.

"Right now they are all busy composing captured enemy documents that will prove to Congressmen that the Communists believe the United States is too cheap to keep up the good fight."

He showed me a freshly inked captured enemy document. "Top secret from Hanoi," it said. "Unless the Congress of the United States gives Professor Kissinger $300 million right away, Communism will triumph by springtime."

A writer handed Sensenbaugh a draft and asked what he thought of it. It said, "Top secret and eyes only to our brave captured soldiers—if Kissinger gets the $300 million from Congress it's curtains for Communism in Asia."

"A little obvious for my taste," said Sensenbaugh, "but a Congressman should love it."

I asked Sensenbaugh if visiting Congressmen ever asked to see some captured enemies. "We always keep a large cast of captured enemy soldiers in case they do," he said, showing me a compound where a large cast was practicing looking captured and hostile.

"It's the chorus of the Metropolitan Opera," he said. "They always need the money."

Don't visiting Congressmen ever object to being sent to the Rockville Vietnam? The only man who ever objected, said Sensenbaugh, was George Romney. He came back from Rockville saying he had been "brainwashed" and everyone became so angry that Romney had to stop running for President.

"He had broken the rules of the game," I suggested.

It wasn't that," said Sensenbaugh. "Everybody saw Romney was a dangerous man when he admitted we brainwashed him here at Rockville. A guy like that could have gotten the whole country trapped in the quagmire of reality. What's more, Congressmen might have had to start going to the real Vietnam again. We could lose a lot of Congressmen that way."

DOMAN NET DOWN—UPSWING SEEN

Doman Industries Ltd. had net earnings of $246,000 or seven cents a common share in the three months ended Jan. 31, president H. S. Doman reported Thursday.

The earnings compared with $941,000 or 29 cents a share for the same period last year and with $85,000 or three cents a share in the three months ended Oct. 31, 1974.

Sales in the latest period were $7,576,000 compared with $10,638,000 last year and $7,896,000 in the Oct. 31 quarter.

Doman said that the lumber market has started to turn upward from its low of 1974 and falling interest rates in U.S. should improve the outlook. He said the company's sawmill at Chemainus now is producing on one shift a day, the Vancouver plant has switched from making pulp chips to cutting lumber two shifts a day and the main plant at Ladysmith is on three shifts.

Construction has started on the new sawmill at Cowichan. This will add 125 million board feet annually to company production and bring the total to 360 million board feet.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. reports net earnings of $3,466,000 or 48 cents a share for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1974, compared with $3,348,000 or 46 cents a share for 1973.

Neonex is an industrial corporation serving consumer and shelter products and service industries with manufacturing, sales and service locations in Canada and the United States.

doubled to $27 million while sales increased to $126,480,000 from $85,229,000 in 1973.

J. H. Salter, president, said average prices in 1974 for lead and zinc concentrates increased significantly over 1973. He said strong demand in world markets made it possible to avoid a reduction in sales during a four-month strike affecting one of the company's major customers.

George Weston

George Weston Ltd. reports 1974 income from operations before extraordinary items of $40,179,000 or $3.55 a share.

The 1974 results, including sales and other income of $4.7 billion, are on a fully consolidated basis including Loblaw Cos. Ltd. Comparative figures for 1973 are not available — due to the inclusion of Loblaw. For comparative purposes, the results of Weston including Loblaw on the previous basis—dividends received from Loblaw—indicate an increase in income from operations to $43.7 million or $3.88 a share from $34.6 million and $3.06 in 1973.

Fully consolidated earnings after extraordinary item in 1974 were $42,058,000 or $3.73 a share.

Loblaw Cos. Ltd. reported income from operations for the 52 weeks ended Dec. 28 of $1.1 million. Including extraordinary items, net income amounted to $4 million or 26 cents a share.

Sales of $3.1 billion established a new record, the company said.

Home Oil

Home Oil Co. Ltd. reports net earnings before extraordinary items of $17,418,000 of $2.14 per share for the year ended Dec. 31, 1974.

The earnings compare with $14,512,000 or $1.90 per share for the previous year.

The company said the increase was attributable to higher revenues from increased crude oil and natural gas prices.

After an extraordinary loss on sale of investments of $3,902,000, net earnings amounted to $13,516,000, down from $14,217,000 the year before.

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. reports earnings of $36,894,000 or $8.17 a share for 1974, compared with $20,601,000 or $4.56 a share for 1973.

The company's preliminary report says 1974 taxes

Chemalloy Minerals To Receiver

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Free Press says Chemalloy Minerals Ltd., the majority shareholder in Tantalum Mining Corp. of Canada Ltd. operations at Bernic Lake, Man., has been placed in receivership.

The newspaper quotes David T. Winchell, president of Chemalloy, as saying in a telephone interview from New York City that the company has been placed in receivership but has not gone bankrupt.

"I shall be in a position later to explain what has happened in detail," Winchell is quoted. "All I can do is confirm that the company has been placed in receivership."

Winchell adds, however, that the Bernic Lake mine "is fighting fit and very, very healthy."

The Manitoba government, through the Manitoba Development Corp., has invested $1.42 million in Tantalum and holds a 25-per-cent interest in the company.

Falconbridge Trading Halted

TORONTO (CP) — A disagreement with the Ontario government over the regulations has resulted in a trading halt in shares of Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. on the Toronto Stock Exchange. The company requested the halt at the opening of trading Thursday after learning Wednesday that an amended regulation to the Ontario Mining Tax Act would stand. The company said the amendment represented an additional tax levy of about $8 million for the period April 9 to Dec. 31, 1974.

Sex and MPs: Too Little, Too Late

LONDON — A 48-year-old bachelor member of Parliament is expressing serious concern about the amount of sex enjoyed by his colleagues. He says they are getting too little of it.

So Charles Irving is about to launch a campaign to unionize Commons members to fight for shorter hours.

"More is better," he says, "are seriously sex-starved. They don't like to come out and say it in public, but they will admit it privately."

"I asked one young MP what the hours did to his sex life with his wife," Irving said.

"He told me: 'I'm sex-starved. But when I get home I'm too tired to do anything about it.'"

Irving has discovered that most married MPs have abandoned the never-on-Sunday rule "because Sunday is about the only day possible."

"Apart from the havoc it plays with marriages—we in the Commons have one of the highest divorce rates in the country—it interferes with their efficiency in the House," he added.

VATICAN CITY—Prime Minister Trudeau called on Pope Paul today for talks which were also attended by Vatican Foreign Minister Monsignor Agostino Casaroli.

Canadian sources said they expected the conversations to cover a wide range of international problems, including the activities of the United Nations and the Mideast situation with special emphasis on the question of Jerusalem.

VANCOUVER — Michael Boyd, 24, has a drug essay to write—orders of provincial judge B. B. Wong. The 1,000-word effort was requested Thursday after Boyd pleaded guilty to possession of a quantity of hashish. He told the court that he had been listening on the radio just before police checked him at a Gastown beer parlor and understood that hashish and marijuana had been legalized. "Before I sentence you March 20, I want you to write me a 1,000-word essay on present legislation covering these drugs and the discussions on them underway by the senate committee," said the judge.

leased from prison after doctors found a lung lesion that may be cancerous, says he now must "find out if I have a life ahead of me."

LONDON — Eton College, Britain's most exclusive school, may soon set its pupils sweeping floors and washing dishes to cut expenses. Headmaster Michael McCrum said Thursday he estimated that help from the boys could save as much as $57,000 a year in labor costs.

BALTIMORE — J. Walter Jones, an Annapolis banker who was one of Spiro Agnew's closest friends and political fund-raisers, was indicted here Thursday by a federal grand jury and accused of extorting an illegal contribution for the 1972 Nixon-Agnew campaign, from the Singer Co. with the promise that it would receive favorable treatment in the handling of the company's federal contracts.

TAIPEI — A Japanese soldier who waited for 31 years in Indonesian jungles for the Second World War to end remarried his former wife Thursday. He gave her second husband $2,500 and a water buffalo as compensation. Lee Kuang-Huei, found in a hut on the island of Morotai in January, had never received the Japanese surrender order.

THEY'RE OUT OF IT!

OTTAWA—The experts may not be able to tell, but Senator Lionel Choquette thinks he can spot people who are high on marijuana.

He told fellow senators considering proposed new cannabis legislation in committee that he sees them on the Sparks Street Mall here every summer "in their bare dirty feet and watery eyes."

"They'll hold hands and don't look as if they know they are in some other world or on the Mall," the Ottawa senator reported.

Dr. Carleton Turner of the University of Mississippi had testified that there is "no scientific way" to tell by observing a person whether he is under the influence of marijuana, a prescription drug or a mixture of drugs.

Strait Sailors Can Do Without Drifter

As in the past six years, Vancouver Island sailors will be well represented in the Strait of Georgia classic on March 28.

Officials at the West Vancouver Yacht Club are hoping the March winds will prevent a repeat of last year's 'drifter.' In fact, Jim Page is predicting healthy 18-22 knot winds on the first leg of the 114-mile race.

This year's course is from Dundarave in West Vancouver to Sisters Islands (52 miles), another 30 miles to Entrance Island, a 13-mile leg to White Islet and another 12 miles home to Point Atkinson.

To help those from out-of-town the WVYC has promised to moor any boats that go to Fishermen's Cove the weekend before the race although there will have to be rafting in the channels because of the congestion.

Among Vancouver Island skippers who are looking forward to this race is Don Gladman of the Maple Bay Yacht Club. His Paceship 26 Calypso is truly a family boat. Don races her with his wife Eva and their two sons, Dale, 21, and Duncan, 10.

It appears to be a winning combination. Calypso has had a good working-up winter, having won all six of the races sailed in this year's 10-race series.

She'll be out again for this Sunday's two races, slated for 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club holds its annual 12-mile D'Arcy Shoals race on Sunday. Start time is 9 a.m.

Willi Fahning's Dominique was first over-all, edging out R.N. Baldwin's Summersalt, Bill Martin's Georgia Girl, Steve Meredith's Impasse, Cam Thomson's Cal-Lorri, John Parks' Bon Homie, Bent Jespersen's Limford, Jack Patterson's Hustler, Daryl Foster's Tzongua and John Barker's Interlude.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association has two races scheduled for Sunday in waters off Oak Bay Marina. Start times are 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

It was a real duster for boats in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's 16-mile on Sunday.

Jan Hulbers, whose Sea Spell won the race and cinched top spot in the long-distance series in the International Offshore Rule section, reports winds off the golf links were blowing 40 knots and up, whipping up huge waves that bounced even the much larger boats around like corals.

Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer placed second in the race, being followed by Steve Merriman's Vandal II, Jack Woodward's Puff II, Murray Farmer's Seeker, Bill Clark's Thunder III and George Stricker's Service.

Mike Weir's Flyer Brig was the first Pacific Handicap Racing Feet boat, edging out John Ellis' Isis, Sven Donaldson's Tatooosh and Don North's Lucky Duck.

Seeker and Service were second and third winners in the IOR series. Flyer Brig won the PHRF series, Tatooosh and Lucky Duck placing second and third.

***

Paul Jensen's Dania was first keel boat over-all in Sunday's racing by the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association. She beat out Bill Jackson's Black Hawk and Dennis Reilly's Green Teal.

CFSA is taking a weekend off to work on their boats but members are expected to turn out in force Saturday for a film and lecture on sailcutting and making at the clubhouse.

The Victoria Canoe Club has organized a trip around Esquimalt Harbor on Sunday, beginning at 11 a.m.

A RECOGNITION RITE FOR '36 MEDALLISTS

WATERLOO, Ont. — Two basketball veterans from Vancouver Island will be sharing in a special award presentation during this weekend's national intercollegiate basketball tournament.

Selected to receive the annual Merit Award presented by the National Association of Basketball Referees are members of the Canadian Olympic basketball team that finished second to the United States at the 1936 Games in Berlin.

Art Chapman of Qualicum Beach and Doug Peden of Victoria, who bolstered the Windsor team that formed the nucleus of the 1936 squad, are scheduled to attend the presentation ceremony, which will be shown on the CBC network Sunday during a telecast the tournament's championship game, starting at 11 a.m.

Southern Island Waters Best for Salmon Fishing

Waters between Sooke and Oak Bay continue to provide fishermen with some of the best salmon catches on Vancouver Island.

Bill Richardson went against the trend at Sooke early last Sunday morning and landed a 27-pound chinook on a Tom Mack spoon just outside Whiffen Spit, where quite a few large fish seem to have been taken this winter.

Most of the Sooke chinooks, weighing well into the teens, have been taken exclusively on minnows in the vicinity of Secretary Island.

Returns in Beecher Bay have been scattered and a very early bite seems to be shaping up. King Smith, the first one on the water Wednesday, came back with three chinooks, weighing 9½, 8½ and six pounds. Late-rising fishermen, on the other hand, were skunked.

Strip, easily the most productive bait at Beecher, helped Don Alexander boat an 18½-pounder Tuesday.

Action has been slow along the kelp bed in Pedder Bay, but the odd chinook up to eight pounds is providing a little relief for the regulars.

Newt Large topped fishermen off the Victoria waterfront this week with a 14-pounder landed off the flagpole area of Beacon Hill Park. Success has dropped off slightly in the past week, but fairly good catches of chinooks averaging seven to eight pounds are still coming in from between Beacon Hill and Brothie Ledge.

Trial island waters are yielding chinooks up to 18 pounds. Hootches or strip, trolled close to the bottom, have been working best.

Matt Stephenson hauled in a 13-pounder along the Wall in Saanich Inlet, where most of the Salmon are coming in from Indian Bay and weigh from six to eight pounds.

In the vicinity of Bold Bluff, fishermen are landing limit catches of 12 to 14-pounders and Smith Bay, near Crofton, is producing excellent blueback returns along with the odd chinook on deeper lines.

Further up Island, Departure Bay fishermen are picking up a few chinooks and the blueback fishing off Five Fingers is fantastic.

Good returns of chinooks that tip the scales from eight to 15 pounds are starting to appear near Eoode and Rainy Bay at the mouth of Alberni Inlet.

Quathiaski Cove is yielding chinooks weighing well into the teens to moochers using herring and spincasters fishing off the Argonaut or Government wharves in Campbell River are experiencing slow but steady returns.

Kelsey Bay dock fishermen are landing "phenomenal" catches of blues and chinooks up to 30 pounds.

Steelheaders are doing far better on the southeastern coast of the Island than on either the midwest or northern coasts.

The lower reaches of the Koksilah River are producing small steelhead (five to seven pounds) and the Cowichan is yielding a larger fish in the vicinity of the Black Bridge.

Last weekend, the Nanaimo River gave up quite a few steelies from eight to 14 pounds near the mouth of Haslam Creek and the Englishman River is reported to be an excellent bet.

Other catches of steelhead have been made in the Oyster (but you have to reach the upper portions by snowmobile), Bear, Quinsam and Campbell Rivers.

The Gold and Salmon were in first-class shape as far as water goes this past weekend but the returns in both streams were unbelievably slow considering the number of anglers trying their luck.

But that's about par for the course this winter

BOWLER OF WEEK

Strong middle game of 354 carried Lyn Hickey to 783 triple and victory in 20th week of Times annual Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Competing in Monday Classic League at Cus's Bowl, Lyn sandwiched her 354 with 170 and 259 tallies to earn women's weekly fivepin award that qualifies her for Bowler-of-Year rollofs.

NHL Injury List Grows

Times New Services

Members of the medical profession almost saw more of the National Hockey League players than the fans did on Thursday.

Butch Goring of Los Angeles Kings underwent surgery early today for a facial injury suffered while the Kings were playing to a 2-2 tie with visiting New York Islanders in the only game of the night.

Goring suffered severe lacerations under his eye when he fell on the heel of the skate of New York's Dennis Potvin and isn't expected to play hockey for least a couple of weeks.

Elsewhere, defenceman Bob Stewart of California Seals underwent surgery Thursday for torn right knee ligaments and will be out of action for the remainder of the season. He was injured during Wednesday's 4-2 loss to Chicago Black Hawks.

Henri Richard, veteran centre and captain of the Montreal Canadiens, will undergo further examination of COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — A disappointed Toller Cranston saw his hopes of a world figure skating championship evaporate in the thin atmosphere of this 6,000-foot-high mountain resort Thursday night as a skater from the Soviet Union won the men's singles crown for the first time.

Cranston, a 25-year-old five-time Canadian champion from Toronto who has revolutionized men's skating with his ballet-like artistry on ice, was the last of 22 competitors to perform in the free-skating windup.

Even then, although he was in fourth place, he retained a mathematical chance of overtaking the three men who stood ahead of him.

He needed almost all 5.9s for both artistic impression and technical merit from the nine judges but he was not at his electrifying best in the warm air of the Broadmoor Arena. He received marks ranging from 5.6 to a perfect six for artistic impression from the Hungarian judge.

That wasn't enough and to Sergei Volkov, a 25-year-old Russian, who is not a particularly brilliant free-skater but had built up enough of a lead in the school figures to see him through.

Volkov was the same man who barely edged Cranston to take second place in the world championships in Munich a year ago. The 1974 winner, Jan Hoffman of East Germany, did not skate here because he is recovering from a major knee operation.

The silver medal was won by another Soviet skater, Vladimir Kovalev, who performed a triple loop and two triple salchows in a performance that was not overly exciting but was enough to move him ahead of John Curry of England.

Curry had been in second place after Wednesday's compulsory free skating but in the five-minute free skating finale he took a full minute before he did his first jump, then slipped on a triple salchow and missed one triple loop before landing another.

Fifth behind Cranston was Gordon McKellen Jr., the United States champion, sixth was Yuri Ovchinnikov of the Soviet Union, strongest free skater among the Russians, and sixth was Terry Kubicka of the U.S., who put on the most dynamic performance of the night.

Eighth place went to Ron Shaver, 23, of Cambridge, Ont., who skated through the whole competition with a groin injury that had forced him to miss the Canadian championships in Quebec City in January.

Bob Rubens, 22, whose home is in Dollard des Ormeaux, Que., but who skates out of the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club with Cranston, was 18th. He pulled off a triple toe loop but missed the takeoff on what was to have been a triple salchow.

There was better news for the many Canadians here in the women's singles as Lynn Nightingale, 18-year-old national champion from Ottawa, recovered from a poor round of school figures to put on a brilliant display in the compulsory free skating.

The performance moved Miss Nightingale up from 13th to seventh and left her with a chance to match or better her sixth-place finish in the 1974 championships.

Kim Alletson, 16-year-old silver medalist who skates out of Ottawa's Minto Skating Club with Lynn, received respectable marks for her short program and moved up one place to 13th.

Miss Nightingale, who had talked of retirement after her disappointing performance in the compulsory figures, said her success in the short program had prompted a change of mind.

Dianne De Leeuw, a dual citizen who represents The Netherlands although she was born in the U.S. and trains in Los Angeles, is a virtual shooin for the women's title.

Christine Errath of East Germany, the defending champion, was in fourth place after the short program but had almost no chance of catching the leader.

Those who watched Cranston felt he was skating at less than his usual speed. His program included only one triple jump—a salchow—and it was slightly flawed because his hand touched the ice as he came down.

However, as at Munich last year, he emerged as the No. 1 free skater, the result of a third-place standing in the compulsory short program and a second in the free skating.

Highest marks for the free-skating windup went to Kubicka, who displaced Cranston as the exciting skater in the competition.

Mariners Have Aeros' Number

SAN DIEGO—San Diego Mariners continued to be a major stumbling block for Western Division-leading Houston Aeros by posting a 7-4 World Hockey Association victory over the visiting Texans on Thursday night.

Mariners, who occupy fourth spot in the same division, now have beaten Aeros five out of six times this season.

Meanwhile, league president Dennis Murphy announced the WHA's most valuable player trophy is going to be renamed the Gordie Howe Cup, honoring the hockey great who is expected to retire after this season with the Aeros.

Chuck Doesn't Spray

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Chuck Courtney has long been noted as one of pro golf's premier scramblers, a master at the trouble shot.

But the chipper Courtney, last a winner in 1969 and a longtime struggler, didn't need to resort to his specialty in establishing the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Citrus open golf tournament. He had a 66 that could have been much better.

It came in the best tradition — a drive down the fairway, an approach dead on the flag. He missed only one green. He had the ball 12 feet or closer on 14 of the 18 holes.

"That's the closest I've ever hit it," said Courtney, a 12-year tour veteran. "That's as good as I've ever played. I couldn't want to hit the ball any better."

He missed a six-foot birdie putt. He missed an eight-foot birdie putt. He missed five from 10 feet. But it didn't bother him.

A pair of tour sophomores, Mark Hayes and Pat Fitz-Simons, the winner of the Los Angeles Open two weeks ago trailed the leader by one stroke at 67.

George Knudson of Toronto had a sub-par 35 on his front nine and parred the back for a 71. Danny Hallidson of Brandon, Man., and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg each shot a 75.

Arnold Palmer shot a 72.

Nanaimo Goes Two Up On Langley

By The Canadian Press

Nanaimo Clippers had a tough time in taking a one-game lead in their best-of-seven British Columbia Junior Hockey League quarter-final playoff series. Taking a two-game lead didn't prove nearly as difficult.

The Clippers bombed Langley Lords 11-2 Thursday to take a 2-0 series margin after a 4-3 victory the night before.

In other BCHL quarter-finals Thursday, Bellingham Blazers evened their series at 1-1 with Chilliwack Bruins while Merritt Centennials tied their series with Kelowna Buckaroos at one game each. Bellingham won 8-3, Merritt 7-1.

Jim Slater led Clippers with three goals while Wayne Larsen had two. Rod Guimont, Dale Ewasuk, Kim Hillkewich, Greg Norbratten, Leroy Heck and Brian Day scored a goal apiece.

Rick Robertson . . . he was lucky

Scramble for Jobs Pays Off for 29 From Jordan River

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

It was just three months ago that Rick Robertson was preparing to go to work on the night shift when the call came.

"There will be no further work at the Jordan River mine until further notice," he was told.

And that was that.

The mine was closed.

"It was a very unhappy time with the layoff coming like that, just before Christmas," he recalled today.

However, after six weeks without work and without income, he found a job in Victoria through Canada Manpower.

"I guess I was lucky," he said. "I was about to move to Calgary to try my luck there."

Robertson, 23, is one of 29 former Jordan River miners to find employment in B.C. since the December shutdown.

In all, 76 men were laid off when the mine closed, 63 in December and 13 in an earlier layoff.

Six moved out of B.C., 12 took retraining programs through Canada Manpower and the remaining 29 are still looking for work.

The job search is being co-ordinated by a temporary organization called Jordan River Manpower. The Sooke office, paid for by Canada Manpower, is run by Jack Burns, former Jordan River mine shift boss, assisted by Cliff Linn, another former Jordan River miner.

"We have been able to assist the men in a number of ways," Burns said.

"We find work for some, retraining for others and we have been able to collect about 20 per cent in the back wages owed when the mine closed. We are trying to collect the rest."

Jordan River Mines owed the men more than $60,000 when the mine closed and the company went into receivership. About $30,000 is still owing.

Burns said Jordan River Manpower is trying to arrange for a sale of the mine equipment to bring in the rest of the back wages.

Most of the 29 men who found employment are working in other B.C. mines. Four are working in Texada Island mine, several are in northern B.C.

Three are still employed at Jordan River, guarding the mine machinery on behalf of the sheriff's office. At least two found work in the Victoria area — one at the airport and Robertson, who works in the shipping department of Precision Engines and Parts Ltd.

Robertson has collected about 18 per cent of the $850 he was owed when the mine closed.

"I went six weeks without a pay cheque. It was pretty grim but things are better now that I'm working again."

Robertson was born in Victoria and was delighted that he was able to stay. He continues to rent a small cottage in Sooke.

"The drive isn't too bad. It used to take 35 minutes to get out to Jordan River. It only takes about 25 minutes to drive into Victoria — if I time it right."

He said it can take the better part of an hour if he had to buck the rush hour traffic around 7:30 a.m. He waits until 8:50 a.m. He drives home after the 5 p.m. rush.

Meanwhile, two ex-miners who will soon be looking for work again are Burns and Linn of the Jordan River Manpower office.

"This is just a temporary office to help the men get re-established," Burns said.

Gunman Gets 6 Years

Frank Guiney was sentenced in county court today to six years in the penitentiary for armed robbery at the Criterion Club on Yates Street last September.

Judge Montague Drake said the sentence would have been longer but for the chance of reformation mentioned in a pre-sentence report.

Guiney, 42, of 304 Oswego, was found guilty Feb. 13 of holding up the Criterion Club Sept. 5 and robbing two card players of $1,645.

The court was told earlier that there were eight card players at the club when two masked men entered and ordered the players to lie on the floor.

One of the card players, George Doker, testified earlier that after club manager Les Hanson wrestled one masked man to the floor he pulled off the ski mask, had a good look at the person pinned to the floor and identified Guiney in court as that person.

While Hanson wrestled the man to the floor, a sawed-off shotgun discharged but no one was injured.

Guiney was accused of robbing Hanson of $1,500 and William Winter, another card player, of $145.

The crown earlier entered a stay of proceedings against a second man charged in connection with the robbery.

Guiney himself took the stand during the trial and told the jury he had no recollection of anything between 8 p.m. Sept. 5, the day of the robbery, and 1 a.m. Sept. 6 when he woke up in the hospital.

He said he had had a lot to drink and had taken some valium, a tranquilizer.

A-G's WIFE TO PAY

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald's wife is going to be stuck with paying the fine he received for driving without valid licence plate decals.

Socred MLA Jim Chabot (Columbia) raised the question in the legislature Wednesday and asked whether the government might be paying the $10 ticket given to the minister Wednesday when he was driving a government car to work.

Macdonald said his department has taken full blame for the slip-up with the decals and wants to pay the fine.

"But I said no way — my wife will pay," he said.

Chabot also questioned the amount of the fine and Macdonald said he should pay no different amount because of his position.

Victoria city police said if a person has the decals but has failed to display them the penalty is $10; if he hasn't the decals the penalty is $25 plus $250 for no insurance.

LATEST BID to take over the Victoria-Seattle ferry run is from three American businessmen who propose using the 160-foot aluminum ship Avalon, built at Tacoma in 1971. She has a U.S. coastguard licence to carry 510 passengers. Spokesman Tom Orr of Long Beach, Calif., was in Victoria Thursday to try and line up docking facilities. Docking facilities at Seattle are already confirmed.

Minister Challenged On Jubilee Bed Move

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today he has asked Royal Jubilee Hospital to temporarily assign 70 beds in Memorial Pavilion for extended care patients.

While Cocke said the move will bring immediate relief to a lengthy list of patients waiting for extended care beds, the hospital said it will result in nothing more than reshuffling of patients at the expense of those needing acute care.

Both the Memorial Pavilion, formerly Veterans' Hospital, and the rest of Jubilee are already full, said executive director A. C. Pickles.

And the hospital has a list of about 1,200 people waiting for an acute care bed, meaning some will be waiting up to three months.

Extended care beds are for chronically ill, mostly elderly people, who require nursing rather than acute hospital care. Throughout the Capital district, there is a waiting period from two to five months for patients qualifying for extended care.

Both Jubilee and Victoria General Hospital have pointed out repeatedly in recent months that many of their expensive acute care beds are occupied by patients needing only extended care because there is no place else for these patients to go.

There are an estimated 90 patients at Jubilee and another 50 to 60 at Victoria General today who do not need the acute care beds they are occupying. Together they could fill a 150-bed addition scheduled to start at Glenarry extended care hospital this year.

Cocke's announcement comes six days after word that Aberdeen private hospital in Victoria will close at the end of May, forcing 77 elderly and ailing patients there to find care elsewhere.

The health minister suggested earlier this week that announcement by Aberdeen owner Neil de Macedo of the closing was possibly "a business ploy" in purchase negotiations with the government.

At Jubilee, Pickles said that all of the 231 beds in the Memorial Pavilion are filled, for all practical purposes. Of these, 110 are exclusively for the care of veterans needing other than acute care and another 60 throughout the hospital are reserved for veterans needing acute care.

The change asked by Cocke will have the effect of grouping extended care patients now scattered throughout the hospital, said Pickles, and that will produce a more efficient nursing situation.

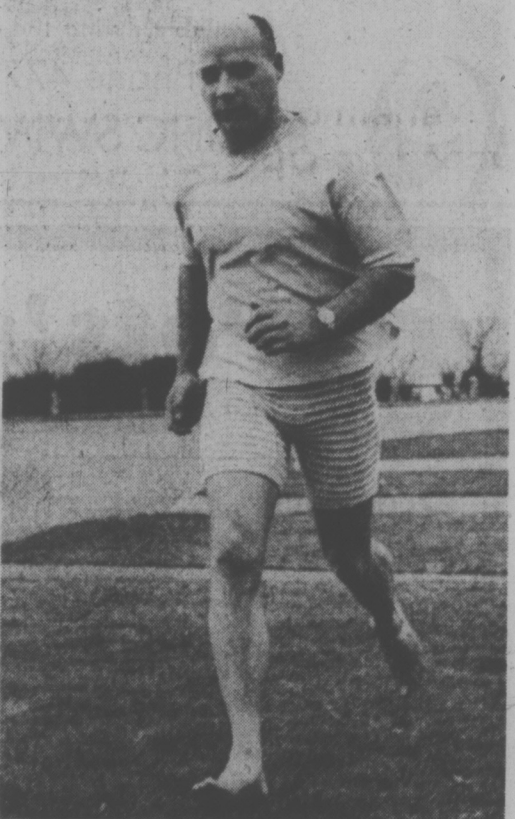

The hospital is prepared to go along with the move but all it results in is a regrouping of patients already occupying hospital beds.

Murder Appeal

The appeal of Jorge Walter Berger, found guilty last May of murdering Raymond Buckett, 41, of 4980 Lochside, will be heard by the B.C. Appeal Court April 28-29 in Victoria.

The appeal was to have been heard Feb. 28 at the Appeal Court in Vancouver but was rescheduled.

Berger, an Austrian student, was convicted of killing Buckett, 41, of 4980 Lochside, by stabbing him. Buckett was found by a passerby in Walbran Park, Oak Bay.

BAREFOOT IN THE PARK — well, on Dallas Road boulevard, to be exact — is more than just a book and movie title for 40-year-old Mervyn Grew, city parks department employee and CUPE member. Shoeless Grew, who normally keeps the boulevards trim and tidy, jogs six miles daily during the current strike-lockout. Maybe he figures that's one way to help keep the grass short. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Top Men of CUPE Hold Talks in City

B.C. district council of the Canadian Union of Public Employees met today at the Tally-Ho Hotel to deal with bargaining and strike-lockout progress among Greater Victoria and lower mainland locals.

It was a regular meeting of the council, which usually takes place in Vancouver.

Spokesmen for the CUPE area bargaining committee representing striking and locked out civic and school employees in the capital region were not available for comment.

Meanwhile, Capital Regional Board chairman Jim Campbell said a meeting of the regional employers bargaining group set for Monday will be reviewing statements made by the union and also the employers' position "in the light of on-going developments."

Campbell said there is no intention on the part of the group to seek direct intervention by Labor Minister Bill King, in an effort to resolve the present impasse.

"If the labor minister approaches the bargaining group because he is concerned about the failure of the system to produce results — and it must be remembered he is the author of the system — then we would talk to him, of course we would," he said.

FIREMEN DOUSE DRAKE PARTIES

Fire escapes on five unoccupied tenement buildings in Old Town, including the Drake Hotel, were removed Thursday by Victoria fire department to prevent fires resulting from illegal entry.

Firemen have put out three mattress fires in the Drake Hotel in the last two weeks.

Victoria Ald. Sam Bawli, who owns and plans to restore the properties, said transient people looking for a place to have a "good party" were able to use the escapes to enter the building.

But It's Just as Well We Never Knew!

NOT LONG BEFORE we removed ourselves from Gordon Head, I discovered where my long-vanished pruning ladder had gone. It was propped against an overgrown Pacific willow tree in the depths of our wild-land acre. By the green mould that coated it, the ladder had obviously leaned there for a number of years.

It was also plain that the ladder had been spirited from our vegetable garden to replace a set of two-by-four ends that staggered their way up the tree trunk to the remains of a tree fort. The irregular spacing of those aids to climbing indicated that once their number had been larger.

This fact in turn suggested that some child, since grown to man's or woman's estate, had escaped broken bones by one of those miracles without which no active youngster would survive.

Next time we met, I let the fort-builder know that the mystery of the missing ladder had been solved, and gave him a retroactive chawing out. "I saw those cross-pieces on the tree, too," I wound up. "It's a wonder you didn't break your necks."

Ron smiled. "One kid almost did," he said. "Funny . . . I hadn't thought about that for years. He was starting down when the piece he was standing on came loose. Lucky he landed in a bush."

Ron added cheerfully, "That is why we borrowed the pruning ladder."

Up to a point, what parents don't know won't hurt them. I might add to this homely saw that if they were forced to know in full detail, they mightn't survive, either. Take the time a girl dear to our hearts decided to go for a trail-ride.

We deposited her at a ranch from which guided trail-rides took off for well-ordered excursions into an old logging burn. At intervals during an afternoon of visiting friends in the line, we pictured our darling mounted on a sedate plug on a well-travelled track in the company of a dozen other children. And, naturally, with the watchful guide keeping track of her.

What we didn't know was that the trail-ride had been cancelled, and that Little Miss Silver-Tongue had conned the rancher into letting her head out by her lone.

We picked her up at the appointed time.

Did she have a nice ride? It was a lot of fun.

How did her horse behave? Fine. Did she see anything interesting?

Lots of things.

And so it went on, through one of those parent-child lit-anies marked by well-intended quizzings and laconic answers.

A month or so later, our chick piped up at dinner.

"Remember that trail ride? I forgot to tell you they let me go out alone. I got lost and a cougar followed us. My horse ran away with me."

I slopped blackberry juice on the tablecloth.

"At least I think it was a cougar," Susan said calmly. "It tagged along beside us in the brush. That was when I was lost on an old grade."

My nape prickled in retrospect.

"My horse got scared. It almost tossed me off."

I asked weakly, "Anything else?"

"Not really. When the horse ran, my lunch got squashed."

Maybe it's a good thing that the course of childhood doesn't always proceed as so-felicitous parents would have it go. It's even possible that adventures safely weathered leave a residue of healthy hardihood.

But when I look at a tired eight-foot dinghy of which I am now custodian, I'm reminded of unauthorized juvenile voyages that would have scared me witless had I known of them at the time.

(Did I say you could take that boat through the Ten Mile rips?)

We had our lifejackets on. Anyway, you didn't say we couldn't.

Most children manage to outgrow childhood. And it could be that the guardian angel who oversees the process knows what he's about when he spares us on-the-spot knowledge of all that goes into the growing!

The Wonderful World of Animals

DEAR DR. MILLER: We feed our fish from the table a lot — mostly beef because that's what we have the most. They eat beef pretty well now but I notice they still go for pieces of fish faster. Is this just from an old habit? — N.S.

DEAR N.S.: It's not really surprising fish favor fish over most other foods. Fish has been the basic diet of fish for some time now, and it's not merely a matter of flavor and convenience either. Beef, for example, contains saturated fats which are often difficult for fish to digest. In addition, the amino acids found in fish protein are easier for the finny species to utilize than are the amino acids out of beef or other warm-blooded species. Not only is it more reasonable to feed your fish fish, it should also be fed raw. Cooking cancels out some of its nutritional value. Frozen fish fillets — supermarket style — are a convenient, excellent source of fish for your fish. Avoid only the especially oily species such as menhaden, mullet, mackerel and herring. Another excellent offering, also a staple for aquarium inhabitants, is a crusty cousin, the shrimp — and remember, raw is right.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We were all exposed to our daughter's new puppy who died from hepatitis. So far, we've all stayed healthy, but nervous. How long would we have to stay healthy before we could be sure that none of us would be in any danger from that hepatitis? — W.T.

DEAR W.T.: Unless "us" includes another canine member or two, you can stop worrying right now. Stay healthy anyway, of course, but you have no reason to worry about canine infectious hepatitis virus, as it does not infect Homo sapiens. (Puppies don't have to be vaccinated against canine hepatitis BEFORE exposure).

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our male cat, Tompkins, had a close call. His bladder got blocked. He almost died of urine poisoning before we knew how sick he was. We've been told there's an operation to cure this. What's your opinion about this operation? — R.B.

DEAR R.B.: There are, in fact, several operations used to provide a larger urethral opening in the male cat. When urinary blockage is a recurrent problem, such surgery may be advisable. It cannot cure the urinary disease but, when successful, such surgery will greatly decrease the chances of future obstructions.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What would cause a parakeet to act like he's restless and shift back and forth from one foot to another? I can't notice anything really wrong except he doesn't seem to grab the perch with his feet as well as he used to. — S.E.

DEAR S.E.: A parakeet affected with gout would act like this. Gout is a painful condition for the bird who doesn't really have a (comfortable) leg to stand on. A reluctance to grip the perch tightly is also related to the discomfort. The leg joints are often enlarged and the veterinarian may be able to find small yellow-white nodules in these joint areas which are actually uric acid crystals. Occasionally, some other condition, perhaps one more responsive to treatment, may cause similar symptoms. In any event, such a bird needs professional help quickly.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Why would my pair of hamsters, Ma and Pa, quit growing when they're only halfway through? They're the same age as my friend's hamsters who are twice as big and have already had some babies. My Ma and Pa here haven't even grown, let alone had any babies yet. What's holding them back? They're not very good looking hamsters either. They sure act healthy, but I don't know about them. Could they be runts? — R.Y.

DEAR R.Y.: Can't tell from here, of course, but it's just possible Ma and Pa aren't runts at all but merely hamsters from a different genus. The Chinese hamster (Cricetus griseus) is only half the size — when fully grown — of the Golden or Syrian hamster. If, indeed, Ma and Pa are Chinese, this would account for their seeming reluctance to get down to the business of raising a family. They simply mature more slowly. They more than make up for it, however, since they seldom waste time hibernating as the Golden Hamster is prone to do, and they also outlive the Golden Hamster by a considerable margin — six months to a year on the average.

DEAR DR. MILLER: It's been about two years since my husband got his first tropical fish. He's becoming more of a fish nut all the time. He's now got me trapped into going home at noon so the fish have three meals a day. Wouldn't you say that's going too far? — T.D.

DEAR T.D.: Don't know. How far do you have to go? As far as the fish are concerned, there's no question that most livebearers, and many other fish as well, will be better, stronger fish if they have several light feedings a day rather than a single heavy feeding.

dear abby

Talk of the Town

DEAR ABBY: Our whole family is in a turmoil because, after 52 years of marriage, our father has left our mother. They used to have their fights over the years but we never thought it would come to this.

Dad left Mother to go and live with a 53-year-old nurse he met three years ago when he was in the hospital. (Dad has been in a wheelchair for three years.) The nurse came right into the house, packed Dad up and moved him out, and they drove off together.

Now that this has come out, everybody is saying they knew about Dad and this nurse all along. Dad is 74 and Mother is 73. Mother is so humiliated, she hasn't been out of the house since Dad left.

What do you think of this mess? How can we get Dad to come to his senses and go back to Mother? It's the talk of the town. Disgraced.

DEAR DISGRACED: Stay out of it. And you needn't feel "disgraced." A person can disgrace only himself.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old widow, not unattractive. A middle-aged physician (divorced) invited me to dinner at his home.

When I arrived, he fixed a cocktail, then the phone rang. I could tell by his conversation it was a woman. And she wasn't a patient. I sat quietly sipping my drink while he talked for 30 minutes. When he finally returned, he resumed the conversation with me, making no apologies for leaving me alone for so long.

About 10 minutes later a car drove up in front of his house and stopped. He said: "Let me see who that is."

When he didn't return in 20 minutes, I took my wrap and purse and went outside to tell my host I was leaving. He was standing by the car, talking to a lady who apparently had come to see him.

I said: Good night, I am going home. The lady immediately drove off. My host insisted that I go back into the house. I did, but only because I wanted to tell him off for his rudeness to me. Before I had a chance to say anything, he told ME off for having "embarrassed" him by coming outside.

Was I wrong? How would you have handled it? Mistreated.

DEAR MISTREATED: You were not wrong. I would have handled it much the same as you. Only I'd have said my goodbyes immediately after my host returned from his 30-minute telephone conversation.

DEAR ABBY: I never miss your column. It's a kick to read about some of the stupid problems some of those fools who write to you come up with. I'm amazed at the number of women who write to say they're afraid of losing their husbands to another woman.

That's the last thing I'm worried about. I say: "The woman who steals my husband steals my troubles."

Sign me... Not worried.

DEAR ABBY: If that's the way you feel about your husband, why don't you just turn him loose, so there will be one less potential thief in the world?

DEAR ABBY: About the woman who always mentions the fact that one of her three children was adopted: One shouldn't be so quick to criticize her. Perhaps she wants to publicly announce the fact that, although she is the mother of three children, she brought only two into the world, and because she adopted the third she is not guilty of adding to the world's overpopulation. Just thinking.

DEAR JUST: Thanks for thinking of an angle I didn't think of.

Cranky, Sleepy Children May Have Allergy to Food

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI)

If your child is cranky, sleepy or withdrawn and also happens to be prone to headaches, colds and nasal congestion, a pediatrician says the problem is likely to be a food allergy.

And the culprit more often than not is milk, according to Dr. Frederic Speer of the University of Kansas Medical Centre.

"Little children can't tell you a lot, you just have to figure it out from the symptoms," Speer said in an interview.

"Many children are being seen in guidance clinics and by school psychologists and it never occurs to them that their behavior problems are allergy-based. It's a very badly overlooked problem."

Speer directs the training program in pediatric allergy conducted at the university and at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Mo. He said young doctors in training are amazed at how often problems are traced to a milk allergy.

Speer said allergies in children under two are usually food-related, while around the age of four or five they start picking up allergies to grass and weed pollen, mold spores in the air, animal hair and feathers.

He cited the figure that four in every 10 children have some type of allergic intolerance to milk which produces symptoms ranging from bad breath and bed-wetting to persistent headaches, abdominal pains, constipation or diarrhea.

"As a matter of fact, if I'm just stopped on the street for an opinion about a child with a headache, I usually say take milk out of their diet for three to four weeks and see what happens," Speer said.

He believes the nutritional value of milk has been oversold, and most children, even if they have no allergy, should drink no more than a pint a day.

"Children with a milk allergy usually don't eat very well," Speer said. "You take it away and they start to like meat, potatoes, fish, vegetables — nutritional foods."

Speer offered these tips to parents who may suspect their child has an allergy:

—Consult your family doctor. If he pooch-pooches the idea of an allergy ("and some doctors in some parts of the country are not as aware of this as others") consult an allergist.

—The most common allergic foods are milk, chocolate and cola drinks, corn, citrus fruits, onions, garlic, pork, eggs and peanuts.

—The most common inhalants which children are allergic to are molds and house dust. Strong odors like smoke, perfume and paint fumes can cause allergy-related headaches.

"Smoking always aggravates — If your child is found to have a respiratory allergy — asthma, hay fever or a frequently runny or stopped-up nose — don't smoke tobacco."

—Moving to another climate seldom solves the problem and sometimes makes it worse.

a respiratory-type disease," Speer said.

—Breast-feeding an infant will not prevent an allergy, but it is better than cow's milk.

—Air purifiers are of little help with respiratory allergies. Air conditioning does help keep molds and pollens out of the house.

Boss Disliked Hairy Legs, Waitress Sues

SOMERS, Conn. (UPI) — A

Somers waitress has filed a sex discrimination suit against the restaurant that fired her for not shaving her legs.

Judith Quist, 27, said the hair on her unshaved legs does not represent a health hazard, and male employees at the Plaza Restaurant in Somers don't have to keep their legs hairless.

She said she stopped shaving her legs about five years ago and doesn't think women should remove hair from their legs just because men think they look better that way.

"The manager said customers had complained about the way I looked with hair on my legs," Ms. Quist said in a complaint to the state commission on human rights and opportunities.

Jerome Young, manager of the restaurant, said, "I think it's a basis of being well-groomed."

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many women write to say that they are much distressed by breasts too small. They wonder what can be done to enlarge them. Some think of having a substance (silicone) injected, but their doctor strongly advises not to have this done. Cases have been reported in which the silicone ran down into the woman's groin.

Now the Dow Chemical people tell me they have made a much better substance, called Silastic, which they say can safely be implanted in sacs behind the breasts.

Still some experts advise these women to go for help to an expert plastic surgeon. He can often do a perfect job, putting behind the breast an envelope full of spongy material that feels like a breast.

I have not read of any very satisfactory results obtained by giving the woman female hormone. There are some women born with an abnormal sex hormone that causes them to be short, with very small breasts, a wide "webbed neck" and a small womb that does not produce menstruation. Such a woman would do well to see a geneticist, probably in a fine university medical school.

SPANKING CHILDREN

I am glad to read in "Family Practice News" that many doctors now disapprove of spanking children in school or at home. I cannot remember ever spanking children, and I can remember my father spanking me only once, and then because of a misunderstanding. Only rarely did I have to say to one of my children, when they were young, that something that they had done or said to their mother was not nice or courteous or loving, and they never did it again. Children can often be helped better with love and affection and praise than with punishment.

From my early childhood, I had such love and respect for my father and mother that I guess it never occurred to me to disobey their few requests.

LAPAROSCOPY

Today many a person, usually a woman, has a lighted tube passed into her lower abdomen, perhaps through her navel, and by looking through the tube, an expert physician can usually see if her ovaries, womb, and Fallopian tubes (which run from the womb to the ovaries) are normal. In this way the physician may be able to say why a woman has not had a much-wanted baby, and whether or not she needs an operation in order to get the baby.

Also, if the woman has had all the children she wants or can support and educate, she can be sterilized (by having the Fallopian tubes plugged up). Then she need never fear getting pregnant again.

Sometimes the lighted tube is passed up into the abdomen by way of the upper end of the vagina. That is called culdoscopy.

CANCER OF THE COLON

People ask me how can a person avoid dying of cancer of the colon. My answer is that each year for the last 50 years I have had my digestive tract x-rayed, and my rectum and sigmoid (the "S" shaped colon just above the rectum) looked into by a proctologist.

Once in 1969, when I felt a strange new pain in my left lower abdomen, I went next day and had my bowel x-rayed. Nothing then was found, but months later a cancer had grown big enough so that it could be seen with x-rays. Two or three days later, I had it removed surgically by Dr. C. W. Mayo, and my life was saved.

Occasionally I have had my bowel movements examined for traces of blood, but none were ever found, which went far to rule out cancer of the colon.

OLDEST PHYSICIAN

I just read that Dr. John W. Morris of McCrory, Arkansas, who was 100 years old last month is still in active practice in a country town. Everyone there likes him. He says he never cared to take a vacation. He has worked long hours and has brought 7,000 babies into the world. For 12 years he made calls on horseback, riding an average of 35 miles a day, before he got an automobile. He still stands straight and says he never feels tired.

Price Beaters for Nomads

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

A small shop on Johnson Street has found a way to lick soaring prices, and offers a practical product as a bonus.

At Nomad Furniture prices range from 60 cents to $35 and the inventory includes dining tables, executive desks, coffee and work tables, love seats, book shelves, bar stools, even doll houses and toy wheel barrels.

All furniture is made from particle board and is easily assembled and taken apart for moving. For this reason, it is called "nomadic furniture" — made for people on the move.

The shop opened Jan. 20 at 619 Johnson, staffed by seven former mental health patients, and is mainly financed by a $69,309 Canada Manpower Local Employment Plan grant.

Project co-ordinator Keith Morgan said the objective is to train ex-patients in retailing and to reintroduce them into the community.

"In order to cope with reality as we know it, they must be brought out into the public rather than kept in the back rooms. Most of them have difficulty in relating with society... This we try to deal with," Morgan said.

"It's ever so helpful in getting started again," said one 35-year-old mental patient, learning to be a salesman at Nomad.

"I think it's real good," he said.

Trainees are referred to Nomad by the Canadian Mental Health Association. At the store they are each paid a standard salary of $120 a week.

Morgan said he has been taking a special manpower counselling course in order to help the former patients find jobs in the community.

"As workers get placed in community businesses, new trainees will take their places here," Morgan said.

Behind the retail operation comes the production end which employs another nine patients.

Nomad buys its furniture from the carpentry workshop run by the Victoria branch of CMHA at Laurel House, 1450 Elford Street.

Funding of the workshop differs from that of Nomad.

"Rather than receiving a grant each year, we present a budget to the Community Chest people who then determine how much they can contribute toward the budget," workshop director Dave Williams explained.

Williams said that 65 per cent of the profit from the sale of furniture to Nomad is paid as commission to those not on the workshop staff. The remaining 35 per cent is used for new tools and replacements, maintenance and the defraying of the original cost of the investment in tools.

"At the present, we are solely producing for Nomad, but we eventually hope to catch up with supply and swing into other contracts."

Williams said although expansion is not in immediate plans, the workshop has already grown a lot since its beginning in 1974.

"The workshop program started when CMHA purchased a large collection of used power tools from another Victoria society," Williams said.

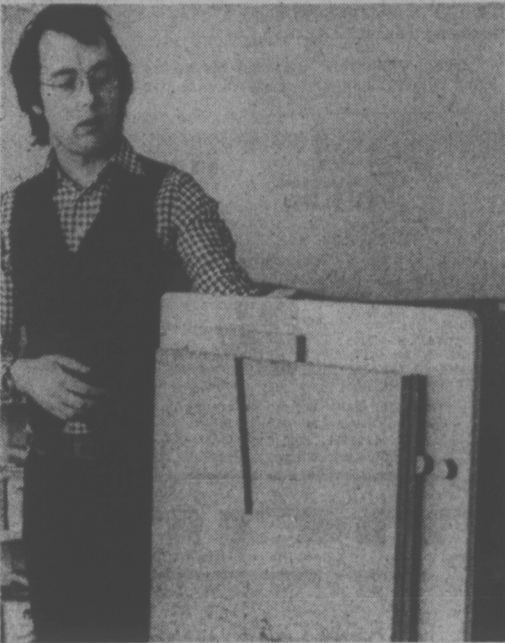

"We used to make such items as birdhouses and bird-feeders."

"Then in June of last year, we were contracted by a private firm to cut modular furniture... and this is how we moved on to nomadic furniture. It's a type of product with a more realistic and rewarding end," said Williams.

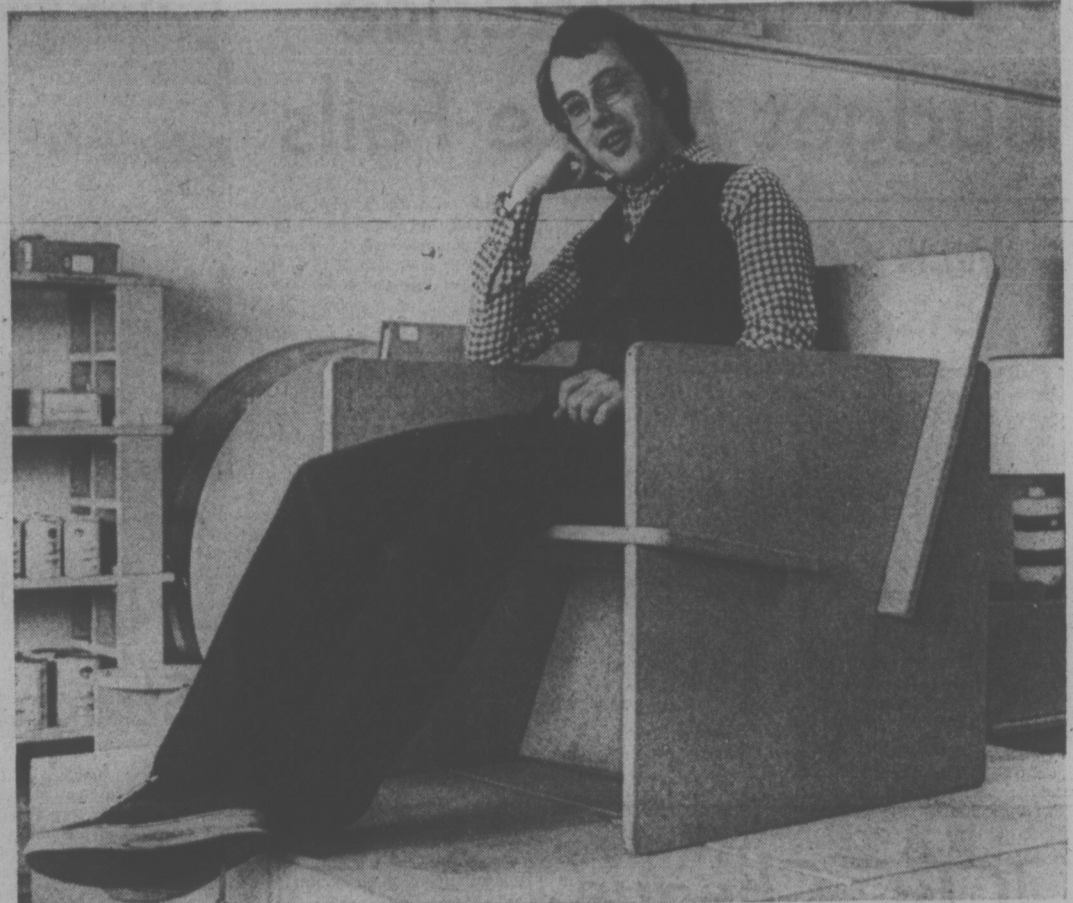

"Can't find much fulfillment in birdhouses," interrupted one of the trainees.

Williams said furniture is unfinished because there is no dust-free area available in the shop for painting.

But Nomad carries paints, varnishes and stains for the customers. The store also sells such items as pillows and macrame plant hangers and tablecloths, all made by ex-patients involved in other Laurel House programs.

Preventive Dentistry Counters Sweets

By LYNNE GORDON

We started the month of February with a Dental Health Week, but who really knows what all this fuss about preventive dentistry is all about?

Is it lofty rhetoric about clean teeth that makes good reading in the Family Pages? Is it that kindergarten stuff about brushing your teeth three times a day?

What concerns me is that the communication about preventive dentistry should start in the dentist's office, where consumers should get it straight from the horse's mouth the way their family dentist sees it.

This hasn't been the case. Dentists haven't been famous for being "easy to talk to." In fact, consumers have put them on a pedestal as Father Figures and allowed them to rule in their isolated four-wall office worlds.

Consumers are so used to

CAVEAT EMPTOR

the fill-drill-n-bill syndrome that they feel cheated if the dentist doesn't "do something" before he presents them with a bill.

The first thing to understand about preventive dentistry is that it costs money even when a tooth hasn't been pulled or filled. A consumer may be asked to spend 50 bucks or more on a real preventive program that should include lectures, films and slides whenever possible information on fluoridation and contact sports and, most important, follow-up visits to reinforce home care. That may seem like a lot of money for "nothing," but the point of the program is to prevent expenditures of hundreds, even thousands of dollars on later remedial treatment.

More money is spent on dental disease than any other medical disease. And every penny comes out of your own pocket, unless you happen to be one of the few whose employer participates in a private dental insurance plan. Many people spend up to $5,000 for dental work over a lifetime.

They have the right to know what it's all about. Find out what you'll be paying for "professional services" before you even open your mouth for the drill. Demand the right to be able to talk to your dentist on an equal footing. You're hardly in a position for intelligent dialogue when you're leaning back in a chair, a bib around your neck, a spotlight in your eyes and a terror in every fibre as you wait for the drill to descend. Get out of the chair and talk to your dentist face to face.

Ninety-nine per cent of the population has dental disease, yet preventive dentistry can prevent most decay and gum disease caused by bacteria. Each day, plaque forms in your mouth—a sticky, invisible film of germs and saliva which must be removed daily. A toothbrush should be used as a skill instrument, not as a scrub brush. Toothpaste is mainly for taste but has little value in actual cleaning. In fact, watch for the super-whitening pastes that not only brush away the dirt but the enamel.

No matter how sugar-coated the information you receive about sweets and desserts, sugar is one of the primary causes of cavities. It's shocking to consider that 24 out of 25 children have dental disease before they're six years old.

When you give your children or eat yourself a chocolate bar, your teeth are munching on seven teaspoons of sugar; a piece of cherry pie contains 14 and a piece of chocolate cake 15 teaspoons of sugar. As a result of the sweet life, 90 per cent of people over 60 have lost their teeth.

Get your children started on a preventive dentistry program as early as possible and find out how to break the old repair and replace syndrome for yourself. Begin by opening a dialogue with your dentist; get out of the dentist's chair; topple the Father Figure from his pedestal and talk to him face to face. You have the right to ask questions and the right to clear answers.

Textbooks, Novels In Provider's Hold

When the HMCS Provider pulled out of Esquimalt harbor this week she had textbooks and novels in her hold.

Fifty-five boxes of them were gathered, categorized and packaged by members of Victoria's branch of the English-speaking Union and are destined for New Guinea and the Solomon Islands.

Victoria's branch, with about 200 members, is the only one in Canada affiliated with London, England's Ransly library service which supplies underdeveloped areas of the world with books.

Last year, the service reached the five million mark in books sent from London, said Victoria branch chairman Hugh Ross.

"We collect books from libraries, schools, wherever we can get them," said Ross. "The Canadian navy takes them free of charge."

Gov't Refuses Parkland Offer

NORTH COWICHAN — The B.C. parks branch has rejected an offer to buy 25 acres of waterfront at Crofton.

Ruth and Ray Gallagher of Crofton offered to sell the property to the government for $150,000. It included about 800 feet of beachfront.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford has suggested to the Cowichan Regional Board that it buy the property as a regional park.

Non-Confidence Budget Move Fails

MILK SALES JUMP BY 4 PER CENT

Total sales of milk products in B.C. during the last year have increased by 4.13 per cent, according to the annual report of the B.C. Milk Board tabled in the legislature Thursday.

A 1.78 per cent increase on Vancouver Island was slightly higher than 1.26 per cent increase in sales of standard milk in Vancouver region, the report says.

Total quantity of milk production increased 3.54 per cent, leaving a surplus in milk supply of 1.06 per cent.

On Vancouver Island, there were sales of 1,826,637 quarts, an increase of 5.96 per cent over last year.

Breakdown in categories are: standard milk (up 1.78 per cent) 15.3 million quarts; low fat (up 10.6 per cent), 14.2 million quarts; Chocolate drink (up 11.5 per cent) 625,677 quarts; skim (3.25 per cent) 623,260 quarts; buttermilk (up 1.5 per cent) 207,000 quarts.

Decreased sales in Okanagan, Kootenay, Cariboo and Central B.C. were reported.

The opposition's motion of non-confidence in the NDP government's budget was rejected by a vote of 31 to 17 in the legislature Thursday.

The vote followed lengthy debate by opposition members who claimed the premier's $3.2 billion budget was unacceptable in its proposals to ease unemployment, the housing shortage and financial plights facing municipal governments in the province.

Scored MLA Jim Chabot said he is appalled at the hollow promises of financial assistance to local governments.

He called for the provincial government to give assurance that the $20 million expected to result from higher export price for natural gas will in fact be forwarded to the municipalities.

There are no definite programs to halt unemployment, he said, and government projects, at maximum, can only employ about one-third of the province's 100,000 unemployed for a period of three months.

"And yet this government has the audacity to suggest it's a job security government. We need action now."

Liberal Leader David Anderson suggested the government choose a sharing formula for municipalities based on an easier-to-predict revenue, like the liquor or gasoline tax.

"Some tax which would allow municipalities to judge with some precision what they'll get would be fair and sensible (is needed)," said Anderson. "The local government's have not been dealt with fairly."

He urged the government show some concern on number of housing starts by the private builder and adopt policies to ensure a maximum is built.

He also recommended that salary increases in public service contracts be tied to expected rate of productivity in the province, "to constitute a fair wage."

The non-confidence motion, initiated by Scored MLA Harvey Schroeder (Chilliwack), got additional support from Liberal MLA Allan Williams.

Williams (Vancouver East) said if the government would treat municipalities with an openness, the local government might respond formally.

McGEER
... "non-disclosure"

Budget Ad 'Shame'

The consumer services department should launch an investigation into Premier Barrett's budget advertisements to see if they stand the test of the government's own legislation, Liberal MLA Pat McGeer said Thursday.

"I don't believe this advertising would stand the test in a court of law," said McGeer, calling for an inquiry by the director of trade practices.

The series of full page advertisements in the province's newspapers are paid for by public funds, said McGeer, and it's an unfortunate tradition.

Referring to a regulation in the Trade Practices Act, McGeer said truth in advertising was to be a way of life in B.C. He outlined a regulation which prohibits deceptive advertising which includes "non-disclosure."

"I read through the ad six times hunting for a bit about a (2 cent) increase in gasoline taxes — and couldn't find it even in the little print," McGeer told the house.

The ad mixes the smiling faces of happy residents in B.C. with the message that "our budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year has been designed to achieve greater economic equality and social justice in B.C."

More important, said the member from Vancouver-Point Grey, is the ad's statement that municipalities will receive a minimum of $20 million from increase in the export price of natural gas.

"Shame on the government," said McGeer. "What are we doing putting this kind of advertising in newspapers before any firm agreement has been made."

"If cities and municipalities set their budgets on the basis of advertising they'd be breaking the law — they are not allowed to set deceptive budgets. They could be fooled into breaking the law."

The premier has exceeded his authority and would be found vulnerable in a court of law, said McGeer.

NDP 'Misrepresented' Strachan Charges Press

Transport Minister Bob Strachan lashed out at the press Thursday for presenting what he called an imbalanced picture of the NDP government since it came to power 2½ years ago.

"No government has been subjected to such misrepresentation as in the last 2½ years," Strachan said in budget debate. "There's been no balanced presentation of news in this province."

The media, he said, prints calculated statements, and the opposition is just as bad.

"These people are prepared to go to any lengths trying to get power back in their hands."

The transport minister said the business establishment in the province has the control they had for the last 100 years when the NDP was elected and "they'll do anything, say anything to try and get back control."

With the government's $3.2 billion budget the people of the province have seen a humanitarian government and when the election comes, said Strachan, "I'll be waving you (the opposition) goodbye, because you won't be back and we will."

He said the opposition has been digging away trying to create fear in B.C.

"They're willing to say anything as long as it might hurt us — but it's pure charade."

The media, he said, is controlled across the country by the Canadian Radio and Television Commission, an organization of the federal government, controlled by the Liberal party.

B.C. mainland news network, the Columbia Broadcasting Company, leans toward the Scored party, he said.

ICBC Cheque Error Claimed

A Scored MLA has received a $254 cheque from the Insurance Corporation of B.C. for work he never did.

Victoria Scored member Newell Morrison told the legislature Thursday he received the cheque for auto repair work even though he sold his auto body shop five years ago.

MORRISON
... "sloppiness"

The cheque, dated Dec. 18, 1974, and sent to Morrison Chevrolet, cites repair work done on an individual's car.

"How many cheques have been sent out in error?" Morrison asked Transport Minister Bob Strachan, adding that he wondered if there are management problems within ICBC.

Strachan said there are no management problems and he urged the Scored to send the cheque back so it can be checked out by ICBC.

Outside the house, Morrison said he had two other examples of cheques sent incorrectly by ICBC.

He displayed a letter from a woman who received an $11 cheque from ICBC after her car was written off in an accident.

The other example was a cheque for $58 sent to a Golden man, apparently as payment for towing charges from 100 Mile House to Lac la Hache. Reid Auto Towing and Wrecking of Golden closed, however, in September, 1972.

Morrison said that kind of "sloppiness" shouldn't happen in a Crown corporation.

Act for Citizens?

A Citizens' Initiative Act, requiring debate in the legislature of any issue supported by 10 per cent of the electorate, was proposed Thursday by the Social Credit caucus.

Opposition leader Bill Bennett said the legislation is designed to allow the public to force debate on issues the government may find uncomfortable.

If a petition requesting debate on any specific issue is presented to the house with 10 per cent of registered electors in support, the issue must be dealt with by the legislature within 10 days.

No more than three hours of debate would be allowed and would be followed by a free vote.

The results of the vote could not be considered a vote of non-confidence in the government nor would they be binding on the House.

Bennett said his party has been discussing the proposal for more than a year and he sees it as a way of ending the frustration felt by many groups which do not think they have a voice in government.

"It is yet another method of insuring that individual rights are not buried in the masses," he said.

The legislation is a private member's bill which will be discussed in the house only if the government calls for second reading debate.

PROJECT DELAY URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Wildlife Federation has appealed for a delay in construction of the seven-mile power project on the Pend D'Oreille River near Trail.

Preliminary work on the $500 million B.C. Hydro project has already started.

Vice-president Graham Kenyon said the federation has asked the project be postponed until it is needed.

The provincial government gave Hydro permission to go ahead with the project in January following the granting of a licence by the water rights controller last August.

But the federation said there is new evidence in a B.C. Energy Commission report which shows power from the project will not be required for four years after it is scheduled to produce its first electricity in 1980.

Kenyon said the seven-mile project will not be required for two to four years after Hydro plans to have it built and that Hydro has not adequately justified the need for the project.

The federation has submitted its appeal to Premier Dave Barrett for cabinet consideration.

Dam Anglers Hauled to Court

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — Lance M. Leffler of Chelwynd, has been fined $250 in provincial court after admitting to catching 33 trout at Williston Lake Feb. 7.

Court was told Wednesday that Leffler and a juvenile were found to have 47 trout in their possession when checked. The daily aggregate allowed two fishermen is 16 fish.

More than 20 people are to appear in court in the next few weeks charged with fishing violations after increased surveillance of an area near the W.A.C. Bennett Dam.

Juvenile Curfew Plan

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — City council will consider at its April 1 meeting, a curfew aimed at reducing juvenile delinquency, Major Jack Campbell said Thursday.

Campbell said members of the public would have about an hour to give their views before council discussion of the proposal. He said council rejected a curfew by a 6-to-1 vote about six years ago.

The Municipal Act provides for regulations to keep children off the street, said Campbell, adding that he favors such a curfew because "it puts the onus on the parents with a $5 fine."

He said the bylaw would be applied only to habitual offenders.

Campbell suggested that curfew by 11 p.m. on week-nights and midnight on the weekends. Council has the power to set the age of youth to be covered by the bylaw.

Meanwhile in Vancouver, Ald. Mike Harcourt said Thursday that residents of Greater Vancouver have "hit the short fuse" in the last year over governmental policies on juvenile delinquents.

ing a meeting between Greater Vancouver mayors, citizen groups, probation officers, educators and others to see if agreements are possible between the three levels of government.

Harcourt's effort comes out of a gathering of Lower Mainland mayors earlier this year in Port Coquitlam. That larger group of mayors will meet again in April, Campbell said Thursday.

Harcourt said citizens are saying that the old system of locking up a large number of delinquent youths and thereby starting them on the road to becoming hardened criminals did not work, but neither does the present tolerant system.

Quesnel CUPE Shuns 19%

QUESNEL (CP) — Striking outside workers here have turned down a second contract offer from the town.

The 33 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees unanimously rejected the proposal Thursday. No further negotiations are scheduled to end the 35-day strike.

The town offered a 19-per-cent increase, including fringe benefits, in a two-year contract. Under the proposal the laborers' base rate would have increased to $5.05 an hour from the current $4.36.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federation of Telephone Workers of British Columbia are split over whether to accept or reject the terms of a federal conciliation report.

The report of conciliation commissioner Hugh Ladner recommended an 18.5-per-cent wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and a further 14-per-cent next Jan. 1 for the 10,000 workers. The report is not binding.

The 2,800-member clerical division is recommending rejection while the 5,200-member plant division is recommending acceptance.

The third division, traffic, has not released its decision. Each division is autonomous and could strike independently. Workers will vote on the report during the next two weeks.

PRINCETON (CP) — Production at Northwood Mills Ltd.'s operation near here is to resume next week and the company hopes full production will be restored in the next few months, the mill's manager said Thursday.

Conrad Miller said that about 30 men will be hired when production resumes next week and the number will be increased to about 150 by the end of March.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men pleaded guilty Thursday in British Columbia Supreme Court to selling an undercover RCMP constable a pound of cocaine for $17,000 between Aug. 25 and Sept. 10.

Nigel John Howse, 25, Edward Pertee, 26, and Margaret Ann Pertee, 24, were charged with trafficking in cocaine last August and September. They pleaded guilty Thursday to some of the charges and others were stayed by the crown.

Mrs. Pertee remained free on $15,000 bail until sentenced but Edward Pertee and Howse were remanded in custody.

Cocke: Slowdown No Health Threat

There is no extreme health hazard resulting from the six-week-old municipal labor dispute in Greater Victoria, Health Minister Dennis Cocke told the legislature Wednesday.

He said his department has not made contingency plans in case of an outbreak of food poisoning, which Oak Bay Tory Scott Wallace said is a "frightening possibility."

Wallace said because of a slowdown in health inspections of restaurants, an accumulation of garbage and inadequate sampling of water and sewage systems an outbreak of food poisoning could occur suddenly.

"I don't think there's that much more hazard with food because of the dispute," said Cocke.

Cocke said the department of health has a large branch of personnel that could be moved to perform the duties outlined by Wallace if public safety is jeopardized.

Dr. Alan Arnell, medical health officer for the region, has said there is no immediate danger from the accumulation of garbage at temporary depots in the area.

Emmanuelle is sensual, but she's elegant. Emmanuelle is fantasy, but she's fun. But most important she leaves you with a singular lack of guilt. This extraordinary film allows all of us to look unflinchingly into the face of sensuality for perhaps the first time. And that's the clue to its overwhelming popularity. It's the first film of its kind that lets you feel good without feeling bad.

Ship Labor Costs Hit

Unrealistic labor costs in Canadian shipyards, particularly those on the west coast, thwart the formation of a Canadian merchant marine, Jack Koyl of Victoria, president of the Navy League of Canada, said Thursday.

Commenting on an announcement by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie that the ministry of transport is continuing a study of a possible Canadian merchant marine policy, Koyl said:

"It is imperative in times of emergency that we have merchant vessels that are not under foreign control if we are to keep our lifelines open.

"But we must have either higher subsidies or more realistic labor costs. The labor costs of our yards are not in line with the rest of the world."

Koyl said he was pleased to hear Gillespie's promise of continued subsidies for the building of fishboats.

"This is particularly important to the east coast," he said, "where our fishermen are being outflashed by huge foreign fleets."

He said Canada's large natural resources in the Arctic could be lost if concentration is not made on building up a fleet of icebreakers and ice-capable vessels.

"If we don't, some other country or multi-national corporation will," he warned. "If we don't move, somebody else is going to get the stuff out."

Koyl said the use of hovercraft, hydrofoils, small helicopter carriers and even dirigibles should be considered for use in the Arctic.

ROCK, FOLK TO MIX

Rock and folk music will mingle in a concert at University of Victoria Sunday at 8 p.m.

The AMS-sponsored program will take place in the old gym and will feature Tom Northcott, Ian Thomas and his band and Victoria's Sour Grapes.

Juno Award-winning Ian Thomas has chart success with Painted Ladies and A Long, Long Way. His Mother Earth is also on its way up.

Sour Grapes has the unique sound of John Rigby on violin.

The others are Sean McCool, guitar, Terry Ruth, bass, and Charlie Higginson on drums.

Tickets are available at the Student Union Building during business hours.

Baroque Ensemble in Concert

Tonight's recital at Craigdarroch Castle will present music of Telemann and his contemporaries performed by the Victoria Conservatory of Music's professional Baroque Ensemble.

The players are James Kennedy, recorder, James Hunter, cello, and Edward Norman, harpsichord. They will be joined by guest artist Glen Fast, flutist in the program of solos and trios from the period of German late baroque.

The concert begins at 8. There is no admission charge but donations to the scholarship-bursary fund will be accepted.

Rough Year for Labor, Wage Inequity Linked

A rough year on the labor front was predicted Thursday by the president of the Vancouver Labor Council.

With organized labor trying to keep up with inflation and employers retrenching, confrontation in inevitable, Syd Thompson told about 200 Victoria Rotarians at a luncheon meeting at the Empress.

"When we have a period of inflation such as we're going through now... working people are forever trying to catch up with it," Thompson said.

He called for a more equal distribution of the nation's wealth.

Without it, he said, "the strife that we've witnessed up to now will be insignificant to what we're going to see."

Thompson said the current rash of disputes involving government workers is the result of wage rates that have fallen behind.

Employees of the national Mint, for example, earn an average wage of $4 an hour, he said.

"As far as I'm concerned not only is that totally inadequate it's a disgrace in this day and age."

Municipal employees have similarly fallen behind workers in industries like the forestry industry, he added.

"The B.C. forestry industry now has a base wage rate of $5.23 an hour, and almost all workers earn more than that," said Thompson.

By contrast, municipal workers on the Lower Mainland have a base rate of $4.52, he said.

It's in our mutual interest that we understand one another and do what we can to lessen the conflict among ourselves," he told the Rotarians. He reminded them that in any strike or labor dispute, the workers suffered the most.

"We're the ones that go short of groceries when we go out on strike," he said.

WAGES TOP U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that for the first time the average hourly earnings of workers in Canada's manufacturing industries have surpassed those of their U.S. counterparts.

The newspaper says the American workers made 41 cents an hour more than Canadians in December, 1974, but by December, 1974, Canadian workers were getting nine cents an hour more.

The preliminary figure for Canada is $4.73 an hour, compared with the U.S. figure of $4.64, it says, adding that the averages are for gross earnings and include overtime and shift differentials.

The Globe and Mail refers to comparisons made in July, 1974, by Canada Labor Views Reports, which show the average Canadian earnings to be higher in four sectors.

Death Ends Drama

LESLIEVILLE, Alta. (CP)—A house fire Thursday which claimed the life of an elderly man who had held police at bay since Tuesday apparently started from tear gas canisters, RCMP Superintendent Bob Mills said late Thursday.

The drama began Tuesday when RCMP attempted to take George Brown, about 75, into custody under provisions of the Alberta Mental Health Act after weekend reports of a family dispute involving gunplay, Supt. Mills said.

RCMP were greeted at the farm, 35 miles from Red Deer, by gunfire so they returned with the protection of an army personnel carrier. Appeals with a loud hailer and tear gas failed to draw the man out and when a fire started late Thursday afternoon, no one could approach for fear of being shot.

Supt. Mills said police will sift through the ruins today in an attempt to recover the body and an undetermined number of rifles.

New Image of History From Stone Carvings

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Somehow, after seeing the exhibit Images: Stone B.C. at Victoria Art Gallery, one comes away with a different feeling about this province.

We do not seem such a new, young country, when faced with evidence of a primitive but inspired culture that was here centuries before our kind of civilization arrived.

Of course most of us have known of the existence of native artifacts; have looked at them with curiosity in isolated instances and in museums.

But what Images: Stone B.C., the distinguished collection of 136 stone carvings and sculptures put together by Richard Simmins and Wilson the esthetic qualities of or-whole matter of aboriginal crafts into perspective.

The use of tools and utensils is clearly stated but softened and enriched by emphasis on the esthetic qualities of ornamentation and form.

The exhibition, digested slowly, illustrates the simple basic elements of life — hunger, sensuality, survival, birth, death and the natural world.

A catalogue prepared by Wilson Duff, noted B.C. anthropologist, is a valuable source of information on 30 centuries of Northwest Coast Indian sculpture, and a guide to the exhibit.

The catalogue's illustrations — a few in color — and the definitive drawings are the work of the project's photographer, Hilary Stewart. The paperback edition is a publication of Hancock House, Victoria.

Sources for the exhibit include the Smithsonian Institute, Philadelphia Museum of Art, McGill University, Musee de l'Homme, Paris, Heye Foundation's Museum of the American Indian, N.Y., and various B.C. museums and individuals.

The exhibition will be shown during the next year at major art galleries in Canada.

Victorians will be able to see it at the Moss Street gallery until the end of April.

More than 2,000 people have attended the exhibit so far.

The show will start its tour of Canadian galleries at Vancouver Art Gallery on May 7.

Before the Judge

A 28-year-old man, who changed his mind and pleaded guilty to two fraud charges and one for possessing stolen goods, was sentenced Thursday to 18 months in jail.

Kenneth Moorehouse, 28, of 3319 Fulton, admitted in provincial court having used a stolen Chargeax card to pay $8.40 for drinks at the lounge of the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, on Jan. 27. He used the card again that evening to pay a $14 bill.

Defence lawyer Lenore Boyes, noted both counts of fraud occurred within hours of each other, and claimed the accused did not steal the credit card, although he had possession of it.

Prosecutor Clarence Vause cited Moorehouse's record for fraud-related offences dating back to 1964.

"You must feel like an old man considering the amount of time you've spent in jail. This can't be the type of life which appeals to you," Judge William Ostler said.

Ostler said rather than sending Moorehouse to the federal penitentiary, he would be kept within the provincial system.

"If you really want to change, here's your chance... you will be sent to a provincial prison where you can work toward your release," said Ostler.

***

Joseph Pierre Loranger, 21, of Nanaimo, was fined $260 after pleading guilty to driving without insurance and a valid licence plate.

Loranger and another Nanaimo man, Richard House, 22, were also charged with theft under $200 and possession of stolen property.

Vause alleged they stole gas from a Gulf Oil service station, 2670 Government, Wednesday. He said they were also found in possession of six bottles of stolen liquor.

Both Loranger and House pleaded not guilty.

They were released on their own recognisance in the sum of $500 and remanded to June 10 for trial.

***

"This is your last chance as far as I'm concerned," Ostler told Keith Thompson, 25, of 724 Yates, who pleaded guilty to two counts of false pretences.

Thompson was charged with writing two NSF cheques in Kamloops Nov. 1 and Nov. 2.

Defence lawyer Robert Glazier said Thompson had completely changed his attitude since then. He had cleared up his debts, become a father and found a job through the John Howard Society.

Vause said Thompson had a lengthy record but added the crown would not press for a jail term.

"There comes a time when the public interest must be considered," Ostler said.

He agreed to Vause's position with "some reluctance." Thompson was fined $200 and placed on 18 months probation.

***

business as Crest Masonry at 646 Pine, was fined $200 after pleading guilty to income tax evasion.

Rowlinson had failed to pay $243.93 in income tax.

Dale Derrick Brouard, 17, of 3338 Biscoe, was fined $50, placed on six months probation, ordered to take an impaired driver's course and given a licence suspension after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The prosecutor said Brouard was driving along Island View Road Feb. 16 when the car overturned. Brouard and three occupants of the car were drunk, police said.

***

PERCENTAGE CHANGE IN RETAIL SALES OF IMPORTED CARS. (1974 vs. 1973)*

*Latest published figures, R.L. Polk, Jan.-Oct.

There must be a reason.

In a year when new car sales were down 4.3%, how do you explain Fiat dealers across Canada having the best year in their history?

How do you make sense out of the fact that while the entire import industry was down 26%, Fiat sales were up over 13%?

The explanation is not really that difficult.

Many Canadians have simply given up on big, expensive, gas-guzzling, inefficient cars. The idea of the car as a status symbol has heard its death rattle.

What Canadians have started looking for instead is practical, intelligent, sensible transportation. And that's just what we offer.

By looking above, however, you'll notice that Canadians haven't turned to everyone's small car.

You see, people don't want to give up everything for practicality. And we don't force them to.

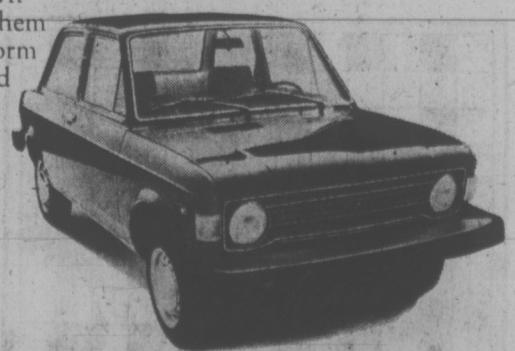

We've found ways of offering people the advantages of big cars without the disadvantages of small ones.

Our cars don't make you feel cramped or claustrophobic. They have good acceleration. Their handling is nothing short of extraordinary.

Our cars are economical. But they're by no means Spartan. Instead of loading them down with gadgetry, we've given them things that make them perform better. Things you don't find in cars costing hundreds, even thousands of dollars more. Front-wheel drive which gives you extra traction for winter driving. All-independent suspension for better handling and surer cornering. Power-assisted front-disc brakes.

Little by little, we're starting to see other manufacturers emulate our kind of car. A few are coming out next year. Some in 1978. But for now, if you want all of what we've got, your Fiat dealer is the only game in town. And the figures show it.

Although I cannot prove it, I have the feeling that four out of every five players in this nation, had they been occupying the South seat in today's deal, would have gone down at their small slam contract. The reason for their defeat would correctly be attributed to their failure to count out the distribution of the opponents' cards.

When the deal arose in real life, our South declarer was a good player; and he encountered no difficulty in fulfilling the contract.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 3 NT Pass 6 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

After winning the opening diamond lead with his ace, East returned diamond, South's king taking the trick. On the face of it, there appears to be nothing to the play. Certainly the five outstanding clubs figure to be divided 3-2. And if West happens to have the J-x-x-x, four club tricks will still be there for the taking, since on the cashing of the ace and queen of clubs, East will fail to follow suit to the second lead. It will now be a routine matter to finesse against West's known jack. But there is more to the play than meets the naked eye.

After winning trick two with his diamond king, declarer cashed the diamond queen, noting that East discarded a heart. That meant that West had been dealt five diamonds. When declarer next cashed the king, ace and queen of spades, he observed that East failed to follow to the third spade lead. Hence West had started not only with five diamonds, but also with five spades.

Declarer then played the ace and king of hearts, perceiving that West followed suite to both heart leads. Thus there was room in West's hand for a maximum of one club.

The duce of clubs to dummy's king came next. West, following with the six-spot, since all of West's cards were accounted for, it became a fact that East had the J-9-7 of clubs remaining in his hand.

The club ten was now led, East covering with the jack, South's queen winning. Dummy was entered via the heart queen, and the four of clubs was led. East's 9-7 was now entombed by South's A-8; and South chalked up the score for a slam bid and made.

More People Face Longer Time Out of Work: Manpower Report

OTTAWA (CP)—A manpower department report says the character of unemployment is changing and the prospect is for more people being unemployed for long periods unless trained. Seasonal unemployment is becoming a less important factor.

The report was released at a Senate committee meeting

Thursday and members were given a mixed report on how the manpower department is reacting.

The department established a new program about two years ago to help solve long-term unemployment problems.

At the same time, the proportion of money spent on an existing occupational training program has been declining since 1971.

The department report says programs such as the Local Initiatives Program and Opportunities for Youth are aimed only at seasonal unemployment and cannot be a solution to the continuing problem.

The program set up in 1972 is Local Employment Assistance Program. It is aimed at long-term job creation for people who are unable to work because, for example, they lack skills or training or live in remote areas.

In its demonstration phase, LEAP has shown that people who have previously been labelled as unemployable or severely disadvantaged, can be trained and integrated into the labor force under the proper conditions of work environment and psychological support, the report says.

About $12 million was set aside for LEAP in the current fiscal year. Department officials say it takes three to six months to set up a project.

Whelan Hits Fertilizer 'Rip-Offs'

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan blasted fertilizer manufacturers Thursday for more than doubling their prices in the past two years.

Whelan invited himself to the annual convention of the Canadian Fertilizer Institute here and warned manufacturers that the "rip-off price" they are charging "is not going to be tolerated within Canada."

Whelan, who marched from the conference room as soon as he finished his speech, had not been invited to attend the meeting.

"I've been watching fertilizer prices and I've been getting a lot of mail," he said.

"You won't like what I think about today's prices and you will not be proud of the charges farmers are making in these letters."

Gov't in Trap Over Deal Charges MLA

The provincial government is trapped in a worthless agreement to purchase the Casa Loma complex in Burnaby, and stands to lose at least $565,000 on the deal, Liberal MLA Allan Williams charged Thursday.

The agreement, Williams said in the legislature, is inoperative until Burnaby city council confirms in writing it has approved rezoning the complex and "yet the government has spent $565,000. It's now beyond the reach of the government and you can't get it back."

The government has admitted the Casa Loma owners were advanced $565,000 as down payment on the $3.5 million the government agreed to pay for the complex.

Technically, the money was handed over to Casa Loma Motel Ltd. outside the contract, Williams said.

Williams also said electricity and fire protection devices in the complex do not meet CMHC standards and the government would have to finance upgrading of the systems to get funding. CMHC is withholding $3.1 million in mortgage funds until certain problems are resolved.

Liberal leader David Anderson added the charge that the government was conspiring with Casa Loma owners on purchase arrangements 10 days before outstanding liens were settled on the development.

Anderson said the housing department applied for federal government financing Nov. 18, 10 days before liens with subcontractors on the project were settled Nov. 28.

Documents tabled in the house later by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson confirm in the Certificate of Title that the government applied for a mortgage on the property Nov. 18.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, however, accused the opposition of throwing political flack around the complex when all the government intends is to provide much-needed accommodation for senior citizens.

"If by May 31 we haven't got the rezoning we get all the money back, secured by the mortgage at 12 per cent interest."

"I don't think the crown will want to retire from this deal — we want the accommodation," said Macdonald, saying the only real matter of concern are charges the government affected settlement with lienholders.

"The crown said we would purchase that thing free of liens," said Macdonald. "It was a condition of purchase."

The government couldn't have usurped the role of a judge, said the attorney-general, or it would have been in error.

The lienholders, he said, Contract Flouted Policy-PC

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department ignored government policy when it awarded a federal contract to U.S.-owned company that slightly underbid a Canadian firm, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) said Thursday.

He said in the Commons that Best Cleaners and Contractors Ltd. of Vancouver bid $715,000 for maintenance at Vancouver International Airport. That was $20,000 more than the successful $695,000 bid by Consolidated Maintenance Services Ltd., a Toronto company wholly-owned by Allied Maintenance Corp. of New York.

Reynolds said the difference was only three per cent. He had understood that the government would give such contracts to Canadian companies even if they were underbid up to 10 per cent.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said that while he is as concerned as Reynolds about the layoffs he was not aware of any policy that Canadian firms would get contracts even if their bid was high.

But supply minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, when pressed by Reynolds, said the policy does exist.

have the right to go through the courts.

Anderson, however, says evidence clearly shows the lienholders were forced to settle with payments as low as 42 cents on the $1 while the government was secretly dealing with Casa Loma on the purchase.

"The only thing the government wouldn't do was sign," said Anderson. "They were already conducting an evaluation of the building and working out the contract and applying for federal financing — which takes weeks of time — during the same period the lienholders were being told to settle for less."

Representatives of some 40 subcontractors involved in the construction have launched court action.

Meanwhile, a lawyer for Casa Loma Motel Ltd. says lienholders' claims against the Casa Loma housing project were settled before the B.C. government began negotiations for purchase of the development.

Thomas A. Dohm, a former B.C. supreme court justice, made the statement Thursday in the form of a copy of a legal opinion he had prepared for Casa Loma. It was the first time a company agent had commented on the controversial purchase announced by the government Feb. 13.

In Ottawa Thursday Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson disclosed the federal government made a loan commitment to the Casa Loma project last December, unaware there were unpaid creditors.

PSAC Talks Resume
As Strikes Continue

Times News Service

Talks are to resume today in the dispute between striking federal labor and trades workers and the Treasury Board, a board spokesman said today in Ottawa.

The spokesman said discussions will begin shortly before noon Victoria time but would not elaborate on their nature.

Selective strikes by the 18,600 federal employees have hit various parts of the country since Feb. 17. The board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), which represents the workers, have not held discussions since Feb. 21.

In Vancouver, mail service was slowly grinding to a halt today as federal employees maintained their picket line at the vehicle entrances to the main downtown post office and mail truck drivers refused to cross the PSAC line.

Mail sorting by inside workers of the Canadian Postal Workers Union is continuing, and letter carriers are on their walks in the immediate downtown area and some surrounding residential and business areas.

In Victoria, PSAC workers at the Ministry of Transport marine services base and the Ogden Point grain elevator were off the job today.

Rotating strikes are expected to be stepped up in the Victoria area Saturday in a show of support for the union contract demands, regional PSAC representative Tom Dalzell said.

A million-dollar damage award today may seem a pittance tomorrow in the light of economic uncertainties, Victoria lawyer said Thursday.

Lawyer Herbert Matthews was commenting on the $1.1 million B.C. Supreme Court award Wednesday to a Courtenay girl crippled in a motorcycle accident in 1972.

"I am glad to see our courts taking a realistic view of inflation in these cases," Matthews said.

"These young people have a fair lifespan — probably 70 or 75 — and when you start equating that against our future economy, really the amount is not large. Maybe in 15 years that may look small."

New Leads in Search For Moonlight Killer

MARCUS... 5,000 people fit description

By DEREK SIDENUS
Times Staff

The grisly mystery of the disappearance of a number of young women from the western United States and B.C. within the past year may have moved closer to solution today.

Washington State police report they have now been able to identify five of seven women whose remains have been discovered at two sites within 10 miles of each other, and they are now looking for a man who calls himself "Ted."

The break is of significant interest to RCMP in B.C. who have been investigating the possibility six unsolved murders of women in the province over the past five years may be linked to a series of as many as 22 killings in California, Oregon and Washington over the same period of time.

There is speculation all the murders might have been committed by the same individual, an itinerant male variously described as a schizophrenic maniac, a trophy hunter or moonlight killer.

Some had been sexually molested and some had not; some had been bound with rope and some not. The same is true in the California murders.

There are other similarities too, he points out. The majority were found near water, their bodies deposited over road embankments in rural and semi-rural areas, parks and vacant lots. Nearly all had been murdered elsewhere.

Most of the victims were known to hitch-hike and several were hitch-hiking near their homes when last seen.

The California study notes the missing females in Washington and Oregon disappeared between January and July, 1974, a period, it adds ominously, in which there was no activity reported in California.

Similarly, there was no reported activity in California the dates of the B.C. murders — Colleen MacMillen, 16, of Lac La Hache who died Aug. 9, 1974. Pamela Darlington, See POLICE Page 2

U.S. Bids For Turkish Opium

WASHINGTON (WP) —

Faced with a critically short opium supply, American makers of pain-killing drugs with federal approval are bidding for the opium Turkey once more is producing despite U.S. protests.

A Federal Opium Policy Task Force is also considering allowing cultivation of opium poppies in the U.S., a special assistant to the director of the Office of Management and Budget disclosed yesterday.

Although the government has made no official change in its opposition to Turkish opium production, federal officials agreed Tuesday that increased imports from Turkey are urgently needed to make the codeine and morphine a growing number of American patients are using.

TEL AVIV — Searchers today found the bodies of five foreign tourists in the rubble of a hotel shattered in an Arab guerrilla assault that Israeli leaders termed an attempt to sabotage the Kissinger peace mission and an attack on Egypt as well.

This raised the death toll in the boldest Palestinian strike of its kind to 18, including seven of the eight guerrillas who attacked the city's beachfront from the sea.

Security forces were holding a 150-ton sailboat and its six-man crew that military sources said dropped off the guerrillas' rubber dinghies for the raid.

A naval officer from one of the Israeli navy missile boats that captured it said the sailboat came from Lebanon. It was taken to the port of Haifa and its crew was under questioning.

Meanwhile, Defence Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday night Egypt was as much a target of the guerrilla attack as was Israel.

Israelis enraged over the raid, meanwhile, waited today for their armed forces to wreak vengeance on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

But there was speculation the counterattack would be delayed until after U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's visit in search of a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The study also suggests seven women in Washington and one in Oregon who mysteriously disappeared in 1974 may have fallen victim to the same killer.

Police have found the remains of seven women at two sites in the Seattle area within 10 miles of each other. Five of the victims have been identified.

Four bodies were found in the Mt. Taylor area near North Bend, Wash., the other three in a wooded area near Issaquah.

Two of the victims found in the latter site had apparently helped a young man known only as "Ted" put a sailboat atop his car the day they disappeared.

The California report doesn't tie in any of the B.C. murders but RCMP chief superintendent Mark Marcus feels there are sufficient striking parallels to warrant a thorough examination.

As in the case of the California victims, he says, the B.C. dead were all or nearly all under 30, naked when found and with all or most of their clothing missing.

Some had been sexually molested and some had not; some had been bound with rope and some not. The same is true in the California murders.

There are other similarities too, he points out. The majority were found near water, their bodies deposited over road embankments in rural and semi-rural areas, parks and vacant lots. Nearly all had been murdered elsewhere.

Illness Deports Fijian

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hari Charan Singh, 27, a former Fijian policeman who has lived and worked in British Columbia for five years, Monday was ordered deported because he had suffered a nervous breakdown.

The order, made under an immigration act section dealing with insanity, revokes a 1973 directive that Singh be granted landed immigrant status. The order was made here this week by the immigration appeal board.

Singh is currently employed as a carpenter and the hearing was told that he is a hard worker. He once held two jobs — working as a janitor and on a dairy farm — at one time.

The order could split Singh's family. The immigration appeal board says the order does not apply to Singh's wife, nor his two children — one born in Fiji and one born in Canada.

Singh, who became ill about nine months after he was admitted to Canada, said he doesn't know what steps he will take, but said his wife and children will remain in Canada.

"I don't have any money," he said. "Some friends have promised to help."

Singh entered Canada as a visitor Jan. 4, 1970 and applied for landed immigrant status. His application was turned down and he was ordered deported Sept. 23, 1970 because he was unable to meet the necessary assessment units, such as marriage to a Canadian citizen.

He appealed his case and the immigration appeal board quashed the deportation order and directed on Aug. 24, 1973, that he be granted landed immigrant status.

The immigration department subsequently learned that Singh had entered Riverview Hospital for treatment of a psychotic illness and Singh received a letter Sept. 24, 1974, from A. A. Kirrey of Ottawa on behalf of Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

The letter advised that the minister was seeking to have Singh's 1973 appeal re-opened on grounds of previous insanity.

A hearing of the immigration appeal board resulted in the ruling Monday that the Sept. 23, 1970 deportation order against Singh be executed as soon as practicable.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Andras said the minister cannot intervene in the decision of the immigration appeal board but that the matter would be brought to the minister's attention. He added that Singh would have to leave the country.

The spokesman said Singh's only hope of remaining in Canada would be under a special permit issued by the minister, however, Singh would have to be outside the country to make such an application.

Douglas Carter, executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said the case suggests that people can come to Canada provided they don't get sick.

"It seems unfair to discriminate on grounds of an emotional disorder," Carter said. "The legislation seems to enforce the stigma that mental illness is somehow shameful."

540,000 More
Jobless in U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Nearly 540,000 U.S. workers lost their jobs in February but the unemployment rate held steady at 8.2 per cent last month because a similar number of people entirely dropped out of the labor force, the labor department said today.

The number of jobs supported by the troubled economy dropped to 84 million, back to the level of May 1973.

Employment has dropped 2.4 million since September, 1974, a figure which the bureau of labor statistics described as "the largest five-month cutback recorded in the post-war period."

Meanwhile, the government's weighted average of all wholesale prices declined another 0.8 per cent in February, the third month in a row that it has fallen and a further sign that inflation is giving way to the recession.

It is not giving way completely, however.

Scramble for Jobs Pays Off for 29 From Jordan River

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

It was just three months ago that Rick Robertson was preparing to go to work on the night shift when the call came.

"There will be no further work at the Jordan River mine until further notice," he was told.

And that was that.

The mine was closed.

"It was a very unhappy time with the layoff coming like that, just before Christmas," he recalled today.

However, after six weeks without work and without income — he found a job in Victoria through Canada Manpower.

"I guess I was lucky," he said. "I was about to move to Calgary to try my luck there."

Robertson, 23, is one of 29 former Jordan River miners to find employment in B.C. since the December shutdown.

In all, 76 men were laid off when the mine closed, 63 in December and 13 in an earlier layoff.

Six moved out of B.C., 12 took retraining programs through Canada Manpower and the remaining 29 are still looking for work.

The job search is being co-ordinated by a temporary organization called Jordan River Manpower. The Sooke office, paid for by Canada Manpower, is run by Jack Burns, former Jordan River mine shift boss, assisted by Cliff Linn, another former Jordan River miner.

"We have been able to assist the men in a number of ways," Burns said.

"We find work for some, retraining for others and we have been able to collect about 20 per cent in the back wages owed when the mine closed. We are trying to collect the rest."

Jordan River Mines owed the men more than $60,000 when the mine closed and the company went into receivership. About $50,000 is still owing.

Burns said Jordan River Manpower is trying to arrange for a sale of the mine equipment to bring in the rest of the back wages.

Most of the 29 men who found employment are working in other B.C. mines. Four are working in Texada Island mine, several are in northern B.C.

Three are still employed at Jordan River, guarding the mine machinery on behalf of the sheriff's office. At least two found work in the Victoria area — one at the airport and Robertson, who works in the shipping department of Precision Engines and Parts Ltd.

Robertson has collected about 18 per cent of the $350 he was owed when the mine closed.

"I went six weeks without a pay cheque. It was pretty grim but things are better now that I'm working again."

Robertson was born in Victoria and was delighted that he was able to stay. He continues to rent a small cottage in Sooke.

"The drive isn't too bad. It used to take 35 minutes to get out to Jordan River. It only takes about 25 minutes to drive into Victoria — if I time it right."

He said it can take the better part of an hour if he had to buck the rush hour traffic around 7:30 a.m. He waits until 8:50 p.m. He drives home after the 5 p.m. rush.

Meanwhile, two ex-miners who will soon be looking for work again are Burns and Linn of the Jordan River Manpower office.

"This is just a temporary office to help the men get re-established," Burns said.

Gunman Gets 6 Years

Frank Guiney was sentenced in county court today to six years in the penitentiary for armed robbery at the Criterion Club on Yates Street last September.

Judge Montague Drake said the sentence would have been longer but for the chance of reformation mentioned in a pre-sentence report.

Guiney, 42, of 304 Oswego, was found guilty Feb. 13 of holding up the Criterion Club Sept. 5 and robbing two card players of $1,645.

The court was told earlier that there were eight card players at the club when two masked men entered and ordered the players to lie on the floor.

One of the card players, George Doker, testified earlier that after club manager Les Hanson wrestled one masked man to the floor he pulled off the ski mask, had a good look at the person pinned to the floor and identified Guiney in court as that person.

While Hanson wrestled the man to the floor, a sawed-off shotgun discharged but no one was injured.

Guiney was accused of robbing Hanson of $1,500 and William Winter, another card player, of $145.

The crown earlier entered a stay of proceedings against a second man charged in connection with the robbery.

Guiney himself took the stand during the trial and told the jury he had no recollection of anything between 8 p.m. Sept. 5, the day of the robbery, and 1 a.m. Sept. 6 when he woke up in the hospital.

He said he had had a lot to drink and had taken some valium, a tranquilizer.

A-G's WIFE TO PAY

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald's wife is going to be stuck with paying the fine he received for driving without valid licence plate decals.

Social M.L.A. Jim Chabot (Columbia) raised the question in the legislature Wednesday and asked whether the government might be paying the $10 ticket given to the minister Wednesday when he was driving a government car to work.

Macdonald said his department has taken full blame for the slip-up with the decals and wants to pay the fine.

"But I said no way — my wife will pay," he said.

Chabot also questioned the amount of the fine and Macdonald said he should pay no different amount because of his position.

Victoria city police said if a person has the decals but has failed to display them the penalty is $10; if he hasn't the decals the penalty is $25 plus $250 for no insurance.

Minister Challenged On Jubilee Bed Move

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today he has asked Royal Jubilee Hospital to temporarily assign 70 beds in Memorial Pavilion for extended care patients.

While Cocke said the move will bring immediate relief to a lengthy list of patients waiting for extended care beds, the hospital said it will result in nothing more than reshuffling of patients at the expense of those needing acute care.

Both the Memorial Pavilion, formerly Veterans' Hospital, and the rest of Jubilee are already full, said executive director A. C. Pickles.

And the hospital has a list of about 1,200 people waiting for an acute care bed, meaning some will be waiting up to three months.

Extended care beds are for chronically ill, mostly elderly people, who require nursing rather than acute hospital care. Throughout the Capital district, there is a waiting period from two to five months for patients qualifying for extended care.

Both Jubilee and Victoria General Hospital have pointed out repeatedly in recent months that many of their expensive acute care beds are occupied by patients needing

Murder Appeal

The appeal of Jorg Walter Berger, found guilty last May of murdering Raymond Buckett, will be heard by the B.C. Appeal Court April 28-29 in Victoria.

The appeal was to have been heard Feb. 28 at the Appeal Court in Vancouver but was rescheduled.

Berger, an Austrian student, was convicted of killing Buckett, 41, of 4960 Lochside, by stabbing him. Buckett was found by a passerby in Walbran Park, Oak Bay.

BAREFOOT IN THE PARK — well, on Dallas Road boulevard, to be exact — is more than just a book and movie title for 40-year-old Mervyn Grew, city parks department employee and CUPE member. Shoeless Grew, who normally keeps the boulevards trim and tidy, jogs six miles daily during the current strike-lockout. Maybe he figures that's one way to help keep the grass short. ## Top Men of CUPE Hold Talks in City

B.C. district council of the Canadian Union of Public Employees met today at the Ta'ly-Ho Hotel to deal with bargaining and strike-lockout progress among Greater Victorian and lower mainland locals.

It was a regular meeting of the council, which usually takes place in Vancouver.

Spokesmen for the CUPE area bargaining committee representing striking and locked out civic and school employees in the capital region were not available for comment.

Meanwhile, Capital Regional Board chairman Jim Campbell said a meeting of the regional employers bargaining group set for Monday will be reviewing statements made by the union and also the employers' position "in the light of on-going developments."

Campbell said there is no intention on the part of the group to seek direct intervention by Labor Minister Bill King, in an effort to resolve the present impasse.

"If the labor minister approaches the bargaining group because he is concerned about the failure of the system to produce results — and it must be remembered he is the author of the system — then we would talk to him, of course we would," he said.

But It's Just as Well We Never Knew!

NOT LONG BEFORE we removed ourselves from Gordon Head, I discovered where my long-vanished pruning ladder had gone. It was propped against an overgrown Pacific willow tree in the depths of our wild-land acre. By the green mould that coated it, the ladder had obviously leaned there for a number of years.

It was also plain that the ladder had been spirited from our vegetable garden to replace a set of two-by-four ends that staggered their way up the tree trunk to the remains of a tree fort. The irregular spacing of those aids to climbing indicated that once their number had been larger.

This fact, in turn suggested that some child, since grown to man's or woman's estate, had escaped broken bones by one of those miracles about which no active youngster would survive.

Next time we met, I let the fort-builder know that the mystery of the missing ladder had been solved, and gave him a retroactive chawing out. "I saw those cross-pieces on the tree too," I wound up. "It's a wonder you didn't break your necks."

Ron smiled. "One kid almost did," he said. "Funny — I hadn't thought about that for years. He was starting down when the piece he was standing on came loose. Lucky he landed in a bush."

Ron added cheerfully, "That is why we borrowed the pruning ladder."

Up to a point, what parents don't know won't hurt them. I might add to this homely saw that if they were forced to know in full detail, they mightn't survive, either. Take the time a girl dear to our hearts decided to go for a trail-ride.

We deposited her at a ranch from which guided trail-rides took off for well-ordered excursions into an old logging burn. At intervals during an afternoon of visiting friends up the line, we pictured our darling mounted on a sedate plug on a well-travelled track in the company of a dozen other children. And, naturally, with the watchful guide keeping track of her.

What we didn't know was that the trail-ride had been cancelled, and that Little Miss Silver-Tongue had conned the rancher into letting her head out by her lone.

We picked her up at the appointed time.

— Did she have a nice ride? — It was a lot of fun. How did her horse behave? Fine. Did she see anything interesting?

Lots of things.

And so it went on, through one of those parent-child lit-anies marked by well-intended quizzes and laconic answers.

A month or so later, our chick piped up at dinner.

"Remember that trail ride? I forgot to tell you they let me go out alone. I got lost and a cougar followed us. My horse ran away with me."

I slopped blackberry juice on the table-cloth.

"At least I think it was a cougar," Susan said calmly. "It tagged along beside us in the brush. That was when I was lost on an old grade."

My nape prickled in retrospect.

"My horse got scared. It almost tossed me off."

I asked weakly, "Anything else?"

"Not really. When the horse ran, my lunch got squashed. Maybe it's a good thing that the course of childhood doesn't always proceed as solicitous parents would have it go. It's even possible that adventures safely weathered leave a residue of healthy hardihood.

But when I look at a tired eight-foot dindie of which I am now custodian, I'm reminded of unauthorized juvenile voyagings that would have scared me witless had I known of them at the time.

(Did I say you could take that boat through the Ten Mile rips?)

We had our lifejackets on. Anyway, you didn't say we couldn't.

Most children manage to outgrow childhood. And it could be that the guardian angel who oversees the process knows what he's about when he spares us on-the-spot knowledge of all that goes into the growing!

FIREMEN DOUSE DRAKE PARTIES

Fire escapes on five unoccupied tenement buildings in Old Town, including the Drake Hotel, were removed Thursday by Victoria fire department to prevent fires resulting from illegal entry.

Firemen have put out three mattress fires in the Drake Hotel in the last two weeks.

Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf, who owns and plans to restore the properties, said transient people looking for a place to have a "good party" were able to use the escapes to enter the building.

Price Beaters for Nomads

By HOI-YINDER
Times Staff

A small shop on Johnson Street has found a way to lick soaring prices, and offers a practical product as a bonus.

At Nomad Furniture prices range from 60 cents to $35 and the inventory includes dining tables, executive desks, coffee and work tables, love seats, book shelves, bar stools, even doll houses and toy wheel barrels.

All furniture is made from particle board and is easily assembled and taken apart for moving. For this reason, it is called "nomadic furniture" — made for people on the move.

The shop opened Jan. 20 at 619 Johnson, staffed by seven former mental health patients, and is mainly financed by a $69,309 Canada Manpower Local Employment Plan grant.

Project co-ordinator Keith Morgan said the objective is to train ex-patients in re-tailoring and to reintroduce them into the community.

"In order to cope with reality as we know it, they must be brought out into the public rather than kept in the back rooms. Most of them have difficulty in relating with society ... This we try to deal with," Morgan said.

"It's ever so helpful in getting started again," said one 35-year-old mental patient, learning to be a salesman at Nomad.

"I think it's real good," he said.

Trainees are referred to Nomad by the Canadian Mental Health Association. At the store they are each paid a standard salary of $120 a week.

Morgan said he has been taking a special manpower counselling course in order to help the former patients find jobs in the community.

"As workers get placed in community businesses, new trainees will take their places here," Morgan said.

Behind the retail operation comes the production end which employs another nine patients.

Nomad buys its furniture from the carpentry workshop run by the Victoria branch of CMHA at Laurel House, 1450 Elford Street.

Funding of the workshop differs from that of Nomad.

"Rather than receiving a grant each year, we present a budget to the Community Chest people who then determine how much they can contribute toward the budget," workshop director Dave Williams explained.

Williams said that 65 per cent of the profit from the sale of furniture to Nomad is paid as commission to those not on the workshop staff. The remaining 35 per cent is used for new tools and replacements, maintenance and the defraying of the original cost of the investment in tools.

"At the present, we are solely producing for Nomad, but we eventually hope to catch up with supply and swing into other contracts."

Williams said although expansion is not in immediate plans, the workshop has already grown a lot since its beginning in 1974.

"The workshop program started when CMHA purchased a large collection of used power tools from another Victoria society," Williams said.

"We used to make such items as birdhouses and bird-feeders."

"Then in June of last year, we were contracted by a private firm to cut modular furniture ... and this is how we moved on to nomadic furniture. It's a type of product with a more realistic and rewarding end," said Williams.

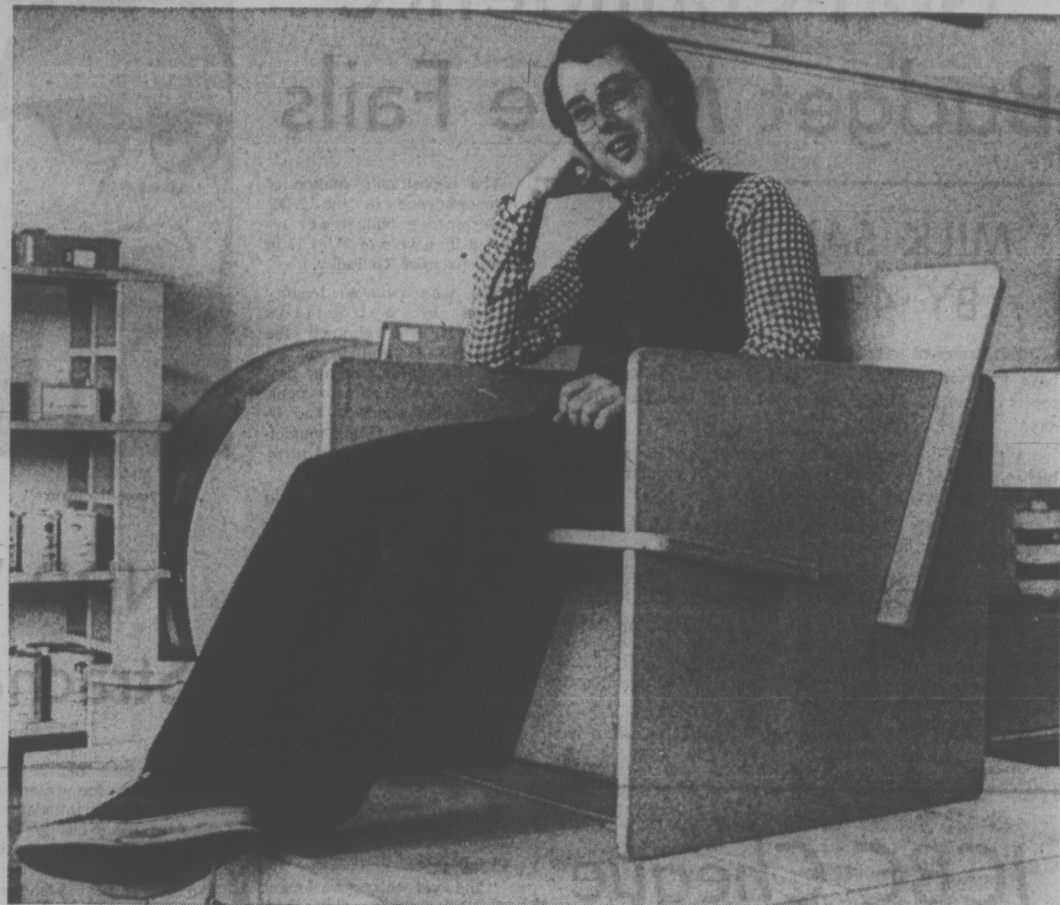

"Can't find much fulfillment in birdhouses," interrupted one of the trainees.

Williams said furniture is unfinished because there is no dust-free area available in the shop for painting.

But Nomad carries paints, varnishes and stains for the customers. The store also sells such items as pillows and macrame plant hangers and tablecloths, all made by ex-patients involved in other Laurel House programs.

Preventive Dentistry Counters Sweets

By LYNNE GORDON

We started the month of February with a Dental Health Week, but who really knows what all this fuss about preventive dentistry is all about?

Is it lofty rhetoric about clean teeth that makes good reading in the Family Pages? Is it that kindergarten stuff about brushing your teeth three times a day?

What concerns me is that the communication about preventive dentistry should start in the dentist's office, where consumers should get it straight from the horse's mouth the way their family dentist sees it.

This hasn't been the case. Dentists haven't been famous for being "easy to talk to." In fact, consumers have put them on a pedestal as Father Figures and allowed them to rule in their isolated four-wall office worlds.

Consumers are so used to

the fill-drill-n-bill syndrome that they feel cheated if the dentist doesn't "do something" before he presents them with a bill.

The first thing to understand about preventive dentistry is that it costs money even when a tooth hasn't been pulled or filled. A consumer may be asked to spend 50 bucks or more on a real preventive program that should include lectures, films and slides whenever possible information on fluoridation and mouth protection in contact sports and, most important, follow-up visits to reinforce home care. That may seem like a lot of money for "nothing," but the point of the program is to prevent expenditures of hundreds, even thousands of dollars on later remedial treatment.

More money is spent on dental disease than any other medical disease. And every penny comes out of your own pocket, unless you happen to be one of the few whose employer participates in a private dental insurance plan. Many people spend up to $5,000 for dental work over a lifetime.

They have the right to know what it's all about. Find out what you'll be paying for "professional services" before you even open your mouth for the drill. Demand the right to be able to talk to your dentist on an equal footing. You're hardly in a position for intelligent dialogue when you're leaning back in a chair, a bib around your neck, a spotlight in your eyes and a terror in every fibre as you wait for the drill to descend. Get out of the chair and talk to your dentist face to face.

Ninety-nine per cent of the population has dental disease, yet preventive dentistry can prevent most decay and gum disease caused by bacteria. Each day, plaque forms in your mouth—a sticky, invisible film of germs and saliva which must be removed daily. A toothbrush should be used as a skill instrument, not as a scrub brush. Toothpaste is mainly for taste but has little value in actual cleaning. In fact, watch for the super-whitening pastes that not only brush away the dirt but the enamel.

No matter how sugar-coated the information you receive about sweets and desserts, sugar is one of the primary causes of cavities. It's shocking to consider that 24 out of 25 children have dental disease before they're six years old.

When you give your children or eat yourself a chocolate bar, your teeth are munching on seven teaspoons of sugar; a piece of cherry pie contains 14 and a piece of chocolate cake 15 teaspoons of sugar. As a result of the sweet life, 90 per cent of people over 60 have lost their teeth.

Get your children started on a preventive dentistry program as early as possible and find out how to break the old repair and replace syndrome for yourself.

Begin by opening a dialogue with your dentist; get out of the dentist's chair; topple the Father Figure from his pedestal and talk to him face to face. You have the right to ask questions and the right to clear answers.

Textbooks, Novels In Provider's Hold

When the HMCS Provider pulled out of Esquimalt harbor this week she had textbooks and novels in her hold.

Fifty-five boxes of them were gathered, categorized and packaged by members of Victoria's branch of the English-speaking Union and are destined for New Guinea and the Solomon Islands.

Victoria's branch, with about 200 members, is the only one in Canada affiliated with London, England's Ransbury library service which supplies underdeveloped areas of the world with books.

Last year the service reached the five million mark in books sent from London, said Victoria branch chairman Hugh Ross.

"We collect books from libraries, schools, wherever we can get them," said Ross.

"The Canadian navy takes them free of charge."

NORTH COWICHAN — The B.C. parks branch has rejected an offer to buy 15 acres of waterfront at Crofton.

Ruth and Ray Gallagher of Crofton offered to sell the property to the government for $150,000. It included about 800 feet of beachfront.

Gov't in Trap Over Deal Charges MLA

The provincial government is trapped in a worthless agreement to purchase the Casa Loma complex in Burnaby, and stands to lose at least $365,000 on the deal, Liberal MLA Allan Williams charged Thursday.

The agreement, Williams said in the legislature, is inoperative until Burnaby city council confirms in writing it has approved rezoning the complex and "yet the government has spent $365,000. It's now beyond the reach of the government and you can't get it back."

The government has admitted the Casa Loma owners were advanced $365,000 as down payment on the $3.5 million the government agreed to pay for the complex.

Technically, the money was handed over to Casa Loma Motels Ltd. outside the contract, Williams said.

Williams also said electricity and fire protection devices in the complex do not meet CMHC standards and the government would have to finance upgrading of the systems to get funding. CMHC is withholding $3.1 million in mortgage funds until certain problems are resolved.

Liberal leader David Anderson added the charge that the government was conspiring with Casa Loma owners on purchase arrangements 10 days before outstanding liens were settled on the development.

Anderson said the housing department applied for federal government financing Nov. 18, 10 days before liens with subcontractors on the project were settled Nov. 28.

Documents tabled in the house later by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson confirm in the Certificate of Title that the government applied for a mortgage on the property Nov. 18.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, however, accused the opposition of throwing political flack around the complex when all the government intends is to provide much-needed accommodation for senior citizens.

"If by May 31 we haven't got the rezoning we get all the money back, secured by the mortgage at 12 per cent interest."

"I don't think the crown will want to retire from this deal — we want the accommodation," said Macdonald, saying the only real matters of concern are charges the government affected settlement with lienholders.

"The crown said we would purchase that thing free of liens," said Macdonald. "It was a condition of purchase."

The government couldn't have usurped the role of a judge, said the attorney-general, or it would have been in error.

The lienholders, he said, Contract Flouted Policy-PC

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department ignored government policy when it awarded a federal contract to a U.S.-owned company that slightly underbid a Canadian firm, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) said Thursday.

He said in the Commons that Best Cleaners and Contractors Ltd. of Vancouver won $715,000 for maintenance at Vancouver International Airport. That was $20,000 more than the successful $695,000 bid by Consolidated Maintenance Services Ltd., a Toronto company wholly-owned by Allied Maintenance Corp. of New York.

Reynolds said the difference was only three per cent. He had understood that the government would give such contracts to Canadian companies even if they were underbid up to 10 per cent.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said that while he is as concerned as Reynolds about the layoffs he was not aware of any policy that Canadian firms would get contracts even if their bid was high.

But supply minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, when pressed by Reynolds, said the policy does exist.

New Leads in Search For Moonlight Killer

MARCUS... 5,000 people fit description

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The grisly mystery of the disappearance of a number of young women from the western United States and B.C. within the past year, may have moved closer to solution today.

Washington State police report they have now been able to identify five of seven women whose remains have been discovered at two sites within 10 miles of each other, and they are now looking for a man who calls himself "Ted."

The break is of significant interest to RCMP in B.C. who have been investigating the possibility six unsolved murders of women in the province over the past five years may be linked to a series of as many as 22 killings in California, Oregon and Washington over the same period of time.

There is speculation all the murders might have been committed by the same individual, an itinerant male variously described as a schizophrenic maniac, a trophy hunter or moonlight killer.

The basis for the investigation is a comprehensive report on unsolved female homicides in California released last month by the state's department of justice.

Undertaken by the division of law enforcement, organized crime and criminal intelligence branch based in Sacramento, the study analyses 103 unsolved murders in the state since December, 1969, and concludes 13 or 14 of them might be the work of one man.

The study also suggests seven women in Washington and one in Oregon who mysteriously disappeared in 1974 may have fallen victim to the same killer.

Police have found the remains of seven women at two sites in the Seattle area within 10 miles of each other. Five of the victims have been identified.

Four bodies were found in the Mt. Taylor area near North Bend, Wash., the other three in a wooded area near Issaquah.

Two of the victims found in the latter site had apparently helped a young man known only as "Ted" put a sailboat atop his car the day they disappeared.

The California report doesn't tie in any of the B.C. murders but RCMP chief superintendent Mark Marcus feels there are sufficient striking parallels to warrant a thorough examination.

As in the case of the California victims, he says, the B.C. dead were all or nearly all found near water, their bodies deposited over road embankments in rural and semi-rural areas, parks and vacant lots. Nearly all had been murdered elsewhere.

Most of the victims were known to hitch-hike and several were hitch-hiking near their homes when last seen.

The California victims all disappeared from Friday to Sunday, invariably during darkness hours, and in every case but two at or near the time of a full moon. The other two went missing within two days of a new moon.

The same applies in the B.C. killings with four of the six identified victims being murdered within a week of a full moon, two on a Friday, one on a Saturday, the fourth on a Tuesday (the lone exception).

The first of the B.C. murders was that of Gloria Moody, a 27-year-old Indian woman who died to death after being raped and mutilated on a lonely road near Williams Lake Oct. 26, 1969.

The first murder in the California series occurred on Dec. 10, 1969. There was one killing in the state in 1970 (March) and one in 1971 (August). In 1972 there were four — two in February, (the same day), one in March and one in November. In 1973 there were five — one in May, one in June and three in July. The year 1974 saw only one, on Sept. 29.

The California study notes the missing females in Washington and Oregon disappeared between January and July, 1974, a period, it adds ominously, in which there was no activity reported in California.

PSAC Talks Resume As Strikes Continue

Times News Service

Talks are to resume today in the dispute between striking federal labor and trades workers, and the Treasury Board, a board spokesman said today in Ottawa.

The spokesman said discussions would begin shortly before noon-Victoria time but would not elaborate on their nature.

Selective strikes by the 18,600 federal employees have hit various parts of the country since Feb. 17. The board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), which represents the workers, have not held discussions since Feb. 21.

In Vancouver, mail service was slowly grinding to a halt today as federal employees maintained their picket line at the vehicle entrances to the main downtown post office and mail truck drivers refused to cross the PSAC line.

Mail sorting by inside workers of the Canadian Postal Workers Union is continuing, and letter carriers are on their walks in the immediate downtown area and some surrounding residential and business areas.

In Victoria, PSAC workers at the Ministry of Transport marine services base and the Ogden Point grain elevator were off the job today.

Rotating strikes are expected to be stepped up in the Victoria area Saturday in a show of support for the union contract demands, regional PSAC representative Tom Dalzell said.

TOUGHER CRACKDOWN EYED FOR SPEEDERS

The provincial government is investigating more stringent controls for the five per cent of B.C. motorists who insist on speeding, Highways Minister Graham Lea said today.

RCMP radar checks made on the province's highways since speed limits were lowered show a small percentage of drivers who insist on blatantly breaking the speed limits of B.C., Lea said.

"This small percentage is putting the lives of others in danger and we're looking at more stringent controls," said the highways minister during the budget debate in the legislature.

They're Prisoners of Love

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Solicitor General Warren Allmand will be getting a rather unusual letter soon.

Robin Shaw, 19, and Darlene Thomas, 20, prisoners at the Prince George co-educational jail, said Thursday they will write Allmand in Ottawa seeking permission to be married.

They were recently denied permission to marry by the provincial attorney-general's department.

Both say they don't want to wait until their release from jail to take the vows.

Their relationship has already got them in hot water with the jail's administration when they were caught in November contravening regulations of segregation while they were supposed to be on a recreation period.

The romance began last June when Thomas was transferred here from the lower mainland regional correction centre in Burnaby, where she was serving a 15-month sentence for forgery. She is scheduled to be released May 28.

Shaw was convicted of a parole violation and is up for release in August.

If the marriage took place while both were in prison, it would be a first in Canada.

The jail here is the only correctional institution in the country where men and women are housed under the same roof.

U.S. Bids For Turkish Opium

WASHINGTON (WP)

Faced with a critically short opium supply, American makers of pain-killing drugs with federal approval are bidding for the opium Turkey once more is producing despite U.S. protests.

A Federal Opium Policy Task Force is also considering allowing cultivation of opium poppies in the U.S., a special assistant to the director of the Office of Management and Budget disclosed yesterday.

Although the government has made no official change in its opposition to Turkish opium production, federal officials agreed Tuesday that increased imports from Turkey are urgently needed to make the codeine and morphine a growing number of American patients are using.

Tourists Added To Raid Toll

Times News Services

TEL AVIV — Searchers today found the bodies of five foreign tourists in the rubble of a hotel shattered in an Arab guerrilla assault that Israeli leaders termed an attempt to sabotage the Kissinger peace mission and an attack on Egypt as well.

This raised the death toll in the boldest Palestinian strike of its kind to 18, including seven of the eight guerrillas who attacked the city's beachfront from the sea.

Security forces were holding a 150-ton sailboat and its six-man crew that military sources said dropped off the guerrillas' rubber dinghies for the raid.

A naval officer from one of the Israeli navy missile boats that captured it said the sailboat came from Lebanon. It was taken to the port of Haifa and its crew was under questioning.

Meanwhile, Defence Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday night Egypt was as much a target of the guerrilla attack as was Israel.

Israelis enraged over the raid, meanwhile, waited today for their armed forces to wreak vengeance on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

But there was speculation the counterattack would be delayed until after U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's visit in search of a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

"They will be punished,"

Premier Yitzhak Rabin said after the attack. Strikes at guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon have followed every previous such Palestinian attack into Israel.

Palestinian leaders in Beirut ordered a maximum alert at the 15 refugee camps in Lebanon and the main office of the Palestine Liberation Organization was evacuated as a precautionary measure.

Israeli military intelligence chief Shlomo Gazit said the guerrillas had tried to mislead the Israelis into thinking Egypt was involved by scrawling "Kissinger's efforts will fail" and "The Egyptian Army Seaman" on one of the rafts used in the raid.

The one surviving guerrilla also told authorities the commandos came from Egypt, but officials said he was lying.

Jobless in U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Nearly 540,000 U.S. workers lost their jobs in February but the unemployment rate held steady at 8.2 per cent last month because a similar number of people entirely dropped out of the labor force, the labor department said today.

The number of jobs supported by the troubled economy dropped to 84 million, back to the level of May, 1973.

Employment has dropped 2.4 million since September, 1974, a figure which the bureau of labor statistics described as "the largest five-month cutback recorded in the post-war period."

Meanwhile, the government's weighted average of all wholesale prices declined another 0.8 per cent in February, the third month in a row that it has fallen and a further sign that inflation is giving way to the recession.

It is not giving way completely, however.

Illness Deports Fijian

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hari Charan Singh, 27, a former Fijian policeman who has lived and worked in British Columbia for five years, Monday was ordered deported because he had suffered a nervous breakdown.

The order, made under an immigration act section dealing with insanity, revokes a 1973 directive that Singh be granted landed immigrant status. The order was made here this week by the immigration appeal board.

Singh is currently employed as a carpenter and the hearing was told that he is a hard worker. He once held two jobs — working as a janitor and on a dairy farm — at one time.

The order could split Singh's family. The immigration appeal board says the order does not apply to Singh's wife, nor his two children — one born in Fiji and one born in Canada.

Singh, who became ill about nine months after he was admitted to Canada, said he doesn't know what steps he will take, but said his wife and children will remain in Canada.

"I don't have any money," he said. "Some friends have promised to help."

Singh entered Canada as a visitor Jan. 4, 1970 and applied for landed immigrant status. His application was turned down and he was ordered deported Sept. 23, 1970 because he was unable to meet the necessary assessment units, such as marriage to a Canadian citizen.

He appealed his case and the immigration appeal board quashed the deportation order and directed on Aug. 24, 1973, that he be granted landed immigrant status.

The immigration department subsequently learned that Singh had entered River-view Hospital for treatment of a psychotic illness and Singh received a letter Sept. 24, 1974, from A. K. Kinnear, of Ottawa on behalf of Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

The letter advised that the minister was seeking to have Singh's 1973 appeal re-opened on grounds of previous insanity.

A hearing of the immigration appeal board resulted in the ruling Monday that the Sept. 23, 1970 deportation order against Singh be executed as soon as practicable.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Andras said the minister cannot intervene in the decision of the immigration appeal board but that the matter would be brought to the minister's attention. He added that Singh would have to leave the country.

The spokesman said Singh's only hope of remaining in Canada would be under a special permit issued by the minister, however, Singh would have to be outside the country to make such an application.

Douglas Carter, executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said the case suggests that people can come to Canada provided they don't get sick.

"It seems unfair to discriminate on grounds of an emotional disorder," Carter said. "The legislation seems to enforce the stigma that mental illness is somehow shameful."

Million $ Award Millstone... Pittance

By AB KENT

A million-dollar damage award today may seem a pittance tomorrow in the light of economic uncertainties, Victoria lawyer said Thursday.

Lawyer Herbert Matthews was commenting on the $1.1 million B.C. Supreme Court award Wednesday to a Courtenay girl crippled in a motorcycle accident in 1972.

"I am glad to see our courts taking a realistic view of inflation in these cases," Matthews said.

"These young people have a fair lifespan — probably 70 or 75 — and when you start equating that against our future economy, really the amount is not large. Maybe in 15 years that may look small."

A person faced with a massive judgment far exceeding his insurance coverage remains liable for payment for 21 years. His assets may be seized and his wages garnished.

The judgment may be just but nonetheless an awesomely heavy millstone on his neck.

Matthews suggested the government should "pick up the tab on these large judgments, disregarding the limiting factor on the policy."

This idea is in line with the 39-year-old practice in the United Kingdom, where any British citizen using the highways is covered for the highest liability.

A jury deliberated more than six hours Wednesday before awarding $1.1 million to Corrine Rhonda Lissell, 18, who was permanently paralyzed in both legs and an arm after suffering spinal damage in the accident. She had been passenger on a motorcycle being driven by a friend on the highway to Comox when it collided with a car turning into a driveway.

The judgment was against motorcycleist Randy David Cox, 35 per cent at fault, and car driver Henry Paul, assessed 5 per cent of the blame. Both are workers in the forest industry.

How much public liability insurance the two carried at the time was not disclosed to the court, but the legal minimum required was $50,000 for each vehicle owner.

"All the hapless girl is going to get is the insurance limit," Matthews said.

The legal profession has recognized for some time the tv week

March 8 to March 14

GENIUS OF THE GENERAL — Buster Keaton directed and stars in the 1927 silent film classic, The General, to be telecast on Saturday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9. This film is considered by most film critics to be the last truly classic comedy of the silent era and includes the spectacular scene shown here.

The Tall Stranger (xx), on 4 at noon. Predictable 1957 western adventure starring Joel McCrea and Virginia Mayo.

The Indian Fighter (ix), on 5 at noon. Army scout Kirk Douglas is sent on a peace mission deep into Indian country in this action-packed 1955 western drama.

Lad, A Dog (xx), on 11 at 1. A 1962 drama about a collie dog who brings love to a crippled girl, starring Peter Breck, Peggy McKay and Angela Cartwright. For canine lovers and youngsters only.

Cape Fear (xxx), on 7 at 5. Excellent performances by Gregory Peck, Robert Mitchum and Polly Bergen highlight this brutal 1962 melodrama about a convict terrorizing the lawyer and his family who sentenced him to prison. Mitchum is especially good in his portrayal of the sadistic killer.

persistently cheerful heroine of Eleanor H. Porter's popular children's stories. In this 1960 film adaptation, set in 1912, Pollyanna is an orphan living with her wealthy aunt in a small town. A fine supporting cast includes Jae Wyman, Karl Malden and Adolphe Menjou. Enjoyment for the whole family.

Skulduggery (x) on 4 at 8. A 1970 low-budget adventure about an anthropological expedition in New Guinea which stumbles upon a band of blond ape-like creatures who may be the missing link in evolution. Burt Reynolds, playing a hunter, doesn't take anything too seriously, including the script.

Hello Dolly! (xxxx), on 8 at 8. Gene Kelly directed this lavish 1969 screen version of the long-running Broadway hit, and its success depends almost entirely on Barbra Streisand's popularity. She is, of course, miscast and much too young and obviously marriageable to portray a marriage broker to make the story have much sense—but all this is forgotten when Barbra takes over. She overpowers everyone in the cast with the exception of the late great Louis Armstrong who makes a brief appearance with Streisand singing the title song, which he helped to popularize.

The General (xxxx), on 9 at 8. This 1927 movie, starring and directed by Buster Keaton, is considered by film historians to be the last truly classic comedy of the silent era. It's a Civil War story with Keaton as a Confederate train engineer—and his madcap, frantic search for his train. A virtuoso accomplishment for Keaton, the film includes spectacular battle scenes interspersed with sequences of Keaton's celebrated dry pantomimic wit.

The Scalp Hunters (xxx), on 2 at 9. An entertaining western mixture of action and comedy starring Burt Lancaster at his athletic and charming best as a fur trapper whose pelts are stolen. Enter Ossie Davis as an educated, runaway slave, and the plot thickens with the help of colorful supporting performances by Shelley Winters and Telly Savalas. Expertly directed by Sidney Pollack in 1968.

The Owl and the Pussycat (xxx), on 8 at 9 and 6 at 11:30. Critics generally praised Barbra Streisand's first non-singing role in this 1970 comedy about the romantic adventures of a softhearted New York prostitute living next door to a would-be writer, expertly played by George Segal. After being evicted from her apartment, Segal reluctantly allows Streisand to spend the night—a night that stretches into days as the two fall in love with each other.

Soylent Green, on 7 at 10. No rating available on this 1973 science fiction ecological melodrama, starring Charlton Heston and Edward G. Robinson. The story is set in a polluted, futuristic society beset with widespread overpopulation and undernourishment, where the most popular food is a mysterious cracker called soylent green.

Mrs. Wiggs of Cabbage Patch (xx) on 11 at 10. W. C. Fields and ZaSu Pitts star in this 1934 adaptation of Alice Hegan Rice's story about the consistent optimism of a poor family who always hope for the best and end up with the worst.

Across the Pacific (xxx), on 12 at 10. John Houston's directed magic and a fine cast (Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor and Sydney Greenstreet) make this 1942 spy melodrama thoroughly entertaining.

The Sound and the Fury (xxx), on 5 at 10:15. A 1959 screen rendering of William Faulkner's novel about a disintegrating family in the South, highlighted with excellent performances by Yul Brynner, Joanne Woodward, Stuart Whitman and Ethel Waters.

The Picture of Dorian Gray (xxx), on 4 at 10:45. A not too faithful but still compelling 1944 adaptation of Oscar Wilde's tale about a handsome man whose face never ages or reflects the evil he has done but his portrait shows all, starring George Saunders and Donna Reed.

They Call Me Mister Tibbs! (xx), on 8 at midnight. Sidney Poitier repeats his, In the Heat of the Night role as a big city detective, but this time the locale has been moved from the Deep South to San Francisco, and the plot is involved with dope pushers and murder. Absolutely routine with Poitier looking and acting, quite understandably, very bored.

The Adventures of Marco Polo (xx), on 12 at 12:05. A miscast Gary Cooper stars in this sprawling 1938 spectacle about the famed 13th-century traveller's adventures while travelling from Venice to Peking. Extravagant production detail by Smauel Goldwyn but little historical or entertainment value.

The Pride and the Passion (xx), on 6 at 1:30. An over-produced 1957 spectacle set during the Spanish Revolution against Napoleon, and starring Cary Grant, Sophia Loren and Frank Sinatra. The real star of this overlong epic is an enormous cannon abandoned by the Spanish Army and retrieved by a band of guerrillas.

Imitation of Life (xx), on 7 at 1:30. A 1934 soap opera about a widow who builds a business, and a new life, with the help of a black woman, starring Claudette Colbert and Louise Beavers.

Mayerling, on 8 at 2:15. No rating available on this 1968 drama about the tragic 19th century romance between Austria Crown Prince Rudolf and the Baroness Maria Vetsera, with an attractive cast that includes Omar Sharif, Catherine Deneuve, Ava Gardner and James Mason.

THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT—Barbra Streisand and George Segal star in the warm and wildly funny comedy The Owl and the Pussycat, to be telecast at 8 p.m. on Channel 8 and 11:20 p.m. on Channel 6. Streisand (in a non-singing role) plays a kooky, warm-hearted New York prostitute who falls in love with a would-be writer (Segal) living next door to her.

Golf Pro Sets Sights On Superstar Status

Jerry Heard makes it very clear: he wants to be one of golf's superstars. "That's what I'm working toward," the Californian says. "I want to be as good as I can get. I want to win them all."

There are people who believe Jerry already has made it into the high strata reserved for sport heroes as he prepares to defend his 1974 Florida Citrus Open title on the CBS Television Network Saturday, March 8, 1:00-2:00 p.m., and Sunday, March 9, 12:30-2:00 p.m.

Goals? "The only goal I've ever set has been to win $100,000 a year," he says in a matter-of-fact way. "If you win that much, you usually have to win a tournament or two. Yes, I want to win one of the major tournaments. My game has come along to where I can win one of them, and I believe one will come in time."

He isn't going to be overly concerned if he doesn't win one soon, though. Heard simply isn't the worrying kind.

JERRY HEARD
... defends title

He seems to be loose and tension-free in a tournament.

Too casual, you say? Heard doesn't think so. He believes that attitude helps to keep him loose.

Since he joined the PGA Tour, Heard says, the biggest improvement in his game has been in striking the ball. "I used to be a poor driver," he says. "Now I'm one of the better ones. It's just experience."

Although he started golfing when he was age 11, the first time Heard saw a professional tournament was at the Halg Scotch Foursome Invitational in November, 1967. "I was like a duck in a new pond," he says. "It was the first time I ever had seen people like Billy Casper and Doug Sanders."

Heard was graduated from the 1968 Qualifying School, and since that day, he says, a number of pros have helped him. "With most of the players, if you ask them an intelligent question, they'll give you an intelligent answer."

But Heard put together his own putting stroke merely by watching others. "The first year," he notes, "I just watched how they did it." Then, he put the pieces together. And now, he says, "I have Dave Stockton's grip, George Archer's stroke and Bob Charles' set-up position."

Obviously, that's a winning combination.

Raquel Censored On Cher Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Raquel Welch was censored off television a couple of weeks ago.

She was a guest on the Cher show singing a ditty titled I Feel Like Making Love. Somebody felt otherwise and snipped the song from the show.

Was it blue pencilled by CBS? Did the FCC fear she would corrupt the WCTU?

Or did hostess Cher Bono, who is less spectacularly endowed than her guest, lower the boom on Miss Welch?

"I don't know who cut out the solo number," a distraught Raquel replied.

"I hope it wasn't Cher.

Maybe it was the FCC. They're really worried about the 7:30 time slot because all the kids are watching."

Raquel said the song is a low key ballad with innocent lyrics.

"There is no explanation for cutting that number," Raquel said. "Someone said my dress was too much. Or too little. It was just a basic sheath with a draped neckline.

"I made a point of not overdoing the décolletage. After all, it was designed by Bob Mackey who does all of Cher's wardrobe.

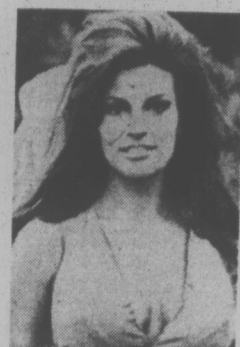

"It covered up a lot compared to the scanty clothes Cher wears on the show. In her opening number all she wore across her bosom were a few beads.

"They used the duet Cher and I sang. It was really a battle of the navels. The song was W-O-M-A-N and we wore bare midriff outfits. They were a lot more revealing than my gown in the solo."

Raquel was disquieted, too, that Cher's rendition of Stick It, filled with double entendres, replaced her own song.

"What upsets me is the strange sensation of being censored just because my name is Raquel Welch, the sex symbol," she said.

"People over-react to whatever I do because of my image. I didn't gyrate in that number. It was shot mostly in closeups. I saw the show with my number still in it. The executives didn't object at the time.

RAQUEL WELCH
... innocent lyrics

"But they worried about the duet with our navels showing."

Raquel is aware she's paying the price for her early career, most of which featured her astonishing architecture. Her chickens, so to speak, have come home to a delectable roost.

"I'm vulnerable to criticism on that count," she admitted. "In the beginning I did take advantage of my figure. But lately I haven't exploited it."

"I go along with my image to an extent but I want to show off my ability too. And Cher's show was a chance for me to do a nice solo. I enjoyed the show."

"Whoever cut my song wasn't censoring the gown. They were censoring me. I resent that. It doesn't hurt anyone to see an attractive woman dressed to show off her assets.

"I've had enough of that in my career to know the difference between bad taste and good. Daring clothes are Cher's trademark and they didn't censor her."

Movies

Rodan (x), on 11 at 1. A 1956 Japanese-made thriller about a million-year-old egg that hatches a monster.

Killer Bees (xx), on 6 and 8 at 2:30. Silent film fans will enjoy seeing a still well-preserved Gloria Swanson in this 1974 made-for-TV movie. She plays the iron-willed matriarch who dominates a family of California vinegrowers. She also has a strange power over a colony of bees that thrive in the vineyard providing an eerie symbolic level in this drama.

Wyoming Outlaw (xx), on 11 at 2:30. A 1939 potboiler western starring John Wayne.

Search for the Gods, on 4 at 7:30. An unreviewed 1975 made-for-TV drama (and a pilot for a proposed series) about the struggle for possession of an ancient medallion which may confirm the existence of prehistoric extraterrestrial astronauts. Cast includes Stephen McHattie, Kurt Russell and Ralph Bellamy.

Bullitt (xxxx), on 12 at 9. An aggressive performance by Steve McQueen as a tough, modern-day police detective and an exciting chase finale highlights this entertaining 1968 crime-drama. The plot has McQueen tracking Mafia killers, but it's the sequence involving one of the greatest auto chases ever filmed that makes this movie special.

The Tartars (xx), on 5 at 10. A 1960 Italian-made spectacle set during the time of the Vikings and mostly concerned with bloody battles, kidnappings and orgies, starring Orson Welles and Victor Mature.

Blossoms in the Dust (xxx), on 4 at 10:30. Greer Garson stars in this 1941 drama based on the true story of Edna Gladney, the dedicated woman who founded a Texas orphanage and pioneered child welfare. Stirring, sentimental and featuring an excellent supporting cast that includes Walter Pidgeon.

Black Noon, on 7 at 11. No rating available on this 1971 made-for-TV drama about an unseen power gripping a desert town and a minister who tries to fight it. Cast includes Roy Thimmes and Yvette Mimieux.

Performance, on 2 and 6 at 9. The Trial of Sinyavsky and Daniel — a dramatization of an actual court case held in Moscow in February 1966. On trial are Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel, two Russian writers charged with writing anti-Soviet pieces and sending them, abroad to be published. Adapted from an actual transcript of the trial and starring Alan Dobie, Robert Silverman and John Colicos. (60 mins.)

Streisand Concert Spans Funny Girl to Funny Lady

Sunday, March 9, 6:30-7:30 p.m. the CTV Television Network will telecast Funny Girl to Funny Lady, a Barbra Streisand concert, live from the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

A black-tie audience of Washington notables will be on hand in the Eisenhower Theatre, and proceeds from the concert will benefit the Special Olympics for Retarded Children, of which U.S. First Lady, Mrs. Betty Ford, is honorary Chairwoman.

The concert precedes the world premiere of Miss Streisand's latest film, Funny Lady, and highlights from that picture will be shown during the telecast as well as clips from earlier films such as Funny Girl and The Way We Were.

Of course, Barbra will sing. Dick Cavett hosts the event, which will also feature James Caan, Miss Streisand's co-star in Funny Lady. Cavett interviews Barbra, and will introduce prominent guests in the audience.

OSCAR WINNER STARS IN KOJAK

Ruth Gordon, a petite, vibrant actress, has been taking life by the horns for a long time now — about a hundred years, to quote her husband, writer-director Garson Kanin. Not quite, but she shows no signs of slackening her pace.

Appropriately, she began her stage career playing in "Peter Pan." Much later, she switched from pixies to poltergeists, for her role as the devilish neighbor in the film "Rosemary's Baby." When she accepted her Oscar for that performance, Miss Gordon announced, "I can't tell you how encouraging a thing like this is."

Now, in yet another spirited performance, she appears for the first time in a television series as guest star of the "Kojak" episode "I Want to Report a Dream..." Sunday, March 9 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

"I suspect it's one of the best acting jobs I've ever done," she says, even though Miss Gordon has a lengthy career of accomplishments to look back upon for comparison. "They were the best people and the script was exciting."

Miss Gordon started her acting career by flunking out of drama school. Nonetheless, she has gone on defying expectations ever since.

She arrived in New York City from New England, much against her father's protests, and lived on nickels and dimes for a while. Within four years she had made her way to Broadway success.

"Nothing is impossible," she contends, reflecting back on her life. "I've been an actress so long I can imagine myself at anything."

Heritage Special Explores Impact of German Culture

Even beyond the wildest expectations of the experts who said Germany would never recover after the Second World War, the country has been repaired. Presently Germany enjoys one of the highest standards of living and enjoys the protection of the strongest military force in Western Europe. Through order, discipline, and obedience, Germany has risen from the ashes. Producer Richard Letterman, one of Canada's best known cinematographers, examines this modern Germany and the impact of the German immigrant in Canada in the next fascinating Heritage episode titled Germany, airing Sunday, March 9, 8:30-9:30 p.m. on the CTV Television Network.

"It has been ten years since my last visit to Germany," says CTV Producer Letterman. "In that time the visible changes are vast. It is because of these changes and differences in the nature and quality of German life that this documentary is so challenging. My goal in this film is to examine and depict the lifestyles, cultures and traditions of German life as it is found today in the old country and here."

The most prevalent characteristic is a natural reticence in conversation, Letterman found. Social encounters are highly structured and the inner emotions and tensions of the people are expressed through their dedication to hard work.

Through the eyes and emotions of five families, situated on two continents, Letterman has achieved a definitive insight into the German immigrant.

High Risk Sport

Hang Gliding Focus Of Outdoor Series

ABC Sports The American Sportsman goes pheasant hunting with television star Redd Foxx and outdoor editor Grits Gresham in the state of Washington and follows actress Margot Kidder as she learns the fast-growing sport of hang-gliding in Wyoming Rockies, Sunday, March 9, (1:30-2:15 p.m.), on the ABC Television Network.

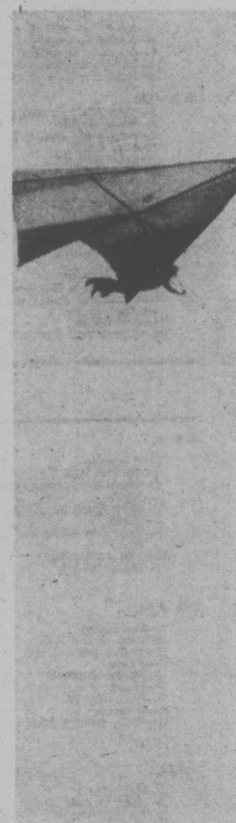

The hang-gliding portion of the program follows young actress Margot Kidder from her first exposure to the sport on a beach in Los Angeles to her soaring high-altitude solos in the Wyoming Rockies, one of the meccas for devotees of what has been described as "the nearest thing to pure flight."

Hang-gliding instructor Pat Connery leads her through the paces as she learns the technique on a stable Rogallo-type glider — essentially a flying wing from which the pilot is suspended. The film footage is spectacular, and Ms. Kidder provides her own narration. She is also equipped with a radio-frequency microphone which captures the sounds of hang-gliding flight, and her own airborne reactions.

(Note: Shortly after this sequence was filmed, instructor Pat Connery suffered fatal injuries when a hang-glider he was piloting crashed on a hillside. On the telecast, series host Curt Gowdy explains that Connery "died in the pursuit of safety, testing a new design aimed at making hang-gliding safer for everyone."

Gowdy further points out to viewers that while The American Sportsman attempts to document the thrills of outdoor adventure, "don't be fooled believing that those thrills don't carry high risks.")

Today's Highlights

Luncheon Date, on 2 at noon. Host Elwood Glover welcomes film director Peter Bogdanovich (Paper Moon) who discusses his new movie At Long Last Love. (90 mins.)

John Denver, on 4 at 7. A mixture of music, comedy and scuba diving with host John Denver and his guests Danny Kaye and famed oceanographer Jacques Cousteau (in a special segment filmed off the coast of Belize). (60 mins.)

Family Theatre, on 5 at 7. A special made-for-television adaptation of Oscar Wilde's classic comedy, the Canterville Ghost. David Niven plays Sir Simon de Canterville, a 300-year-old English ghost whose castle's new tenants, an unflappable American family, consider only a minor nuisance. Ignored for the first time in his haunting career, Sir Simon sets out to teach the "vulgar" Americans a lesson they will not forget. A fine supporting cast includes James Whitmore, Flora Robson and Maurice Evans. (60 mins.)

The Law, on 8 at 7. Based on last season's critically-acclaimed TV movie, this drama focuses on an intense criminal attorney as he challenges the legal system in the course of defending his client. In this first of a three-part series, he represents a divorcee who inflicts a minor stab wound on her husband and is charged with murder when he unexpectedly dies. (60 mins.)

Hollywood, on 9 at 7. Double Solitaire, an adult drama about a middle-aged couple re-examining their marital relationship, starring Richard Crenna and Susan Clark. (90 mins.)

Kojak, on 12 at 7. Oscar-winning actress Ruth Gordon (Rosemary's Baby) stars in tonight's episode of this popular crime-drama series starring Telly Savalas in the title role. She plays a spiritualist who is having revelations about women being strangled and her predictions are coming true.

Romantic Rebellion, on 9 at 8:30. Conclusion of a two-part study of the life and work of painter Jean-Auguste Ingres, with host Kenneth Clark. (30 mins.)

Science Magazine, on 2 and 6 at 10. In the last show of the series, host geneticist David Suzuki analyses children's ideas about scientists as revealed in their drawings. (30 mins.)

Man Alive, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. Writer Isaac Asimov and novelist-physician Han Suyin are among guests sharing their views on the different cultural attitudes toward children and the family with host Roy Bonisteel. (30 mins.)

Movies

The Hangman (xx), on 11 at noon. A long drawn-out 1959 western about a U.S. marshal determined to track down a wanted man, but finds the whole town against him. Cast includes Robert Taylor, Fess Parker and Tina Louise.

Ask Any Girl (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. An attractive cast of expert screen comedy talents (David Niven, Shirley MacLaine and Gig Young) add stature to this lightweight 1959 story about the plight of the single girl in the big city. Niven almost does a takeoff of his own sophisticated style.

A Boy Ten Feet Tall (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Edward G. Robinson, Constance Cummings, Fergus McClelland and Harry H. Corbett star in this charming 1963 British-made drama about a youngster trying to cross Africa alone to reach his aunt. Old pro Robinson is first rate, and the youngster is well-played.

A Big Hand for a Little Lady (xxx), on 5 at 8. A clever, well-played 1966 yarn about a poker game that will keep you on the edge of your seat. Henry Fonda and his wife Joanne Woodward arrive in Laredo during an annual big-stakes poker game, and before you can shuffle a deck, Fonda is in the game, losing his homestead money, and has a heart attack. Wife Joanne takes over his hand and there's a surprise ending — so watch it 'till the bitter end.

8 1/2 (xxxx), on 11 at 8. A brilliant and sometimes baffling 1963 film, directed by Federico Fellini. It is a stunningly edited semi-autobiographical filmic psychoanalysis by Fellini as he records the fantasies and real life happenings of a noted filmmaker who is having artistic difficulties completing his new project. The work boasts superb performances not only from star Marcello Mastroianni but right down to the smallest bit part. A complex, stimulating masterpiece.

Please Standby for Murder, on 4 at 10:30. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery: about a woman who stumbles though a deserted television station trying to recall details of a murder she witnessed while in an alcoholic fog. Cast includes Shirley Knight.

The Back Scorpion (x), on 7 at 10:45. A terrible 1957 thriller about giant scorpions who have come to destroy the world. Good special effects are destroyed by poor acting, direction and screenplay.

Up In Arms (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. This charming 1944 comedy made Danny Kaye a star, and deservedly so. He plays a green recruit in the Army and he gets into more trouble than anybody since Harold Lloyd. Dinah Shore fans will be pleased to find her in a supporting role.

Lonely Are the Brave (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Kirk Douglas turns in a fine performance as a man out of his element, in this offbeat 1962 drama about a modern-day cowboy whose freedom is being jeopardized by the mechanized modern world.

Someone I Touched, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1975 made-for-television drama about an architect and his wife who are overjoyed at the wife's pregnancy until she learns that her husband may have given her syphilis. Cloris Leachman and James Olson star.

The Great Escape (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. An exciting, well-made 1963 war movie about Allied prisoners attempting a daring escape from a POW camp during the Second World War. The entire cast is top notch and the action builds from the very beginning to the exciting climax. Watch for Steve McQueen's mad motorcycle dash for safety, one of the most hair-raising action sequences ever filmed.

Lucky Jordan (xx), on 7 at 12:30. Alan Ladd stars in this 1943 drama about an AWOL soldier who inadvertently becomes a hero by defeating a gang of Nazi agents.

Flight from Ashiya (xx), on 6 at 1:30. On a special mission, Air Rescue Service agents recall their past lives, in this 1964 drama starring Richard Widmark and Yul Brynner.

Channel 4 Monday at 7 p.m.

Top Record Seller Hosts TV Special

LOS ANGELES — When young hopefuls ask John Denver how they can get started in the music business, he tells them:

"Don't do what anyone else is doing. Because if you do, you're No. 2 already."

The system worked for John Denver. For a half-dozen years he was singing songs that nobody else was doing, and, it was conceivable, that nobody wanted to hear.

But he persisted, and three years ago he clicked with his first million-seller, "Take Me Home, Country Roads."

Now, he says, "I believe I am the biggest record-seller in the world." And he continues to defy the normal patterns for success.

Denver came out of the Rockies for his third television special, which will appear on the ABC network March 10.

Denver, born Henry John Deutchendorf in Roswell, N.M., on New Year's Eve, 1943, is a slender man of medium height with hay-stack hair hanging over his round-rimmed glasses.

In an interview, he traced his success, which followed hard years of slogging through coffee houses and fairgrounds.

"I quit college Texas Tech in 1964 because I found that singing and playing the guitar were more enjoyable to me than anything I was doing in school," he said.

He went to Los Angeles, worked as a draftsman until he started getting jobs in coffee houses, changed his name because he realized Deutchendorf wouldn't fit on record labels.

Denver got married, joined the Chad Mitchell Trio on its downsizing, went through periods "when I was way overdrawn and getting notices to pay today or get out of the apartment."

"But we weren't discouraged," he said. "If you do what works and you enjoy it, then you get a positive feedback. Then it's working for you."

Denver's career began to turn with his song, "Leaving on a Jet Plane," although Peter, Paul and Mary made the hit record. Since "Country Roads" finally did it for him, he has enjoyed seven consecutive gold records.

Now he lives in Aspen, Colo., comes here for television and recording dates, and has resisted suggestions that he record near his home.

"One of the reasons I live in Aspen is so I can maintain a perspective on my life."

Population and the Food Crisis

Too many people and too little food. All of us have read or heard of the global food crisis and the population explosion. Experts bombard us with their gloomy prophecies of impending doom. Piling statistics upon statistics, they leave most of us either numbed or totally confused.

On March 10 at 10:30 p.m., Man Alive will examine some of the key issues that are forgotten in this whole debate, issues that are vital if we are to understand the situation of population control in developing countries.

The program, titled Population is People, recognizes overpopulation as a serious problem in many countries, and asks the following questions:

Are too many people really the cause of the hunger and agony, or is there a deeper reason?

Does a life of poverty foster in people a desire to plan their families?

Why do the affluent, industrialized countries advocate and support programs aimed mainly at population control in the developing countries?

Are these programs based on a truly human concern for fellow human beings? Do they betray a willingness to trample on the rights of others in order to let the West continue a lifestyle of over-consumption?

Population is People tackles these highly controversial issues of over-consumption by rich nations; vested interests by Western nations supporting population control programs; the value of the child in other cultures.

Taking part in the program are Dr. Han Suyin, who cites China as a model for what can be done in the field of population when people are motivated; science-fiction writer Isaac Asimov; Dr. Andre Hellegers of Washington, D.C.; Adlai Robinson, an educator from Sierra Leone; and Swiss sociologist Pierre Praderwand.

Movies

I Accuse (xxx), on 11 at noon. The famous Dreyfus trial and conviction is the basis for this 1958 drama, highlighted by an excellent cast that includes Jose Ferrer, Yvonne De Carlo, Emlyn Williams, Leo Genn and Anton Walbrook.

Lawman (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A strong cast (Burt Lancaster, Robert Ryan and Lee J. Cobb) holds together this otherwise routine 1973 western about a tough marshal hunting for the killers who shot up his town.

Marines, Let's Go (x), on 5 at 2:30. Standard heroics dominate this low-budget 1961 Korean War drama, starring Tom Tryon (who has since become a successful novelist) and David Hedison. A poor effort by famed director Raoul Walsh.

Killer Bees (xx), on 4 at 7:30. Fans of silent screen star Gloria Swanson will enjoy this 1974 made-for-television melodrama, starring a well-preserved Miss Swanson as an iron-willed matriarch who dominates a family of California vinegrowers. She also has a strange power over a colony of killer bees that thrive in the vineyards, providing an eerie symbolic quality to this drama as the family dotes on her like dromes over their queen.

The Big Ripoff, on 5 at 7:30. An unreviewed 1975 made-for-television comedy-drama starring Tony Curtis as a suave but unlucky gambler who uses his con-artist's talent to make enough money to pay off his gangster creditors. Supporting cast includes Brenda Vaccaro and Larry Hagman.

Bellissima (xxx), on 11 at 8. The late Anna Magnani portrays an ambitious mother who pushes her plain-looking daughter without mercy in an effort to turn her into an Italian Shirley Temple, in this 1952 drama. Rambling, oc-asionally effective and dubbed into English.

Firecrack (xx), on 12 at 9:30. James Stewart and Henry Fonda star in this traditional western drama about the timid sheriff against the tough gang leader whose men are terrorizing the town. Filmed in 1968 with a competent supporting cast that includes Inger Stevens, Ed Begley, Dean Jagger and Gary Lockwood.

Once the Killing Starts, on 4 at 10:30. No rating available on this made-for-television mystery about anonymous letters that threaten the perfect alibi of a college professor who murdered his wife. Cast includes Patrick O'Neal and Patricia Donahue.

Whistle Stop, on 7 at 10:45. No rating available on this 1946 drama featuring Ava Gardner in her first starring role as a small-town girl unable to decide between two men, played by George Raft and Victor McLaglen.

The Real Glory (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A rousing 1939 action drama, about three soldiers who aid in trying to squelch a terrorist uprising in the Philippines, starring Gary Cooper, David Niven and Broderick Crawford.

The Conjugal Bed (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. The original Italian title translation for this 1963 movie was The Queen Bee, which explains all. It's about a 40-year-old bachelor who marries a virtuous young girl who — literally — loves him to death. Taken seriously it could be a fine horror story; taken in the manner intended, it's a funny ribald comedy drama for adults only.

How to Save a Marriage — and Ruin Your Life (xx), on 6 at midnight. A generally amusing 1968 comedy about a bachelor who tries to save the failing marriage of an unfaithful husband, starring Dean Martin, Stella Stevens and Eli Wallach.

Far From the Madding Crowd (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Thomas Hardy's novel about a beautiful girl who managed to make a shambles out of three men's lives is not completely successful as brought to the screen by director John Schlesinger. Julie Christie never finds quite the right beat as the willful farm girl who desires to better her station in life but can't seem to find love, and of the three male stars (Alan Bates, Peter Finch and Terence Stamp) only Bates emerges as a definite character. But, if you have color television, the photography is a feast for the eyes as the film captures the exquisite beauty of England's "Thomas Hardy country."

The Uninvited (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. A well-told 1944 thriller about a young couple who buys a house in England that is haunted, starring Ray Milland and Ruth Hussey.

Bandolero! (xx), on 6 at 2:10. A violent 1968 western drama starring James Stewart and Dean Martin as two outlaw brothers pursued through Texas and Mexico by a relentless sheriff's posse.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at noon and 7 at 5:30. Mike's guests today include Tony Randall, Ralph Nader, folk singer Buffy Saint Marie, Lola Redford (wife of actor Robert Redford) and three cast members from the popular soap opera Another World. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7.)

Cher, on 8 at 7. As her special guests on tonight's program, Cher welcomes comedienne Lily Tomlin, pop group the Jackson Five and David Croh (Rhonda). (60 mins.)

World at War, on 12 at 7. August 1944: The Germans are driven back to their borders on the Western front. Laurence Olivier narrates as films follow the beginning of the end for Germany, including clips of the Polish army fighting to save Warsaw, and the Allied destruction of German armor at the Battle of the Bulge. (60 mins.)

Ascent of Man, on 9 at 7:30. World Within World, part 10 of Dr. Jacob Bronowski's acclaimed series examines the structure of the atom. He discusses the nature of crystals and the cubist art it may have inspired; the Russian chemist Dmitri Mendeleev's periodic table of elements; and the work of Nobel Prize-winning scientists Max Planck, Niels Bohr and Ernest Rutherford. And, at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, Dr. Bronowski visits the American Museum of Atomic Energy. (60 mins.)

Burt Bacharach: Opus No. 3, on 12 at 8:30. Burt plays variations on Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and Peter Ustinov portrays an aging Beethoven in this musical tribute to the famed composer. In another segment of the show, pop stars Stevie Wonder, Bette Midler and Gilbert O'Sullivan perform. (60 mins.)

Billy Graham Crusade, on 7 at 9. Are Angels Real? is Dr. Graham's topic for this second in a series of three crusades from Norfolk, Virginia. (60 mins.)

Interface, on 9 at 9. Since the revived popularity of ragtime music generated by the award-winning movie The Sting, tonight's program talks with 92-year-old composer-pianist Eubie Blake, recently enjoying new success. He reminisces about his career and performs some of his own tunes. (30 mins.)

Gerald Ford's America, on 9 at 9:30. Part two of a four-part series on life inside the Washington political scene. Tonight's program includes film of a White House tea for Republican women with Mrs. Betty Ford as hostess, and a look at a day in the life of society columnist Betty Beale. (30 mins.)

CBC Dominates ACTRA Nominees

CBC television will cover the fourth annual ACTRA Awards presentations in a live telecast direct from the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Toronto on Wednesday, April 23 starting at 9 p.m.

ACTRA (The Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists) has just announced the initial nominees in various categories — they will later be reduced to three per category.

CBC television programs — as well as writers and performers associated with CBC productions — have fared well.

Nominees for the Earle Grey award for Best Acting performance in television or in a non-feature film are: Bernard Behrens, for The Collaborators episode, Fifteen Degrees and Falling; John Colicos for his role of William Cornelius Van Horne in The National Dream; Jayne Eastwood for The Collaborators episode, Dee Dee; William Hutt, who portrayed Sir John A. MacDonald in The National Dream; Michael Kane for his continuing role in the CBC drama series The Collaborators; Murray Westgate, for his portrayal of Daniel Pride in the current CBC drama series House of Pride; Colling Gorrrie for the CBC Winnipeg series 24 hours production of The Killer; Joseph Golland for the Vancouver drama special The Overlanders, and Robert Clothier for the Boss Log episode from the current Vancouver drama series The Beachcombers.

LLOYD ROBERTSON

(Last year's award went to Jackie Burroughs for her performance in the CBC drama Vicky.)

Among those nominated for the award for the Best Public Affairs broadcaster in television (won last year by Adrienne Clarkson of CBC-TV's Take 30 series) are: Adrienne Clarkson for the Adrienne At Large series; Barbara Frum for her CBLT Toronto Series; Wendy O'Flaherty and Jack Wasserman, for their work on the CBC Vancouver series Hourglass.

Diane Stapley won last year's award for Best Variety Performer(s) for her work on the CBC Winnipeg series Inside Canada, and this year's nominees include: Dinah Christie, for the CBC Winnipeg mini-series Applause, Applause; Gwenlynn Little, for the Musicamera production Maid as Mistress; Vera Biloshisky, Vahri Bromfield, Victor Garber, Gilda Radner, Alan Thiele, for the musical special Jack — A Flash Fantasy; Pat Rose for the CBC Winnipeg series Inside Cana-

ADRIENNE CLARKSON

JOHN COLICOS

Two NFB Films Up For Oscars

Two highly acclaimed animation productions from the National Film Board of Canada, Hunger (La faim), and The Family That Dwelt Apart, have been nominated for the coveted Academy Award. The two NFB films, which have already proved to be winners in international competitions will vie for the honour of best animated short film.

Hunger (La faim), a computer animated film by Peter Foldes, has already taken awards at Cannes, Edinburgh, Chicago and Barcelona. This 11-minute story of the gluttony of man was cited as "one of the most interesting films in recent years" at the Cannes Film Festival. It was produced with the help of the National Research Council computer.

Also competing at the top animation film is The Family That Dwelt Apart. This light-hearted story of overkilling with kindness was directed by Yvon Malette and is based on a story by E. B. White.

Both the Canadian Film Awards and the Chicago International Film Festival have honoured this animated short.

Today's Highlights

ABC Afterschool Special, on 4 at 3:30. A repeat telecast of the Emmy-winning comedy-drama, Rookie of the Year, about an 11-year-old girl who gets her first taste of sex discrimination when she wins a place on her brother's baseball team. Jodie Foster (Paper Moon) stars. (60 mins.)

Mass Transit: The Unanswered Questions, on 4 at 6. The future urban growth and development of the Seattle area is examined in this special report. (30 mins.)

Theatre in America, on 9 at 8. Forget-Me-Not-Lane, a realistic drama of family life by English playwright Peter Nichols. The play slides back and forth between past and present, with frequent eruptions into fantasy and antic comedy of the English music hall variety. Music of the forties infiltrates the action of the play, which opens with a record of the popular song from which the drama takes its title. Cast includes Joseph Maher, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Donald Moffat. (2 hrs.)

Pacificanada, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. Tonight, this National Film Board series looks at how the Bella Bella Indians of northern British Columbia are trying to make their community self-sufficient under the leadership of their chief Cecil Reid. (30 mins.)

Music to See, on 2 and 6 at 9. Selections from Bach and Jean-Philippe Rameau are performed in this recital by harpist Erica Goodman. (30 mins.)

Billy Graham Crusade, on 7 at 9. Johnny Cash and his wife June Carter are among the guests of Dr. Graham's third and final crusade from Norfolk, Virginia. (60 mins.)

Opening Night, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. You're Gonna Be Alright, Jamie Boy, a special television adaptation of David Freeman's acclaimed satirical play about a family of television fans whose plans for a night of viewing fall apart when the set breaks down. Filmed before a live audience and starring Hugh Webster, David Ferry, Jayne Eastwood, Chuck Shamata and Lillian Lewis, CBC plans to make an announcement prior to viewing, that this drama may not be suitable for all members of the family. (90 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 10:30. Alan King in Search of Sex Appeal, a repeat telecast of comedian Alan King's tour through the glamor capital Hollywood, soliciting tips on enhancing sex appeal from experts in plastic surgery, fashion design, diet, dermatology and cosmetology. (90 mins.)

Movies

Bedelia (xxx), on 11 at noon. A well-cast, 1946 British-made mystery about an engineer who weds a previously married woman, and begins to suspect that she is a notorious poisoner. Cast includes Margaret Lockwood and Ian Hunter.

Requiem for a Secret Agent (x), on 8 at 12:45. Routine 1965 Italian-made espionage drama about a British adventurer called to Tangles to help break up an enemy spy ring.

Act One (xxx), on 5 at 2:30. If you have never read Moss Hart's sentimental best-selling novel about his youthful love affair with the Broadway theatre, then this watered-down 1963 film version will entertain you. The supporting cast (Jason Robards, Eli Wallach and Jack Klugman) is good, but George Hamilton as Hart is a bit too good looking and polished to convey the innocence and dedication of a poor Jewish boy who became a major playwright-author-director. Scream of the Wolf, on 4 at 7:30. No rating available on this 1974 made-for-TV thriller about a hunt for a creature that has killed four people, starring Peter Graves and Clint Walker.

Paint Your Wagon (x), on 8 at 8. A boring dated Broadway musical of the late 40s has been turned into this enormously expensive, equally boring 1969 film. It's all about life and romance in the California boom towns during the gold rush in the 1800s and its offbeat casting includes Lee Marvin, Jean Seberg and Clint Eastwood. Even some lovely songs (I Talk to the Trees, They Call the Wind Maria etc.) have been ruined via an inept score and stars who can't sing.

John Paul Jones (xxx), on 11 at 8. An entertaining 1959 biography of the life and times of the 18th-century American naval hero, well-played by Robert Stack. Bettie Davis makes a cameo appearance as Empress Catherine and the spectacular battle scenes lend some maritime excitement.

The Crowd Roars (xxx), on

GEORGE HAMILTON
... on 5 at 2:30

SOPHIA LOREN
... on 8 at midnight

12 at 11:30. A well-made 1938 fight drama starring Robert Taylor as a choir boy who turns boxer and ends up dealing with racketeers and gangsters.

What Did You Do in the War, Daddy? (x), on 2 at midnight. A tasteless 1966 Second World War farce starring James Coburn, Dick Shawn and Harry Morgan, that has Hollywood reminding us that war is just a hilarious bunch of chuckles and good clean fun for everyone concerned. Don't even bother to find out what daddy did.

Love Is a Ball (xx), on 6 at midnight. Pure escapist fare best describes this lightweight 1963 comedy about a man of the world who gets involved in a scheme initiated by a suave matchmaker. Cast includes Glenn Ford, Hope Lange and Charles Boyer.

More than a Miracle (xx), on 8 at midnight. A sumptuous 1966 Italian-made fairy tale with beautiful Sophia Loren and the dashing Omar Sharif managing to make the affair entertaining. The plot is fantastic and involved; suffice to say Sophia makes a gorgeous peasant girl who goes to great lengths to land her handsome prince.

Dr. Rhythm (xx), on 7 at 12:15. A 1938 revue-type musical starring Bing Crosby and Beatrice Lillie.

By Love Possessed (xx), on 8 at 2:15. James Gould Cozzens' fine novel about a lawyer who enters into an affair with his crippled partner's wife has been turned into this 1961 soap opera drama, starring Eftem Zimbalist Jr. and Lana Turner.

The Sharkfighters (xx), on 6 at 2:20. Victor Mature stars in this 1956 drama about the U.S. Navy's scientific efforts to perfect a repellent against sharks.

New Comedy Series Captures True New York Atmosphere

One ingredient the ABC Television Network's new comedy series, Barney Miller, will never be lacking in fidelity to the flavor and nature of life in New York City.

Four New Yorkers are starred in the half-hour comedy, which centres on Barney Miller, Captain of Detectives of a precinct in Manhattan's Greenwich Village. They are Hal Linden as Barney, Barbara Barrie as Mrs. Barney Miller, Abe Vigoda as Detective Fish and Gregory Sierra as Detective Chano.

Linden is especially observant of details concerning his hometown. From the comments in the scripts, such as "Take a crowded bus," to the double locks on apartment doors, it rings true to him most of the time.

"In one show, however, the director insisted that I take off my overcoat in the hallway," Linden confided. "He was a Californian and he thought the hallway was part of the apartment. To me, that would be like taking my coat off in the street."

HAL LINDEN and Barbara Barrie star in Barney Miller, Thursdays at 7 p.m. on Channel 4.

Linden pointed out that his city is a place of constant excitement.

"In Los Angeles, you are insulated against brushing up against the life in the city. Watts is like a different world, but Harlem is a part of New York City. People in California live too far apart and don't mix. In New York, the distance between wealth and poverty is just around the corner."

A typical New York experience Linden likes to dwell on is the block party.

"Many neighborhoods in the city have a street closed off for a gala of some kind between the spring and the fall, and the planning for these events goes on for months," he said. "There's a similar kind of clubbiness among the guys at the stationhouse. They all look like they've known one another for years."

The worn look of the precinct station is real because the art director of the series went to New York and photographed the interior of a rundown East Side station house.

Cable 10 Easter Seal Telethon

How can I help? That's a question often asked and, in one particular case, the answer is both close and easy.

On Wednesday, March 12, over Cable 10 in Victoria, Victoria's very first telethon will be presented, starting at 7 p.m. and displaying the undoubted talents of many local entertainers including singers, instrumentalists, dancers, magicians, acrobats and gymnasts.

Among the involved Victorians will be: Hugh Curtis, Joe Eastwood, Fred Usher's Oak Bay Tea Party Band, Peter Chipman, The Totem Tones, Jerry Gosley, The Adeline Duncan Dancers, Reg Stone and Al Smith (The Rolling Home Boys), The University Brass Quintet, John Dunbar, Gordie Hunter, John Gault, Fraser McAlpine, John Barton, David and Malcolm Anderson. Football star, Dave Cutler performs the "kick off" while the telethon is officially opened by the Provincial Minister of Health, Dennis Cocke.

It's all in aid of the Victoria Lions Club's Easter Seal Campaign Funds which go, in turn, towards a broad program of health services for children. These include the care of children with muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy or polio, paraplegics, Easter Seal bus transportation, summer camping, accommodation at Easter Seal House, swim programs and assistance to the Cleft Lip and Palate Society of Vancouver Island.

The telephone number for March 12 is 477-0185.

THEATRE IN AMERICA—An English familyman (Joseph Maher) is fondled by the dream-girl of his youth (Astrid Ronning) as his real-life wife (Joyce Ebert) looks on in this scene from the play, Forget-Me-Not-Lane, to be telecast on Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9.

JODIE FOSTER (centre) playing the role of the only girl on a boys' baseball team, is boosted up on her teammates' shoulders in this scene from the Emmy-winning drama special, Rookie of the Year, to be re-telecast on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Today's Highlights

ABC Afternoon Playbreak, on 4 at 12:30. Repeat telecast of Heart in Hiding, a drama starring Kay Lenz as a commercial model torn between two men in her life: a blind professor who shuns her love and possessive boss who demands it. (90 mins.)

Bill Moyers' Journal: International Report, on 9 at 7. In conversation with host Bill Moyers, BBC managing director Hugh Weldon talks about his network's contribution to American television. (60 mins.)

Carol Burnett Show, on 2 and 6 at 8. Carol and her regulars welcome Roddy McD-

RONALD REAGAN
... on 5 at 10:30 p.m.

Wall and singer Bernadette Peters to tonight's show. (60 mins.)

Mcleary, on 8 at 9:30. Postponed from last week, The Oldest Profession, an examination of attitudes toward prostitution in Germany, Holland, the United States, Great Britain and Canada, with host Michael Mcleary. (30 mins.)

Sprockets, on 2 at 10. Sculptor-painter Sorel Etrog's film Spiral a work that uses images and Shostakovich's Cello Concerto No. 1 to portray the relationship between man and time. (This is the last show in this time period; on April 11 it moves to a Friday night time slot.) (30 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 10:30. The Fat of the Land, repeat of a special hosted by William "Cannon" Conrad, TV's 220-pound detective, who joins other heavyweights to discuss the pros and cons of corpulence. His guests include comedian Avery Schreiber, former football pro Roosevelt Grier, and a Michigan housewife who had her mouth wired shut to keep her from eating. (90 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 10:30. Among Johnny's guests tonight are former California governor Ronald Reagan and singer-actress Florence Henderson. (90 mins.)

Movies

The Boys (xxx), on 11 at noon. A well-produced and acted 1962 British-made courtroom drama about four teenage boys on trial for murder and robbery. Richard Todd and Robert Morley are excellent as the opposing counsels.

The Last Voyage (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. Robert Stack and Dorothy Malone star in this tense 1960 suspense drama about an ocean liner ripped by an explosion and the efforts of the passengers and crew to abandon ship. The sinking scenes are the real thing, and quite fascinating.

Garden of Evil (xx), on 5 at 2:30. Plenty of action highlights this sprawling 1954 western starring Gary Cooper as the quiet hero, Richard Widmark as the conniving villain and Susan Hayward as the tempestuous heroine.

Divorce: American Style (xxx), on 7 at 8. One of the few deft satires produced by the American film industry, is this 1967 comedy starring Dick Van Dyke, Debbie Reynolds, Jason Robards and Jean Simmons. A stylish script by producer Norman Lear casts a perspective and jaded eye on the American institution of marriage in suburbia and the director, Bud Yorkin gets good performances from all.

Sancho the Bailiff (xxxx), on 9 at 8. A 1954 masterpiece by Japanese director Kenji Mizoguchi detailing the tragedy of a family separated and sold into slavery in medieval Japan. The message of the drama is mercy and director Mizoguchi's artistry has been described as "a visual poem of timeless beauty." Shown with English subtitles.

Seaside Swingers (x), on 11 at 8. A corny 1964 English-made musical built around the then popular singing group, Freddie and the Dreamers.

Berserk! (xx) on 12 at 9:30. Gory murders about every 20 minutes dominate this 1967 mystery-drama starring Joan Crawford as a circus owner whose business is plagued by a homicidal maniac killing off her staff.

The Woman Who Wouldn't Die (xx), on 7 at 10:45. Gary Merrill and Jane Marrow star in this 1965 English-made whodunnit involving illicit love and a touch of the supernatural.

Barbary Coast (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A colorful 1935 melodrama about the famed Barbary Coast in the late 1800s, starring Edward G. Robinson, Joel McCrea and Miriam Hopkins. The stars are competent, but it's Walter Brennan and Brian Donlevy in supporting roles that shine.

Who Is the Black Dahlia?

night. No rating available on this 1957 European-made drama about illicit love during the grape harvest in Southern France, starring Mel Ferrer, John Kerr and Pier Angeli.

Wedding Present (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. Cary Grant and Joan Bennett star in this entertaining 1936 farce about a newspaper editor in love with a reporter.

Dressed to Kill (xx), on 2 at 1. Standard 1946 Sherlock Holmes mystery starring Basil Rathbone as Holmes and Nigel Bruce as Dr. Watson.

Seven Against the Sun, on 8 at 1:55. No rating available on this 1965 South African-made drama about that country's patrol battles with Italian forces on Kenya's north frontier during the Second World War.

Number One (x), on 8 at 2:05. An embarrassing, pre-1965 1969 drama starring Charlton Heston as an aging, hardbitten quarterback whose time is running out. Heston's hopeless try at making like Joe Namath on the football field is ludicrous and about the only bright not is a sincere performance by Diana Muldaur as a woman who has an affair with our hero.

The Vintage, on 8 at mid-

Versatile Lady Makes It at 45

By WILLIAM MURRAY

Cloris Leachman is everywhere. Most successful actors have careers that lead them bumpily along a single line until at last they find the one good part that establishes them in the public consciousness; they then repeat this endlessly until rigor artis sets in. Not Cloris Leachman. She plays everything, from slapstick to high drama, and occasionally even sings for her supper. In a bright, clear, very well-trained soprano that brought her a Broadway lead the first time she ever auditioned with it. She recently starred in "Someone I Touched," an ABC Movie of the Week, in which she portrays a housewife and expectant mother whose supposedly happy marriage is shattered when it turns out that her husband has been having an affair with a girl who has syphilis. Cloris is so versatile, in fact, that people are beginning to complain that she is too much with us. "Oh, God!" a man sitting behind me at "Young Frankenstein," exclaimed. "Not Cloris Leachman again!"

At the movies these days, you can see her not only in Mel Brooks's spoof of the horror genre but lending class to "Daisy Miller." On TV, she crops up periodically as Phyllis, one of Mary Tyler Moore's kookier pals; in comedy sketches and music numbers on variety shows; and most frequently on the talk programs, where she chatters away about anything and everything with such alarming frankness that she occasionally has to be bleeped into silence, probably so the other guests can be allowed to edge into the conversation.

Wistful

Last year she also gave a powerful performance on the tiny screen in Tennessee Williams' "The Migrants" and next year we may not be able to get her away from her at all, because she's going to make a pilot for a series starring Phyllis, who like Rhoda, is going to move out of Mary Tyler Moore's orbit and into a new life of her own in San Francisco.

Cloris Leachman, who reports without being asked that she is 49 years old, is a beautiful woman. She has long blonde hair and large clear eyes and an oddly wistful mouth for a woman who likes to talk so much. Yet she has played so many homely women that her beauty comes as a surprise. "I'm like that characted in the Oz books," she says, "who had a different head for every occasion. It would be nice to come home, wouldn't it, and be able to say, 'Boy, I gotta get out of his head!' She tells me this over lunch in the Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel, the sort of place she feels at home in because it's a show-biz hangout and no one who is anyone gets past our booth without exchanging a pleasantry or two with Cloris. "When I want attention," she says, "I get it. I make it happen wherever I go. I can do anything. I paint, I sculpt; whatever it is, I get the job done and make it fun. I dance around and sing all the time. Acting is 10 per cent of what I do; the rest of the time I'm sort of a mobile social worker."

Sparkle

All this energy came from her mother back in Iowa.

"She was a magician, a witch. She could make something out of nothing. She was small and dark and beautiful and one of the funniest women I've ever known. She loved to set things in motion and watch what would happen. My father was in the lumber business and he paid the bills, but it was my mother who taught me and my two sisters about freedom and play."

She also taught Cloris to sparkle. It was a family gag. They'd be sitting around and suddenly Mrs. Leachman would say, "Sparkle, Cloris!" And Cloris would bat her eyes and smile very brightly. It was a technique she used to good effect, when, as a sophomore at Northwestern, she was chosen Miss Chicago and became one of five finalists in the Miss America Pageant of 1946. "When I started down the runway," she recalls, "Mother was standing off in the wings and the last thing I heard was, 'Sparkle, Cloris!'"

She didn't make Miss America, but the exposure and the $1,000 she earned as a finalist propelled her to New York, where she studied acting and singing and almost immediately began to work on Broadway — in "Come Back, Little Sheba," "King of Hearts," "As You Like It" (with Katharine Hepburn) and as one of Mary Martin's numerous successors in "South Pacific," her first singing part. She was one of the original founding members of the Actors Studio, but eventually drifted away from it after her sponsor and teacher, Elia Kazan, became less active there.

"The Studio began to take itself too seriously and became a sort of humorless Tower of Babel."

There was a lot of live drama on TV in those days, most of it out of New York, and that's where she feels she got her best training. "I'd alternate between Broadway and live TV, where I learned that anything can happen. I found out how to take something that wasn't complete and to fill in. I was cast in heavies a lot then and I became known as the best bad girl on TV. It was terrific training, but you know what I still regret? That I didn't get a chance to live out of a trunk in stock and play different towns every week. Stock was dead by the time I started."

Her career was an immediate success, even though it took a long time, many parts and an Academy Award (for "The Last Picture Show") to make her a star. Cloris Leachman never doubted she'd make it. "There's plenty of room at the top and I always knew there'd be a place for me there. I planned it that way."

Not Shy

She also knew she'd be a wife and mother and, appropriately enough, met the man in her life through her mother. He's producer-director George Englund and they have five children, four boys and a girl, ranging in ages from 21 to 9. Of their relationship, Cloris says, "We're not separated and we're not together. We're back together but living apart and it's the best arrangement so far."

She now lives in a seven-room house with two grand pianos, all the kids, their animals, their musical instruments and, occasionally, a few stray friends. Cloris wasn't quite sure who was sleeping in which room today, the day we met. "My children are free people. We couldn't live any other way, because it wouldn't be us."

Now that Cloris has clout, she insists on being consulted and listened to on everything connected with a production. "I'm not shy about pushing for what I want." When she first read the script for "Someone I Touched," she says, "I felt awful and I didn't know why. Then I figured out it was because I don't ever want to have v.d., and I got this feeling about myself into four pages of notes. I wanted the script toughened and the sentimentalizing cut out. At the same time, I wanted humor and I wanted actors around me who have humor, especially the men. I don't like good-looking leading men. I like bald heads and bushy eyebrows and men with character in their faces." She feels most of the suggestions she made were acted on.

Demands

Cloris Leachman has strong likes and dislikes and she makes demands. "You know another reason I quit the Actors Studio? Everybody smoked there. It was horrible and disgusting." She hates smoking and coffee and hard booze and sugar and meat, and one of her solutions to the problems of the body is to fast. "Fasting is simply wonderful, but you have to know how to do it," she explains. "I eat better and I feel better than anybody and why shouldn't I say so? I believe in truth, whatever it is, and I don't believe in covering up." That's Cloris Leachman, wearing her truth head.

New York Boasts Highest Star Output

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — If you want to become a star performer, or even a prominent personality, you'd best be careful where you're born.

It may be planetary influences, something in the water or the climate, but some states simply produce more stars than others.

Alaska, for instance, has not produced a single movie-TV star. Hawaii is a laggard, too.

Other barren areas are

South Dakota, Delaware, South Carolina (but not North Carolina), Nevada, Arkansas, Idaho, Maryland, Mississippi, Alabama, Wyoming and Montana.

New England and the Deep South may be excused because of regional dialects and accents. But then Latvia has produced more luminaries than the entire state of Nevada.

New York, on the other hand — especially New York City — has produced more actors and actresses of note than any state in the union. And New York is responsible for almost all of the nation's comedians.

Brooklyn alone has given us Danny Kaye, Woody Allen, Buddy Hackett, Phil Silvers, Don Rickles and Jackie Gleason.

New York, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois outdistance all the other states in production of talented and famous performers.

One state, however, has produced a surprising number of major stars although its population isn't large and it hasn't a particularly strong reputation as a leader in the arts.

It's Nebraska with such outstanding sons and daughters as Henry Fonda, Marlon Brando, Fred Astaire, Dick Cavett, James Coburn, Sandy Dennis, Nina Foch and David Janssen to name a few.

The Dakotas are virtually the badlands when it comes to stars, save such nuggets as Lawrence Welk, Mamie Van Doren and Angie Dickinson.

Rhode Island lays claim to Ruth Buzzi, David Hartman and Van Johnson. Otherwise little Rhodie would be as badly off as Delaware which hasn't produced even a show business spear carrier.

Maine is deficient, too, and Vermont really hasn't recovered from the birth of Rudy Vallee within its boundaries.

If it's quality one seeks, New York wins hands down with six Academy Award winners among its daughters: Judy Holliday, Shirley Booth, Susan Hayward, Anne Bancroft, Barbra Streisand and Jane Fonda.

The top four leading men in the country were all born in different states: Paul Newman in Ohio, Steve McQueen in Indiana, Robert Redford in California and Burt Reynolds in Florida. Donn Knotts is from W. Virginia.

At all costs avoid Hollywood, Calif. the only stars it has produced are imbedded in the cement sidewalks along Hollywood Boulevard.

Today's Highlights

Dinah Shore Show, on 7 at 2:30. Among Dinah's guests today are Alan Alda, Edward Asner, Cloris Leachman, comedian Pat Paulsen and country singers Loretta Lynn and Marty Robbins. (90 mins.)

Comedy Special, on 7 at 7 and 12 at 8:30. Debut of a new comedy pilot sequel to last season's identically titled pilot about a pair of widowed senior citizens who live together in a Florida trailer court. (30 mins.)

We'll Get By, on 7 at 7:30 and 12 at 8:30. Debut of a new comedy series created by M-A-S-H star Alan Alda. Paul Sorvino and Mitzel Hoag play the suburban New Jersey parents of three bright and saucy kids (daughter Andrea is played by Devon Scott, daughter of George C. Scott, and her boyfriend Richard is played by Adam Arkin, son of actor Alan Arkin.). (30 mins.)

Masterpiece Theatre, on 9 at 8. The Man of Honor—Story two of Vienna 1900. Games of Love and Death. Dr. Graesler (Robert Stevens) watches as a young man tries to move from an old love to a new one. Attached to a sickly shopgirl, the man finds he now has the chance to marry a wealthy factory owner's daughter—if he waits one year. Impatient, he finally kills his former sweetheart, and then to redeem his honor, he challenges an older man to a duel. (60 mins.)

Wayne and Shuster, on 2 and 6 at 8. In their third special of the season, Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster offer takeoffs on fashion shows, a television series (The Six Hundred Dollar Man) and a classic movie. (60 mins.)

Gallery, on 2 at 10:30. Letter From Paris, a profile of Janet Flanner, who for almost 50 years wrote a column for The New Yorker under the pseudonym of "Genet." Ms. Flanner reminisces about her life in Paris during the twenties and thirties. (30 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 10:30. In the second of four shows taped at Nashville's Grand Ole Opry, host Roy Clark welcomes Tanya Tucker, Diana Trask, Johnny Rodriguez and Freddy Weller. (90 mins.)

Midnight Special, on 5 at midnight. A late night pop music concert with Kenny Loggins, Jim Messina, Blood, Sweat and Tears, Martha Reeves, Melissa Manchester, Barry Manilow and Gil Scott-Heron and Mac Davis. Helping host the concert is record executive Clive Davis. (90 mins.)

Midnight, on 2 at 1. A late-night public affair show with host correspondent Laurier Lapierre. (60 mins.)

Movies

Brushfire (x), on 11 at noon. A 1962 potboiler with the routine plot about a rescue party trying to save an American couple from guerrillas, starring John Ireland and Everett Sloane.

The Naked Spur (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. Superb on-location photography in the Rockies and good performances by James Stewart, Robert Ryan and Janet Leigh enhance this rugged outdoor tale about a group of bounty hunters in pursuit of a killer with a price on his head.

Ugetsu (xxx), on 5 at 2:30. A beautifully photographed 1953 film set in 16th century Japan about two friends who go their separate ways in a search for fulfillment.

Cage Without a Key, on 7 at 8. An unreviewed 1975 made-for-TV drama starring Susan Dey (The Partridge Family) as a teen-ager who faces the horrors of a poorly run penal institution after mistakenly being convicted of murder. Some location scenes were filmed at the Las Palmas School for Girls in California.

Island of the Burning Doomed, on 11 at 8. No rating available on this 1967 English-made science fiction thriller about mysterious deaths that occur during an intense November heat wave. Cast includes Christopher Lee and Peter Cushing.

Rosemary's Baby (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Award-winning director Roman Polanski turned Ira Levin's best-selling novel about witchcraft into the slick, scary and well-acted 1968 drama. Mia Farrow and John Cassavetes portray a young couple expecting a child who are slowly drawn into a web of black magic by a pair of seemingly innocent neighbors. Ruth Gordon won an Oscar for her supporting role, and she is matched every step of the way with an equally fine performance by Maurice Evans. Recommended, but not for the whole family.

Cult of the Cobra (xx), on

MIA FARROW
... on 12 at 9 p.m.

Pride of the Yankees (xxxx), on 12 at 11:45. This 1942 drama is one of the best baseball pictures ever made, a touching, honest and interesting biography of the life of one of the sport's greats—Lou Gehrig. Gary Cooper is perfect as the Yankee first baseman and Teresa Wright gives an excellent performance in the difficult role of the patient and loving wife. Supporting cast includes Walter Brennan and Dan Duryea with a cameo appearance by Babe Ruth.

The Pit and the Pendulum (xxx), on 6 at midnight. Excellent special effects and atmospheric photography highlight this 1961 thriller loosely based on the Poe classic, and starring Vincent Price, John Kerr and Luana Anders.

Atlantis, the Lost Continent (xx), on 8 at midnight. A 1961 costume fantasy about a mythical lost continent in the days of the Roman Empire. The acting is wooden, but the trick photography and special effects rate two stars.

The Man Who Cried Wolf, on 7 at 12:30. No rating available on this 1937 drama about an actor who attempts to sidestep a murder charge by confessing to a number of crimes that he cannot possibly have committed. In the cast are Lewis Stone and Tom Brown.

That Wonderful Country (xx), on 4 at 1:40. A 1959 western tale with Robert Mitchum cast as a Texan who has a strange allegiance to the Mexicans and consents to buy arms to be used in the Revolution. Julie London supplies the love interest.

I Wanted Wings (xx), on 7 at 1:10. A dated (1941) propaganda film about three young men taking pre-Second World War Air Cadet training, starring Ray Milland and William Holden.

Elmer Gantry (xxxx), on 8 at 2. A terrific 1960 movie rendering of the powerful Sinclair Lewis novel about an unscrupulous salesman who becomes a fire-eating preacher under the tent of a lady evangelist. Oscars went to Burt Lancaster and Shirley Jones for their excellent performances and to Richard Brooks for his superb direction. If you are a late-night film buff, this one's worthwhile.

8:03 (AM) CBC Tuesday Night — And Cupid Laughs: A review for choir, soloists and speakers concerning that state of mind, that act of feeling, that emotional begetter of joy and sorrow which we call love. The Orpheus Choir of Toronto, an amateur group, is conducted by James Whitcher, music consultant with the Ontario Ministry of Education, and author of the script (including some of the poems). Program includes such items as the old English love song, There Is A Lady Sweet and Kind; the French Song II bel et bon; and a love scene from Cyrano de Bergerac. Also, Armed Camps, by David Hutchinson, based on the novel by the same name, by Kit Reed.

10:30 (AM) Touch the Earth — A special on the music of Gordon Lightfoot, which includes a conversation with hostess Sylvia Tyson.

WEDNESDAY

8:03 (AM) Concern — "India". Four stories prepared by Vancouver freelancer Mati Laansoo. His first story is about Maharajah Kumar Ravinder of Jind. Ravinder's father was the last official Maharajah of Jind having 265,000 loyal servant subjects. Listeners will also hear the story of P. Mani Bushman, a 14-year-old Tamil Nadu runaway street urchin. Mani is destined for the streets of Bombay where, if he's lucky he will live past 25. In other interviews Mani talks with Winston Gawke, a famous retired Shikari, or big game hunter, who took out princes and kings and rich men or Safari; and with Sofia Wadi, head of the English literature department in Bombay. As a young girl Sofia knew both Mahatma Gandhi and the great Sir Rabindranath Tagore. Parsis — An examination of Parsis, one of the great religions of the world. By freelancer Mazbool Jung.

8:03 (FM) Encore — Part I — And Cupid Laughs: A review for choir, soloists and speakers concerning that state of mind, that act of feeling, that emotional begetter of joy and sorrow which we call love. The Orpheus Choir of Toronto, an amateur group, is conducted by James Whitcher, music consultant with the Ontario Ministry of Education, and author of the script (including some of the poems). Program includes such items as the old English love song, There Is A Lady Sweet and Kind; the French Song II bel et bon; and a love scene from Cyrano de Bergerac. Part II — "Armed Camps", by David Hutchinson, based on the novel by the same name, by Kit Reed.

in response to the demands of an international economy and was subject to fluctuations. Such instability has given people a sense of insecurity from not knowing if their source of employment or communities would last. The program examines how such an atmosphere influences attitudes toward life and work. As well it looks at the culture and traditions Cape Bretoners have built up in things such as music and humour.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — This program features an interview with Elizabeth Mann Borge, leading Law of the Sea theorist and author of "Pacem in Maribus", the book resulting from the International Conference of the Sea, held in Malta.

10:30 (AM) Major Progression — A weekly 90-minute rock music show from Winnipeg. The program will have a variety of features covering almost every aspect of the music scene and will feature to a high degree music by Canadian artists. There will be a weekly bill board of musical events with information about the major concerts across the country; review of new record albums; and interviews with musical personalities. The program will also have commentaries on various aspects of the music industry; record companies and publishers; and how a record is promoted to hit status. Hosts: Jim Millican and Lee Major.
